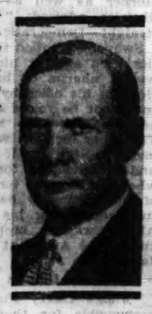
MAYOR CLASHES WITH SWANSON AS DRIVE ENDS

Prosecutor Angered by Loss of Police.

State's Attorney Swanson and Mayor Cermak engaged in a warm political exchange last night as a result of the withdrawal of most of the city police detail assigned to the state's attorney's office. The members of the detail taken from Mr. Swanson were assigned to the duty of guarding polling places today.



JOHN A. SWANSON.

Mr. Swanson charged that withdrawal of the police was part of an attempt by Mayor Cermak to "steal the election" from himself and John E. Northup, Republican candidate for attorney general. Mayor Cermak retorted that the police were withdrawn to guard the polls against "Swanson hoodlums." He predicted that, principally because of police activity in jailing hoodlums, the election in Cook county today will be the cleanest in history.

Refused Aid of Militia.

State's Attorney Swanson took vigorous steps to recruit another force of polls watchers as soon as Police Commissioner Allman issued an order transferring 48 of the 54 detectives assigned to the state's attorney to guard polling places scattered throughout the city. The detectives will be sent back to the state's attorney's office tomorrow.

After issuing a statement attacking Mayor Cermak, Mr. Swanson telephoned Gov. Emmerson, asking him to call out the National Guard to man the polls against fraud and violence. This request was refused, but the prosecutor obtained promises of cooperation from United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green and United States Marshal Henry C. W. Laubenheimer.

Extra Marshals Authorized.

Marshal Laubenheimer obtained permission from Solicitor General Thomas Thatcher, acting attorney general at Washington, to employ from 50 to 100 extra deputy marshals to augment his regular force. These men will not man the polls, but will be held at the marshal's office to answer complaints. Federal statutes provide severe penalties for fraud or intimidation of voters in a national election, and Mr. Green will be in his office all day today to receive complaints of any such violations.

Meanwhile, Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, arranged to place an estimated force of 1,000 special investigators and police in the field. Of these, 100 had been engaged as investigators before the police were withdrawn. Another 500 are American Legion members. The Lincoln and west park boards were requested to assign all their available policemen to election duty under the supervision of the state's attorney. Other men will be drawn from suburban forces oganized under the state's attorney's regional police plan.

Allman Explains Order.

In withdrawing the state's attorney's police, Commissioner Allman stated that he was recalling all special police details for election duty. This was necessary, he said, because Maj. John Bauder, police drillmaster, had informed him that the police force would fall 30 or 90 men short of placing a man in every city polling place unless the special details were used. Commissioner Allman even assigned his two secretaries, Lieuts. George E. Peterson and James Conlisk, to election duty, he said.

"This will be the cleanest election ever held in Cook county," said Mayor Cermak in commenting on Commissioner Allman's action. "We have locked up the leading hoodlums and they are going to stay locked up so that we can make sure there will be no hoodlumism at the polls.

"The city is sadly in need of enough policemen to protect all the polling places efficiently. It was for this reason that the commissioner of police was compelled to withdraw all police on special assignments."

Mayor Replies to Attack.

"State's Attorney Swanson takes this state of affairs and turns it upside down to his own advantage. He accuses me of attempting to interfere with the election when he knows I am determined to see that there shall

JUDGE CLOSES HIS BATTLE ON VICTORY NOTE

Predict Senator Will Top G. O. P. Ticket.

The Illinois state campaign wound up last night in the same stride that it took late in October. Last minute reports from all over Illinois were unqualified in placing Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, ahead of all other candidates in the field. G. O. P. leaders contended that Senator Otis F. Glenn will lead all on the Republican ticket.

All forecasts agree that there will be a tremendous vote in spite of a threat of bad weather. Some estimates are that the total will run as high as 3,500,000, about equally divided between Cook county and the rest of the state. The vote in 1928 totaled 3,107,489. The normal increase would approximate 10 per cent and the unusual conditions in the nation are expected to bring the total Illinois vote to an even higher percentage.

Horner and Glenn Gain.

So far as could be determined, there had been no last minute shifts in the factors that will determine the outcome. Judge Horner continued to show an increase in strength and Senator Glenn added slightly to his lead over other Illinois Republican candidates and over President Hoover.

Judge Horner, who has toured downstate and Cook county thoroughly, closed his campaign last evening at a massmeeting in Berwyn, where he was assured of the country towns' support. Tonight the judge plans to visit the headquarters of the various groups supporting him to listen to election returns. At the conclusion of this tour he will probably join other Democratic leaders at the Hotel Sherman headquarters. Len Small will receive the returns at his home in Kankakee.

Horner Renews Pledge to Voters.

Judge Horner closed his campaign, on the victory note. In a radio address at several ward meetings and at the packed massmeeting in Berwyn he asserted his confidence and reiterated his promise to the voters: "You may expect me to give you all that I possess in service, in loyalty, and devotion."

Then he made some predictions of his own.

"I believe," he declared, "that this campaign has been one of truly great meaning to our people. I am certain that we in Illinois shall arise out of this important election, perhaps the most important of our history, a more harmonious and enlightened people. It is my earnest hope that one of the beneficent results of the campaign is that all of us now see the crucial problems of our state in clearer and more understandable terms.

"This enlightened understanding we must have before a basis for their definite solution may be reached; before there can be the essential transformation of conditions in this country and state from dark gloom to sunlit brightness and prosperity."

Hits Whisper Campaign Again.

To refute the last echoes of the "whispering campaign" waged against him, Judge Horner talked of the type of campaign he had conducted.

"From the very beginning," he said, "it has been my steadfast purpose—and I have not wavered from it even when the temptation was strong because of the character of the campaign of the opposition—to conduct my campaign upon a plane of candor and sincerity of the highest order so that the men and women of our state might have a clear and necessary understanding of the issues.

"The purpose of those who seek offices of high public trust should be to give our distressed fellow citizens

FAVORITES ON STOCK EXCHANGE SOAR WHEN VOTING TIME NEARS

Released from its preelection restraint, the market swung into a brisk upward movement that carried leading issues from one nearly to four points above Saturday's closings.

The rise was helped in a large measure by covering of "short" commitments as the bear element acurried to make good its position. American Telephone, Steel, American Can, Union Pacific, Allied Chemical, United Aircraft, Lackawanna Railroad and Westinghouse were among the best performers.

Wall street seemed to reach the conclusion that a change in administration would not alter the underlying business current moving in the direction of recovery.

The rise was accompanied by a sharp expansion in volume of trading. For four weeks the market had been dull and confined to a narrow range.

Gov. Roosevelt Pledges Best to His Country

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

All this day Gov. Roosevelt has spent among the folk of this Hudson river valley in which his forbears have lived for two and a half centuries. First he motored among them, making his last campaign stumping tour, and tonight he addressed them, as has been his wont on the eve of every election in twenty years, in the Knights of Columbus hall at Poughkeepsie.

While these country folk sat listening to and watching the man who tomorrow may be chosen their President the candidate's last message went over the nation via the radio.

"A man comes to wisdom in many years of public life," he said. "He knows well that when the light of favor shines upon him, it comes not, of necessity, that he himself is important.

Means to an End.

"Favor comes because for a brief moment in the great space of human change and progress some general human purpose finds in him a satisfactory embodiment.

"To be the means through which the ideals and hopes of the American people may find a greater realization calls for the best in any man. I seek to be only the humble emblem of this restoration.

"If that be your verdict, my friends of America and my next door neighbors of Dutchess county, and that be the confident purpose behind your verdict, I shall in the humility that suits such a great confidence seek to meet this great expectation of yours. With your help and your patience and your generous good will we can mend the torn fabric of our common life.

"On this very eve of the exercise of the greatest right of the American electorate I bid you good-night. And I add to that, God bless you all."

Very briefly Mr. Roosevelt revealed the thoughts which four months of

BRIDGE GUARD ON HOOVER TRAIN ROUTE IS SLAIN

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 7.—(AP)—One railroad bridge guard along the route of President Hoover's special train through Nevada was shot to death tonight and another was seriously stabbed, information received by Southern Pacific officials here said.

The place where the body of the watchman, P. E. Sish, was found, railroad officials said, is at a crossing of the Humboldt river, two miles west of Palisade.

The specail train did not stop at Winnemucca, Nev., but railroad employés there said the bridge guard who was wounded flagged the pilot engine running ahead of the train.

They said the guard killed had been shot and stabbed. The Hoover train was delayed about thirty minutes while the bridge and track was inspected after the pilot engine was halted.

Bridge Not Tampered With.

Sparks, Nev., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Supt. Foley of the Southern Pacific division here said tonight the bridge at which one or two guards were reported to have been attacked on the route of the Hoover special train was not tampered with.

Foley said the special train had passed Winnemucca, 150 miles east of here. He said he had no detailed report concerning the attack on the bridge guards near Palisade.

THE FINAL APPEALS

BY PRESIDENT HOOVER—

"I have tried to dissolve the mirage of promises by the reality of facts . . . I feel deeply that the Republican party has been the party of progress in our history from the day of Abraham Lincoln. It has built the progress of the nation upon the foundation of national principles and national ideals."

BY GOV. ROOSEVELT—

"To be the means through which the ideals and hopes of the American people may find a greater realization calls for the best in any man. I seek to be only the humble emblem of this restoration."

BY CALVIN COOLIDGE—

"From my knowledge of President Hoover, after sitting at the cabinet table with him for eight years, after considering the difficulties he has encountered and the policies he has proposed, I believe he is the best man for us to entrust with the presidency in this great emergency."

Hoover Halts Trip West to Talk to Nation

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Elko, Nev., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—From this little town, still redolent of old mining camp days, President Hoover tonight appealed to the citizens of the nation to go to the polls tomorrow as he will do in his Palo Alto home and vote their support of the Republican party.

The speech that rang down the curtain on as strenuous a campaign for reelection as ever engaged in by a President was broadcast to the country from Mr. Hoover's private car.

Mr. Hoover called on the nation to recognize and support his claim that the contest which will be decided tomorrow is one between two philosophies of government; that its decision may effect the course of the country for a generation to come. He declared that his party was truly progressive.

In keeping with the Republican strategy of appealing to the "silent vote," a strategy marked earlier in the day by his speech at Salt Lake City, the President referred particularly to the share of women, the homemakers and mothers, in the progress of the nation.

G. O. P. for Nation's Welfare.

"It is my deep conviction," he declared, "that for the welfare of the United States, the Republican party should continue to administer the government."

Mr. Hoover urged that faithful Republicans should not be "led astray" by false gods arrayed in the rainbow colors of promises."

The speech that the President broadcast in this Nevada town, with the mountains peering down from the dark horizon and the townsfolk peering in his Pullman windows, closed a series of campaign trips that have carried Mr. Hoover over about 12,000 miles. He has made 13 major speeches, and about 200 back platform appearances in 20 states. He will arrive tomorrow in California, to join in parades at Sacramento and San Francisco. Then he goes to Palo Alto, his home, to vote.

After that he will wait for the returns.

Talks for Senator Smoot.

It was Smoot and silver and sugar which drew the cheers of 12,000 persons jamming the aisles of the Salt Lake City tabernacle, of 3,000 more in

RIVAL LEADERS CLAIM VICTORY AT POLLS TODAY

Over 47 Millions on Voting Lists.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

The 1932 presidential election canvass came to a close last night with President Hoover, Republican candidate for a second term, and Gov. Roosevelt of New York, his Democratic opponent, broadcasting their final appeals for support to 47,757,102 men and women qualified to vote today.

HERBERT HOOVER.

In this year of the great depression a larger percentage of eligible voters has registered than ever before. Of the 66 millions of citizens 21 years old or over, 72 per cent have registered for the balloting today. Four years ago, when the religious issue brought out hordes of people who never had voted before, the registration was 43,338,492, which was under 68 per cent of those then eligible to vote.

Expects Record Vote.

How many of those on the poll books actually will vote today only the final returns will show. Simon Michelet of Washington, president of the Get Out the Vote club, thinks that because of the economic and prohibition issues the stay at home vote will be the smallest today in recent history, and estimates that 40,302,000 votes will be cast, compared with 36,379,414 in 1928.

On the other hand, William Tyler Page, perennial clerk of the house of representatives when the Republicans control that body, expects a larger stay at home vote this year and is prepared to find the total vote cast less than four years ago. He thinks forces impelling citizens to the polls today far less potent than those of 1928, particularly in the south, which revolted against Al Smith's religion.

Larger States Gain Most.

The greatest increase in registration occurred this year in Illinois, California, Michigan, Missouri, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, and in the states of the corn and wheat belts. In Texas and some other southern states the registration fell off compared with four years ago.

1928	36,879,414

Of those citizens eligible to vote in this country, little more than 50 per cent ordinarily exercise the franchise, even in presidential elections. In Germany and Great Britain the percentage approaches 80.

Odds Favor Roosevelt.

The day of balloting arrives with the result pretty thoroughly discounted. The prevalent opinion is that Gov. Roosevelt will defeat the President, and probably by a majority of landslide proportions. As a barometer of the popular judgment, the betting odds have been steadily mounting in the last week of the canvass until they have topped 6 to 1 in favor of Roosevelt.

Democratic National Chairman James Farley declared yesterday he would concede none of the states as Mr. Hoover's.

Republican National Chairman Everett Sanders waves aside all the indications of a Roosevelt victory with the assurance that he has detected an eleventh hour stampede to Hoover which will bring about the reelection of the President by not less than 333 electoral votes.

Compare Hoover and Lincoln.

Stories have been current for some time that Mr. Hoover had given up hope of victory, as Lincoln did in his campaign for reelection in 1864, when he wrote a sealed letter to his cabinet, to be opened after Gen. McClellan's election. McClellan carried only three states.

A candidate is not always the best judge of his chances of election. The night before the election of 1896 Bryan was sure he was going to be elected overwhelmingly. In 1904 Theodore Roosevelt thought he was doomed to defeat by Alton B. Parker, but the result of the balloting was the famous Roosevelt landslide. In 1912 Roosevelt was surprised and chagrined to find he carried only four states.

He thought he had a pretty fair chance of winning. Four years ago Smith was as confident of winning as was Hoover. "And look what happened to me," was Al's comment on that misplaced confidence in the course of his speech to the Chicago convention last summer.

The canvass this year ended with the depression as an issue still uppermost. The Democrats put in their last licks endeavoring to convince the electorate that Hoover policies, Hoover procrastination and Hoover ineptitude were to blame for the worst economic disaster within the memory of living men. Mr. Hoover continued to the last to defend himself against these attacks, to stress the measures he initiated to mitigate the effects of the economic collapse and to warn the voters that an economic chaos much worse than has been experienced will be the misfortune of the country if the Democrats are returned to power.

The Republican thesis that Democratic control of the government invariably affects business activities unfavorably has been the subject of most heated dispute in the closing days of the campaign. The Democrats charged the Republicans from the President down with a desperate final effort to win through inspiring popular fear of the safety of savings and other property if control of the central government were changed.

Go Back to 1884.

The Democrats cite statistics reaching back to the election of 1884 to disprove the Republican contention that Democratic control of the government is feared as being bad for business. They assert that the record is mixed, that the market frequently goes up when a Democratic and down when a Republican victory impends.

In 1884 when Cleveland was elected the first time the market went off 1.3 per cent in September, remained stationary in October and declined 3 per cent farther in November. Four years later when Harrison won there was a 2.4 per cent rise in September, 9 per cent in October, no change in November, and a .9 per cent decline in December.

In 1892 when Cleveland won his second election the market fell 1.4 per cent in September, went up 2.8 per cent in October and fell 2.2 per cent after the election. In 1896 there was an 8.7 per cent rise in September when Bryan appeared to be winning, according to recent statements of Republican managers intended to establish that this campaign is a repetition of the McKinley-Bryan battle. In October the market went up 2.5 per cent farther and after election another 9.2, but fell 5.8 per cent in December.

On the eve of McKinley's second election in 1900 the market went off 4 per cent in September, recovered 3.5 per cent in October, and went up 11.4 per cent in November. Optimism prevailed before and after the Roosevelt landslide of 1904.

Some Other Market Actions.

In 1908 when Taft confronted Bryan stocks dropped 2.8 per cent in September, went up 9 per cent in October and another 5 per cent after election. In 1912 when the Republicans were split and the election of Wilson a foregone conclusion the market went up 1.3 per cent in September, remained stationary in October, fell 1.7 per cent after election and another 3 per cent in December.

In 1916 whether because of confidence in Hughes or in Wilson the market rose 7.1 per cent in September, 4.7 per cent in October, 5.7 per cent after the election of Wilson and then dropped 8.7 per cent in December. In September preceding the Harding-Cox battle the prices of stocks advanced 3.6 per cent, but dropped back 3.2 per cent in October, fell another 6.7 per cent after the Harding landslide had been tallied and then took another 10 per cent header downward in December.

The Coolidge campaign in 1924 began with stocks sagging 1.4 per cent in September, another 1.4 per cent in October, only to pick up 5.6 per cent after the election and 6 per cent in December. In 1928 stocks rose steadily, 6.3 per cent in September, 2.5 per cent in October, 7.7 per cent in November, and then fell .3 per cent in December.

The Democrats cite a compilation by Arthur F. Burns of Rutgers college to prove that the Republicans have no monopoly of prosperity.

MYSTERY SHOTS KILL ANNOYER CHASING GIRL, 14

Sam Hoffman, 45 years old, was shot six times and killed last night while, it is alleged, he was pursuing a 14 year old girl near her home in Chicago Heights. Hoffman lived at 1646 Halsted street, Chicago Heights, and was in the scrap iron business.

The girl, who was found later by police, was Viola Bruno of 297 East 17th street. For some time, police said, Hoffman had been sending her letters seeking to arrange a meeting with her. Last night she was returning home when Hoffman accosted her and, when she fled, ran after her. An unidentified man ended the chase by firing six shots at Hoffman, all taking effect in the chest.

Police questioned Viola and her parents, Anthony and Mrs. Henrietta Bruno. All denied knowing the slayer. Police believe a friend of the family, resenting Hoffman's undesired advances, had kept vigil at the home to protect her.

LAKE FOREST IS GOING TO HAVE NO MORE OF THIS

Lake Forest's city council last night considered a letter from Mrs. Francis Beidler, 20 South Stonegate road, who is looking ahead to the next bathing season on the north shore.

Mrs. Beidler related that numerous persons not residents of Lake Forest had visited the beach near her home last summer and had annoyed her and her family and guests by disrobing there. She suggested that if the council approved she would plant barberry bushes on city property to shut off the view.

The council recommended that Mayor A. D. Farwell have the city clerk write to Mrs. Beidler that it was not considered wise to set the precedent of allowing private planting on public ground, but to assure her that next year the Lake Forest police would stop the unseemly sights on the beach. Mayor Farwell gave the order.

CARPENTERS SIGN NEW WAGE PACT, ENDING OPEN SHOP

After three months of controversy the mill work carpenters, who number more than 3,000 in normal times, began work yesterday under a new agreement with the Mill Work and Cabinet Manufacturers' association. The agreement was reached through the intercession of the Building Construction Employers' association, of which E. M. Craig is executive secretary. It brings to an end the open shop declared by the manufacturers after a failure to reach an agreement last August.

Under the new agreement, which is to be operative for five years, subject to change by negotiation, wages will be fixed at 65 cents an hour—15 per cent above the average for such work in the area within a 500 mile radius of Chicago. The old scale was $1 an hour. The new agreement also provides for a five day week.

BULLET VICTIM FOUND IN ROAD; BLAME GANG RIDE

The body of an unidentified man about 45 years old, apparently the victim of a gangland ride, was found late last night at 174th street and Burnham avenue, Lansing, near the southern end of Cook county.

Three bullets had been fired at close range into the man's head. Sergt. Thomas Straus of the Lansing police, who saw the body lying in the roadway, and County Highway Policeman John Orgel searched along the roadway and found a suitcase filled with clothing in a clump of weeds about 50 yards away. There was no marks on any of the articles it contained, nor on the suit and overcoat the slain man wore, to indicate identity.

The victim was about 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighed 160 pounds.

Allan Pinkerton Estate Transfer Tax Is $36,228

Riverhead, L. I., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Surrogate Robert S. Pelletreau has entered a decree in Suffolk county Surrogate's court here levying a state transfer tax of $36,228 on the estate of Allan Pinkerton of Manhattan, member of the family of detectives and a summer resident of Islip. The estate was appraised at $1,087,616 gross and $1,040,515 net, which goes to Robert A. Pinkerton, a son.

MAYOR CLASHES WITH SWANSON AS DRIVE ENDS

"The state's attorney openly drove about the streets of Chicago on last primary day, accompanied by a known hoodlum. Hoodlums have repeatedly been arrested with Mr. Swanson's campaign banners on their automobiles. Will not the public agree with me that it is high time to use the Chicago police force to protect its citizens against the incursion of thugs and murderers and racketeers?"

The charges of State's Attorney Swanson had been made in a statement issued earlier in the day.

Fears Frauds at Polls.

"With defeat for their catspaw, Courtney, staring them in the face, Emperor Cermak and Judge Harry Fisher, prime minister, have made a last desperate move in their effort to steal the election," Mr. Swanson stated.

"Despairing of getting enough people to cast their ballots for Courtney to make even a respectable showing in the election, and determined to steal enough votes from John Northup and myself to enable them to gain control of the attorney general's and the state's attorney's office, so that Cermak, with his material companies, and Fisher, with his receiverships, may be immune from investigation and prosecution, they have taken away my police officers.

"While I expect to have 50,000 votes stolen from Northup and myself, in spite of all that can be done, I am mobilizing a group of citizens under Chief Investigator Pat Roche to guard against election frauds."

Stransky Joins in Attack.

Franklin J. Stransky, chairman of the Republican state committee, joined in the attack on Mayor Cermak.

"Mayor Cermak," he said, "has proved every word we have said about him in this campaign by withdrawing police from State's Attorney Swanson's office. No one except a man of unlimited power could do such a thing and no one except a political despot would do it.

"We have realized all along how handicapped we will be tomorrow in trying to make this an honest election because of Cermak's power over local officialdom, including the election machinery. We had counted on State's Attorney Swanson's police as one of the greatest protections against wholesale vote frauds."

Promises Clean Election.

Police Commissioner Allman joined Mayor Cermak in the prediction that the election today will be the cleanest in Chicago's history.

"All polls will be manned," he said, "notwithstanding that the department is 450 men short due to failure to make replacements of personnel during the last two years. With our radio squad cars we can answer any complaint within two minutes, and I wish to request that any person who has a complaint of an election violation which comes within the province of the police to correct will call Police 1313.

"To man these squad cars and also to man properly the polling places I found it necessary to use every man in the department regardless of his previous assignment."

The 330 police squads will be the "trouble shooters" of the regular machinery organized by County Judge Jarecki to combat fraud and violence at the polls. In addition to regular detectives they will have assigned to them 300 men who have passed civil service examinations for the police force but have not yet been employed.

50,000 Watchers on Duty.

The 5,000 police, 1,000 investigators for the election commission and 1,000 citizens recruited by the Voters' Nonpartisan league will be in the battle against election crime. Behind them will be 50,000 watchers for whom credentials have been obtained by political parties or individual candidates.

Judge Jarecki will spend the day in the offices of the election board to hear the cases of election violators as soon as they are brought before him. With him will be a staff of attorneys. William Froelich, first assistant United States district attorney, will take charge of violators of federal election statutes.

Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court also will be in his courtroom all day to hear any applications which may be made for writs of habeas corpus in election cases. Members of the November grand jury, which was sworn in yesterday, were excused for today but will be subject to telephone summonses, and Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Spiro, in charge of the grand jury, has been instructed by Mr. Swanson to be on duty.

Attacks Crime Commission Indorsement of Courtney

The Chicago crime commission's indorsement of Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, was attacked yesterday as having been "pushed through" at a meeting of the board of directors of the commission for which insufficient notice was given and which was attended by less than one-third of the 85 directors.

Edwin Sims, former president of the crime commission, made these charges. He declared that many members of the board of directors were dissatisfied with the indorsement. These members, Mr. Sims said, are in favor of the reelection of State's Attorney Swanson.

Frank J. Loesch, president of the commission, vigorously denied the accusations. He said the matter of indorsing Courtney had been considered at three meetings of the board of directors. He admitted that only 18 members of the board were present at the final meeting, but declared that this was an exceedingly large number to get together at such a meeting.

"Given Notice of Meeting."

"Mr. Sims was not present at the meetings, but he had notice of them," said Mr. Loesch. "Moreover, the minutes of each meeting were sent to each director, so that all had an opportunity to know that the matter of indorsing the candidate for state's attorney was being considered."

Mr. Sims said he understood that only 17 directors were present.

"The indorsement was a matter of general policy which called for a meeting of the full membership of the board," he asserted. "Hardly any notice of the meeting was given and the indorsement does not represent the sentiment of the majority of the members of the commission. They feel that State's Attorney Swanson, on his record, should be reelected."

A number of members of the board of directors were interviewed concerning the indorsement. Most of them admitted they had not been at the meeting and said they did not wish to express an opinion on the indorsement because of that fact. Others asserted that the indorsement represented the unanimous opinion of the board.

Bar Gets Swanson Letter.

State's Attorney Swanson's letter to Charles P. Megan, president of the Bar association, asking that the association inquire into the action of Judge Harry M. Fisher in connection with the recent charges against the state's attorney's office, arrived at the association offices yesterday. Mr. Megan said that no reply would be made public before the election.

Judge Fisher was termed by the state's attorney in the letter as "the instigator and guiding spirit" of the charges made by Herman J. Goldberg, convicted tax fixer, that Albert Swanson, brother of the state's attorney, and Assistant State's Attorney James Clancy had been paid by Goldberg to reduce taxes. The charges were proved to be false and Goldberg was indicted on a charge of perjury.

"The letter has been received," said Mr. Megan. "There will be no immediate reply."

Meanwhile, the search continued for Goldberg, who disappeared after his indictment.

BRITAIN RAISES TARIFF AGAINST IRISH EXPORTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A renewed offensive in the tariff war between England and the Irish Free State was launched tonight. Effective on Wednesday morning—thus giving only 24 hours' notice—there will be an increase of British duties on imports ranging from 10 to 20 per cent.

Live animals for food and for breeding in Britain, together with Irish horses, are assessed an ad valorem duty of 40 per cent. Butter, eggs, cream, bacon, pork, poultry, game, and other meats, or, in other words, the rest of the Free State's list of exports, will be assessed at 30 per cent after Wednesday.

The original rate of 20 per cent was fixed to recover the land annuities, which the Free State withheld. The general effect of the new list will be to raise most of the Free State produce to the 40 per cent level, since it will not enjoy the dominion 10 per cent preference after a week from tomorrow. This is due to the fact that the Free State is not a party to the Ottawa agreements.

COURTNEY AND SWANSON WIND UP CAMPAIGNS

Prosecutor Denounces His Foes' Attack.

John A. Swanson and Thomas J. Courtney, the principal figures in the county campaign, in which their rivalry for the powerful office of state's attorney overshadowed all other county contests, ended their race yesterday in final bursts of oratory.

State's Attorney Swanson, a former circuit judge and former state senator, and now the Republican candidate to succeed himself, finished his series of speeches with a bitter denunciation of those he held responsible for the charges against his office which were held by the grand jury to be unfounded.

Courtney, the Democratic candidate, now a state senator, wound up his appeals for votes with pledges of stern prosecution of gangsters, racketeers, and other criminals.

Urge "Straight Tickets."

Swanson was the headliner at the Erlanger theater at a noonday meeting; Courtney was the chief speaker at the Apollo theater. Republican candidates asked for votes for themselves and their running mates, urged the audience to "vote the ticket straight" without mention of the name of Hoover or Small. The Democrats whooped it up for Gov. Roosevelt and Judge Horner as well as themselves and likewise advised: "Vote the ticket straight—Democratic."

Swanson recalled the campaign tactics used against him, one of which was a charge of bribery against a clerk in his office by an accuser who could not be found and whose given address proved to be a vacant lot. The other incident was an accusation made by Herman J. Goldberg, who is under conviction for tax fixing and who was indicted for perjury because of the testimony he gave the grand jury concerning his charges against Albert Swanson, brother of the prosecutor, and Assistant State's Attorney James Clancy.

Swanson Blames Judge Fisher.

"Judge Harry Fisher is the man responsible for those despicable attacks," Swanson said. "His was the hand and mind that guided the long eared Robert Isham Randolph, Jamie, the boy detective, and Shirley Kub."

Others who joined with Swanson in the windup meeting were Thomas O. Wallace, candidate for reelection as clerk of the Circuit court; Jacob Allen, candidate for clerk of the Superior court; John E. Northup, candidate for attorney general, and Julius Klein, candidate for congress at large.

Around the corner the Democratic speakers were winding up their campaign. Principally they were singing the praises of Courtney, declaring he "is destined to be Cook county's greatest prosecutor." Success was predicted for the entire Democratic ticket and promises were given of the best of administration and a return of prosperity and beer.

HOOVER VICTORY SURE, IS FINAL G. O. P. FORECAST

Sanders Says Nation Is Standing by President.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

"This election is 'in the bag' for Hoover," was the final forecast sent out by Republican national headquarters in the Palmer house in winding up the campaign last night. Everett Sanders, national chairman, put forth a statement reading:

"Victory is in the air at Republican headquarters. Congratulations have been pouring in all day from every section of the country. We are going to win—decisively.

"There is no guessing in our estimate of this election. By way of illustration of the tremendous uprising of Republican sentiment aroused by the President's fighting campaign in the last month: After our supplies had been completely exhausted and all normally anticipated demands had been cared for, we received an avalanche of requests for every type of campaign material.

He Cites Other Evidence.

"In the last ten days alone we could have placed in circulation millions of pieces of literature. There were demands for 25 million more buttons than we had available. The volume of requests for posters of President Hoover broke all records last week.

"Millions of voters are fighting for Hoover. Much of the renewed sentiment has occurred in the last fifteen days. It began with the Des Moines speech a month ago. Wires pouring in from over the country today and yesterday from close observers are convincing. We are going to win."

Party leaders in the speakers' bureau put out another claim of a "stampede to Hoover," and supplemented it with a "balance sheet" of assets and liabilities.

Hoover Assets Listed.

This statement, which was the final word from the Republican national committee on the outlook, listed Hoover "assets" as follows:

"Financial interests—Officials and employés of banks, trust companies, insurance companies, and their allied institutions with their millions of depositors, policy holders and security owners are aggressively for Hoover because of his constructive work that prevented the nation from going off the gold standard with resultant chaos.

"Industrialists and manufacturers—Millions of dollars in orders for raw materials have been placed contingent upon the election of Hoover. Large employers of labor openly declare that tinkering with tariff schedules as proposed by the Democratic party will prolong the depression eighteen months or more. They want Hoover.

"Business leaders—This big vote will go to Hoover because wholesalers and retailers are convinced the only road back to a trade revival lies in the carrying out of the business policies outlined by the administration and translated into action through the President's constructive statesmanship in setting up the tremendous organizations to stabilize business.

"Wage earners—Little has been heard in this campaign about the 30,000,000 men and women who are gainfully employed. Workers are convinced that the security of their jobs is dependent upon the reelection of President Hoover. Employés usually follow the course mapped out by employers, even when selfish interest is not involved, as it is in this crisis.

"Farmers—The great majority of the farm vote will go to Hoover because of the untiring effort of the President to bring relief. The threat of a reduced tariff on farm products under Democratic rule has convinced agriculturists the only hope of increased prices is the retaining of the Republican party in power. The farmer Republican takes his politics seriously, and in this campaign will remain regular.

"Racial groups—The colored vote, loyal to the traditions of Lincoln, will vote the Republican ticket as a unit. The Polish and Slavic vote will go to Hoover in gratitude for his relief measures. The German vote has not forgotten the moratorium or that Wilson did not 'keep us out of war.' The Jewish vote has swung to Hoover to lead the way back to prosperity. The Italian vote goes to Hoover because of the recognition given by Republicans to this race at all times.

"Women—In practically every Democratic poll the votes of four times as many men as women are recorded. This does not give an accurate forecast of the political strength of the women, a majority of whom are leading the fight for President Hoover. The women were with Hoover in 1928 and they will remain loyal and true.

"Railroad men—Those who realize that Hoover has prevented a repetition of receiverships that characterized previous depressions will express their gratitude at the polls."

On the other side of the "balance sheet" the Republicans listed Tammany Hall, radicalism, Wilson Democrats, led by McAdoo, and Wall street, "where fake securities have been unloaded by the millions without the interference of the governor of New York in enforcing the laws of his own state."

OFFERS TO BET FARM, 2 COWS ON ROOSEVELT

Greensboro, Ga., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Two men, who proposed to bet Henry Ford a 201 acre farm against a model V-8 Ford automobile that Franklin D. Roosevelt would be elected President, have increased the odds by offering a milk cow and a calf.

The men, Carey Williams and J. B. Winslett, some time ago advised the Detroit automobile manufacturer of their offer by telegraph. Now they have sent him another telegram:

"Offer of 201 acre Green county, Georgia, farm against model V-8 Ford that Roosevelt will be elected Nov. 8 still open. Willing to increase odds by including one milk cow named Prosperity with heifer named Moratorium."

They said they had not heard from Mr. Ford.

FARLEY PREDICTS IT'S LANDSLIDE FOR ROOSEVELT

Says Democrats Must Make Pledges Good.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, declared in a radio address tonight that not only will Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt be elected President by a landslide of votes but that Democratic state, congressional, and local candidates will be swept into office throughout the country. He assailed President Hoover, asserting:

"Election of President Hoover, if such a thing were possible, would amount to a statement by the people of America that they were altogether indifferent to the acts and omissions of the government. It would be like writing a blank check.

People Mean Business.

"The defeat of President Hoover and the election of Gov. Roosevelt will be a challenge to the Democratic party and its leaders to make good their promises. For every Democrat then will know that the people mean business and that failure to perform inevitably will be followed by defeat."

In attacking the Republican stand on prohibition he said:

"He [Hoover] abandoned the plank he himself had written and penned the more liberal but still evasive language of his acceptance speech."

Warns He Might Change Again.

"No reliance whatever can be placed on the permanence of the President's convictions. If within a month he was willing to change from the position taken in the platform to the position taken in the acceptance speech, within another month he may change backwards or forwards again and no one can predict the direction or extent of his change without knowing in advance what popular sentiment is likely to be."

OAK PARK VOTES ON CANDIDATES FOR COURT TODAY

Attorney General Carlstrom yesterday advised voters of Oak Park that they have the legal right to vote today for a judge and clerk of the newly created Municipal court in the village. He held, in a letter to Thomas W. Barrett, one of the candidates for judge, that the voter may write in the titles of the offices, the name of their chosen candidate, and cast a legal vote by making a cross opposite the written name.

The voters of Oak Park created the Municipal court in the election of April 12, 1932. Under the law, Attorney General Carlstrom held, the village officials are required to hold the election for judge and clerk at the next general or municipal election.

After the court had been voted into being and an ordinance adopted in June providing for one judge and one clerk the village board decided not to place the offices on the ballot for the present election. A writ of mandamus to force them to hold the election was filed in the Superior court, and Judge Walter T. Stanton ruled that the judge and clerk should be elected. The village board appealed and did not print ballots for the court positions. Attorney General Carlstrom then ruled that the voters might write in the names of candidates.

Barrett, a former prosecuting attorney for the village, and J. Edward Jones have filed petitions as candidates for judge, and Henry P. Lawrence and J. Fred Rice are candidates for clerk.

Set New Trial Argument for Convicted Woman

Motion for a new trial in behalf of Miss Katherine V. Carroll, 34 years old, 841 Roscoe street, who was convicted of embezzlement last week, was continued yesterday until Nov. 18 by Judge John J. Sullivan in the Criminal court.

Guide on Congress Candidates

For the information of voters THE TRIBUNE herewith presents the recommendations of the Crusaders and of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures on major party candidates for congress, both senate and house, in Illinois.

Repeal of prohibition and governmental economy were the two predominant issues on which the two organizations based their indorsements. Questionnaires were sent to the candidates. The Crusaders asked how each one stood on repeal of the 18th amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead act, two measures of immediate import in the next congress.

The N. O. R. P. E. inquired how each candidate stood on the paramount economic issue of reducing cost of government, pruning bureaucracy, and cutting the tax burden.

Names of Illinois candidates indorsed by both organizations appear in large letters.

In most of these districts there are additional candidates who failed to receive the indorsement of the Legislative Voters' league. Some of them are indorsed by the Crusaders.

COUNTY LEADERS PREDICT SWEEP FOR DEMOCRACY

The Democratic county leaders, Clayton F. Smith, chairman of the managing committee, and Patrick A. Nash, chairman of the county central committee, joined last night in predicting "an avalanche" of Democratic votes today.

"We will roll up a great majority for Franklin D. Roosevelt in Illinois," said Smith, "name at least 20 of the 29 members of the national house of representatives who are to be elected, obtain control of the state legislature, and elect every man on our state and county tickets. The majorities for the county candidates will be over the 500,000 mark, and some may approach the seven figure."

Mr. Nash sent out a final warning to precinct captains. "We are keeping records of the vote cast in every precinct for every candidate on the ticket," he said, "and where there are any wide discrepancies which the precinct captains cannot explain satisfactorily they will be replaced. We are telling them that the only safe thing to do is to put a cross in the Democratic circles, both at the head of the regular ticket and at the head of the Municipal court ticket."

HOOVER'S SON ON AIR; REPLIES TO ROOSEVELT PLEA

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Eugene Erckenbrack, a University of Washington student and operator of amateur radio station W7VY, has been campaigning over the air the last few weeks, he says, for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Opening a broadcast last night with his "Vote for Roosevelt" plea, he then signed off to pick up replies, arguments—and maybe converts.

Within a few minutes, in came station W6ZH of Palo Alto, Cal., and Erckenbrack began his argument.

His listener broke in and suggested: "You better look up my name in the call book."

Erckenbrack did. He found it listed to Herbert Hoover Jr.

14 Nationalists in Ulster Diet Vote to Snub Wales

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The 14 nationalists in the Ulster parliament issued a manifesto today declining to participate in the coming welcome to the prince of Wales, who will arrive soon to open the new parliament house here. "As Irishmen we resent mutilation of our country," the manifesto said. "It is appropriate, therefore, that we of the 6 counties in the Alsace-Lorraine of Ireland, protest and reiterate our demand for self-government for a united Ireland."

ILLINOIS WOMAN, 107, WILL CAST VOTE FOR PRESIDENT HOOVER

Lincoln and Hoover.

Geneseo, Ill., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Alexander Murphy, who will be 98 next month, will cast an absent voter's ballot tomorrow for Herbert Hoover. Mr. Murphy's home is in Geneseo, but he is visiting a daughter in Freeport. He has always been a Republican and voted twice for Abraham Lincoln.

Two Other Near Centenarians.

Norwalk, Conn., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The Rev. Augustus F. Beard, 99 years old, oldest living Congregational minister, and his brother, Edward Beard, 95, will go to the polls tomorrow and vote the Republican ticket. Dr. Beard, the oldest living Yale graduate, cast his first vote in 1850 for John C. Fremont. His brother, who is president of the South Norwalk Savings bank, cast his first vote for Lincoln in 1860.

ALTERIE SHOOTS 2 IN QUARREL; ONE IS BEATEN

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Louis [Diamond Jack] Alterie, Chicago police character and former henchman of the late Dion O'Banion, was held in jail here tonight charged with shooting two men and beating another.

George Barr of Grand Junction, Colo., and Marc Waynick of Denver, salesmen, were both shot in the legs, police said, in an altercation with Alterie, and Chuck Meehan, hotel clerk, was beaten over the head with a pistol. Officers said Alterie had been drinking.

Police said Alterie previously had engaged in a fist fight with one "Whitey" Hutton, a pugilist of Grand Junction, in the afternoon and come off decidedly second best.

After the shooting Alterie returned to his room, where he surrendered peaceably to Sheriff G. L. Winters.

Alterie was formerly president of the Janitors' union in Chicago. Lately he has operated a dude ranch near here. Recently he was acquitted of federal charges of conspiracy in connection with a Chicago kidnaping ring.

COOLIDGE MAKES FINAL APPEAL IN HOOVER BEHALF

Says He Should Be Chosen for Good of World.

Northampton, Mass., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Former President Calvin Coolidge tonight from his home here broadcast his final appeal to the voters of the nation to reëlect President Hoover.

"For nearly twenty years," he said, "our President Herbert Hoover, has been serving our country and the world." If five Americans were to be chosen to "devise remedies for the present condition of the nation," Mr. Coolidge declared, "Herbert Hoover would head the list.

"From what I know of the requirements of the presidential office I have no hesitation in saying President Hoover should be retained for the good of our country and the world."

Text of the Address.

The text of the Coolidge speech follows:

"My fellow citizens: The campaign for the election of all the members of the house and one-third of the members of the senate, exclusive of vacancies, of the national congress, and of the President of the United States is drawing to a close. For months now you have listened to the appeals of the various candidates and their supporters, you have read campaign literature and newspaper articles setting forth the claims and expounding the platform of the political parties asking for your votes.

"Such a nation-wide campaign requires the expenditure of a great deal of effort and money which the importance of the event fully justifies. It is a course of education which we all need to take to qualify ourselves to cast an intelligent ballot. We not only need such a public review of the record of our office holders and their conduct of our government once in four years, but it is highly desirable that we give careful consideration to the proposals that are made by all candidates for the preservation of our liberties, the promotion of our general welfare and the conscientious discharge of our individual duties as citizens of this great republic.

Power Rests in Ballots.

"Our institutions are founded upon the deepest faith in the common sense and integrity of the great body of our citizens. We have been given the high privilege of self-government not only that we might protect ourselves but that we might support and protect our country and do justice to our fellow citizens. Persons with ballots in their hands are endowed with arbitrary and unlimited power. Unless this power is exercised widely and intelligently it will result not only in their own destruction but in the destruction of their fellow countrymen, and in a country so vast and important as the United States the evil effects would be world-wide.

"Since the franchise confers upon us all the responsibility of a public trusteeship for the promotion of the general welfare of all the people it is evident that we have before us two duties to perform. Our first important duty is to determine by investigation and self-education what the public welfare requires. That process has been going on for many weeks. It needs a careful thought and study. The business of the United States government is very intricate and involved. It cannot be brought within the comprehension of a single address or begin to be understood without long contemplation.

Must Depend on Leaders.

"Very few could claim to understand it in its entirety and many of us have time only to consider its broader outlines. We have to entrust ourselves somewhat to expert leaders. It is the same common sense process that we employ in our every day lives. If we want something done which we have neither the time nor the skill to do ourselves we pick out the best informed persons that we can find in that particular line and employ them to do it for us. It is because of this method which characterizes an advanced civilization that we have professional men and women who by their studies and experience have qualified themselves to solve certain problems for us, whether they involve our health, our business, or our legal rights.

"We may know little about medicine or banking or law, but fortunately all of us have a highly accurate judgment concerning the ability and character of our fellow citizens. We know whom we can trust to serve us faithfully in meeting any difficulty in which we are involved. That is why representative government can be a success.

Cannot Deceive Public.

"Now the administration of high public office is just as much a profession, needing just as much training, skill and experience as any of the learned professions of law, medicine, or theology. The public cannot be deceived for long in their estimate of candidates. They can tell very quickly who are candid, sincere and conscientious in the discharge of public office and in the appeal which they make to the voters for support.

"But all the effort and expense involved in a campaign of education and all the thought and study of the voter would be of little avail unless it is put into practical operation by casting a ballot on election day. That is the second great duty of citizens. They can be sure that every person with a selfish interest and every person filled with prejudice or misconceived resentment will not fail to vote, but if self government is to be a success it will be solely because the people of judgment and discretion, who put the welfare of their country first, who want to see it well conducted, register their mature second thought at the polls. In no other way is it possible to secure the benefit of the sound common sense of the nation. Without the support of the people of that type there would be no such thing as public integrity.

Worth More than Money.

"In this campaign we have heard a great deal of discussion about our material welfare. That is natural and proper because the prosperity of the people is always important, but there are other things which are even more important. Those who signed the Declaration of Independence pledged their fortunes, their lives and their sacred honor to the defense of certain principles of human relationship. Those who saved our federal Union from destruction did so because they believed that freedom and justice were of more value than money. Those who offered all our man power and wealth on the altar of our country for the preservation and advancement of world liberty were seeking for something higher than material gains.

"No great question has ever been decided by the people of this nation on the sole basis of dollars and cents. When the American people make a major decision like the election of a President they do not offer themselves to the highest bidder but seek to determine conscientiously what justice and true patriotism require them to do. In all our history we have never deserted our President because we were not making money. We have always stood by him in a crisis with little regard for party preferences.

Would Apply Common Sense.

"It seems to be time for us to apply those simple common sense principles of every day life so easily understood which after all are adequate to show us our duties, protect our liberties and provide us with sound government. Most of us believe thoroughly in our long established and unusually successful American institutions. We want them preserved and we want to do what is best for our country. We must choose some one to lead us and stand at the head of our national government. The world has been going through the greatest economic crisis in all history. We may be somewhat confused by the discussion of the tariff, reconstruction, farm relief, care of the unemployed, deflation, the gold standard, and many other issues that have come into the campaign.

"Who is the man we can most safely trust to solve those problems for us? Our situation is too serious for us to consider employing a personal favorite or any one because he smiles at us and entertains us. We must have some one who can work for us, some one who knows how. We know we cannot have perfection in this world but we want the best we can get. Promises and good intentions are not enough. We cannot afford rash experiments.

Hoover Stands Forth.

"When the times have called for a man some one has stood forth. Such is the case now.

"For nearly twenty years our President, Herbert Hoover, has been serving our country and the world. Measured by accomplishments, he holds commanding rank. If five Americans were to be selected today to devise remedies for the present condition of the nation, Herbert Hoover would head the list. The name of no other presidential candidate would be considered. If ten international figures were to be selected today to devise remedies for the present condition of the world, Herbert Hoover would be one of them. The name of no other presidential candidate would be considered.

"Can there be any doubt where our interests and our duties lie? We need to continue President Hoover in office because at all times he will safeguard our institutions. No other candidate proposes to do that. We need President Hoover because he has demonstrated by his acts and public statements that he has a clear understanding of present economic conditions and has put into operation a program and made explicit proposals for relief which are already in successful operation. No other candidate has done that. We need President Hoover because as the great exponent of public integrity he has the faith and courage to meet every question squarely without evasion. No other candidate does that.

Reëlect Hoover, He Urges.

"All the teachings of common sense require us to reëlect President Hoover.

"It was natural at the outset of this campaign for some people who had not studied the situation to hope that some critic of President Hoover might show them a short and easy way out of the present world difficulties. They now know that no one has and no one can show any such way. We shall recover by the long, slow process of working, saving, and paying our debts. Meantime we shall do what we can to relieve want, protect public and private credit, encourage industry and agriculture, and cooperate in the reëstablishment of the normal flow of trade.

"That is the policy of President Hoover. As the campaign has progressed, people have become more and more convinced that he is right. The vagueness and weakness of the proposals and claims of the opposition have become more and more apparent as the strength and soundness of what President Hoover has done and proposed have been revealed. The more we have learned of his record in office, the more we have realized his grasp of affairs, the stronger has become our determination to support him for reëlection.

Would Retain Hoover.

"I have taken this opportunity to speak because I want my countrymen to know what I think ought to be done. From what I know of the requirements of the presidential office I have no hesitation in saying President Hoover should be retained for the good of our country and the world. It is not the spirit of the American people when the captain of their ship has guided them through a storm and is approaching a safe harbor to discharge him and then claim that the storm was created by him. Nor are they accustomed to disregard their duties and repudiate their obligations.

"Their courage is too great, their moral fiber is too strong to follow those who seek to tempt them with any such suggestions. From my knowledge of President Hoover, after sitting at the cabinet table with him for eight years, after considering the difficulties he has encountered and the policies he has proposed, I believe that he is the best man for us to entrust with the presidency in this great emergency."

President Hoover Urges Every One to Vote in Final Campaign Speech

On Board Presidential Special at Elko, Nev., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Following is the text of President Hoover's election eve radio address from the parlor car of his train here:

"I am speaking this last word of the campaign from the train en route to my home to vote.

"We have been through an arduous campaign. It has been almost unique as a campaign of education in great domestic and international problems which have arisen out of events of the last 15 years.

"I have endeavored to place these problems before the people as I see them from the facts and experience that have come to me in the past years. I wished the people to realize more intimately the difficulties with which the government has been confronted, the disasters which have been averted, and the forces which have been mobilized for their support and protection.

Recalls Protective Measures.

"I hope from these discussions they will realize the great crisis we have successfully passed and the unprecedented measures taken which have been designed solely that we might protect and restore the system of life and government endeared to us over 150 years—that we would otherwise have wrecked our homes and our firesides.

"But more than that, I hope I have given an understanding that these measures have been designed for counter attack upon this crisis. These measures are now demonstrating their strength and effectiveness not only at home but abroad. Evidences are multiplying throughout the country in the return of more than half a million men to work monthly that we have again resumed the road toward prosperity.

Urges All to Vote.

"I wish to emphasize the greatest function of the American citizen, the one which each of us should perform tomorrow. The ballot is the most sacred individual act which preserves the great system of self-government which we have inherited and should carry forward at any cost. It is a direct opportunity for every man and woman to express their views in terms of equality with every other citizen as to the policies and kind of government they wish to carry out in the next four years.

"And I have a deep feeling that the choice you make now is more than the choice for another four years. There is great divergence in philosophy of government between the parties which may affect events over a generation. A mistaken choice may hazard the welfare of our children and our children's children.

"I have been fighting that the wrong course may not be adopted—not by appeal to destructive emotion, but by truth and logic. I have tried to dissolve the mirage of promises by the reality of facts.

Lauds Party Government.

"I am a believer in party government. It is only through party organization that our people can give coherent expression to their views upon great issues. There is no other way except by revolution, and we in America have ordained that the ballot shall be used for peaceful determination, not violence.

"We are a nation of progressives. We wish to see our nation march forward. We differ strongly as to the method to progress. I differ with the principles and views advocated by our opponents, but it is not my purpose to review them at this moment. I feel deeply that the Republican party has been the party of progress in our history from the day of Abraham Lincoln. It has built the progress of the nation upon the foundation of national principles and national ideals.

"We are a nation of homes from which the accomplishment of individuals is nurtured by the maximum freedom in an ordered liberty. The ultimate goal of our progress is to build for security and happiness in these homes where the inspiration of our religious faiths will implant in our children those principles of social order and idealism and where our government will contribute in safeguarding their future opportunity for them.

Points to Work of Women.

"The action of our nation has been modified and benefited by the enfranchisement of our women. They, equally with the men, bear the shocks from economic disaster. With them lies largely the guardianship of the fundamental ideals because, concentrated in their lives and their responsibilities, is a solicitude for the preservation of the home and the inspiration for the future of our children. And in these labors our government can contribute to strengthen their accomplishment and their influence.

"They give with lavish hands not only to childhood but as well to the creation of those conserving customs upon which are builded all the blessings of our ordered government. Thus they give to government a large measure of the true strength of its foundations. It is but just that they receive back, in return, all that government can give them to assure them of security and the enlargement of their equal opportunity to widen the field for the use of their powers of mind and spirit.

"It is they who are mobilizing new public regard to our obligations to home and children of the future; it is they who are mobilizing public opinion on the maintenance of peace in the world.

Must Decide on Leader.

"The immediate question before our country is, in whose direction should be the measures by which we shall emerge from our present difficulties? In the longer view our problems are the questions that the world should have peace, that the prosperity of the nation shall be diffused to all, that we shall build more strongly the ideal of equal opportunity for all our people, that we shall secure that obedience to law which is essential to assurance of life in our institutions, that honesty and righteousness in business shall confirm the confidence of our people in their institutions and laws, that our government shall contribute to leadership in these matters.

"It is my deep conviction that for the welfare of the United States the Republican party should continue to administer the government. Those men and women who have supported the party over these many years should not be led astray by false gods arrayed in the rainbow colors of promises. They have but to review the performance and the sense of responsibility, the constructive action, the maintenance of national ideals by the Republican party in every national crisis, including the present, in opposition to the destructive forces of sectional and group action of our opponents.

Points to Solemnity of Day.

"Election day is more than a day set for casting of our several ballots. There is a solemnity in the feeling of that day, the sense of being in the presence of a great invisible power when the united people of a nation give their final judgment on great issues. We cannot feel that any human power alone can give us such emotions; rather we must trust that we are sensing the movements of the ruler of the universe in whose beneficence and favor we have been blessed through all our history.

"As a final word I wish to convey my deep gratitude to the many hundreds of thousands of people who have come to stations and to meetings to welcome and encourage me during the last month and to the many millions who have responded to me over the radio. I wish to express my gratitude to the young men and women who have organized their special movement to my support, for in them lies a special energy, an idealism which deserves and inspires the country, to the veterans' service leagues whose tested patriotism has supported me, to the devoted women who, realizing the results at stake, have worked untiringly for the return of this administration, and to the organizations of men throughout the country who have been unceasing through this campaign in their presentation to the American people of the principles and ideals for which I have stood.

Symbol of High Purpose.

"Four years ago I stated that I conceived the presidency as more than an administrative office. It is a power for leadership bringing coördination of the forces of business and cultural life in every city, town and countryside. The presidency is more than executive responsibility. It is the symbol of America's high purpose. The President must represent the nation's ideals, and he must also represent them to the nations of the world. After four years of experience I still regard this as a supreme obligation."

TROOPS MOBILIZED IN NEW MEXICO TO GUARD VOTING PLACES

Santa Fé, N. M., Nov. 7.—(AP)—National Guardsmen have been mobilized to patrol voting places of two New Mexico counties tomorrow.

Adjt. Gen. Osborne C. Wood announced tonight the action was taken in response to petitions sent to Gov. Arthur Seligman from the two counties, San Miguel and Sandoval.

Gov. Seligman said Saturday he had received requests from "several" counties for troops to guard the polling places, but declined to amplify the statement. Soon afterward federal officials revealed department of justice agents had been sent to this state to prevent violations of federal election laws.

Gen. Wood said a small detachment from the 111th cavalry troop at Clovis, N. M., had entrained for Las Vegas to watch voting in San Miguel county, and eight men were being sent from the Santa Fé troop of the 111th cavalry to Bernalillo, the county seat of Sandoval county.

Ask State Police Guard.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Warren Van Dyke, Democratic state chairman, tonight telegraphed Gov. Pinchot that "state police protection will be necessary in Allegheny county" election day. Henry Ellenbogen, Democratic candidate for congress, opposing Representative Harry A. Estep in the 33d district, also sent a message to the executive, saying "threats of violence and intimidation of voters are made openly, and only the presence of state police can guarantee a peaceful and honest election."

BOY KIDNAPED AFTER FATHER SELLS BUSINESS

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Paul Marciante, 10 years old and lame, whose father recently sold his business for $1,300 to go back to Italy, was kidnaped today while his aunt was taking him to school.

Police expressed the theory neighborhood roughs were holding the boy for ransom and started an intensive search of the district where he lived, an Italian section.

The aunt, Miss Mary Merino, said three men drove alongside them in an automobile. Two held her while the third seized the boy and all three then drove away. She struggled with one of the men, she said, and bit his hand severely. A crowd of school children also saw the abduction.

The boy's father, Vincenzo Marciante, described his business variously as a restaurant and a grocery store. Authorities said four arrests had been made there for liquor law violations.

The boy suffered a fractured right leg when he was struck by a speeding automobile, which did not stop, the night of Sept. 25. His leg still was in splints.

INSULL NERVOUS AND DEPRESSED; VISITORS BARRED

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Samuel Insull, who is detained in a hospital here awaiting extradition proceedings seeking his removal to Chicago to stand trial on indictments charging embezzlement and larceny, was forbidden today to receive any visitors, Prof. Logothetopolous, a specialist, found Insull in a nervous and depressed state and concluded he would have to have two or three days of solitude. The specialist said he would reëxamine the patient at the end of that time and decide on future treatment.

Premier Tsaldaris said today until Insull has been convicted of a crime the Greek government will not act on the presumption of his guilt.

"We do not know whether he is guilty or not," the premier said. "The only thing to do now is to leave the matter of extradition to Greek justice on the basis of the Greek treaty with America. For the time being Greece is responsible for him. Since he is ill we have ordered his transfer to a hospital where he will be well guarded."

CONVICTS BREAK GUARD'S ARM IN NEW PRISON RIOT

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7.—(AP)—A guard's arm was broken in another disturbance at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary on the island of Jesus today. Several inmates in the stone cutter's shop rushed the guard with a hammer.

Prisoners set fire to the tailor shop in the penitentiary last week, injuring several guards and inmates.

The guard was the tenth official of the penitentiary to be injured within the last four days. The disturbance was the fourth in Canadian penal institutions during the last three weeks.

SHERIFF ORDERS HIS DEPUTIES TO SEIZE 'DRAG' STAR

The "I Gotta Drag club" lost a veteran member yesterday. Sheriff Meyering ordered his deputies to seize a star from the expensive touring car owned by one Morris Cohen, who lives at the Flamingo hotel.

"No one has a legal right to carry a star on his car except police and members of legislature," said the sheriff. "And no one has any moral right to display one of these emblems in hopes of getting special privileges in traffic by being mistaken for a policeman. If this Mr. Cohen objects to surrendering his star, he will be prosecuted in the courts."

Mr. Cohen was found by a reporter at the Ritz garage, 5518 Lake Park avenue. At first he said he was an assistant city physician, but later admitted that he had no occupation.

HOOVER PAUSES ON TRIP WEST; TALKS TO NATION

Lauds Women's Place in America's History.

an adjoining hall and more thousands outside.

They must have been heartening cheers to the veteran senator. He had called for the help of a Hoover speech because things look bad for him. He is an apostle of the Mormon church, he is principal author of the Smoot-Hawley tariff act, and that appeals to a state where the chief industries are sugar beets, mining and live stock raising.

But somehow the voters, particularly the younger ones, have shown a decided preference for Elbert D. Thomas, the popular professor of political economy at the state university.

So it was that when President Hoover called Senator Smoot the dean of the United States senate, lauded him for a knowledge of the workings of the government "unparalleled by any other man in the country," and pronounced him a statesman who never "pandered to local interest when it conflicted with the interest of the nation as a whole," the usually lugubrious face of the senator broke into modest but happy smiles.

Appeals to Woman Vote.

But of perhaps more general political interest was Mr. Hoover's elucidation of the part he has taken and the part he intends to take—especially through the Kellogg treaty—to achieve world peace.

His political advisers have been telling him that there is a great silent vote ready to go to the polls for him. The women, they believe, are quietly for him.

So at St. Paul the President lauded woman's place in building the nation. At Denver last night he talked of the needs of the children. And today he promised that if he is reëlected the nation might be assured of another four years of leadership toward peace.

"I would be the last man in the world to say that war is never justified," said Herbert Hoover, the Quaker. "Many men of my own family have borne arms. I myself in the course of the world war repeatedly stated that I was prepared to serve my country in any capacity from that of laborer to that of soldier in the front line trenches. There are issues to defend which it is right that men, if need be, should sacrifice their lives."

Affects Foreign Policy.

But his experiences in the war and in dealing with the after effects of the war had borne in upon him with "ineradicable vividness the colossal error of war as an instrument of national policy" and "the futility of war as a solvent of great human problems."

He had therefore attempted to guide the nation's foreign policy so as to maintain peace with all nations. That, Mr. Hoover said, had been a major purpose throughout his administration.

"Even of more importance," he went on, "I have sought to do everything in my power to place the full weight of the moral strength of the American people behind every agency, existing or that can be devised, which has for its purpose the upbuilding of the spirit of peace in the world and the maintenance of peace amongst the nations."

"I have made but one reservation," the President said, "and that is we will join no movement that proposes to use military or economic force in its attempts to prevent war. For that is a contradiction of method."

Praises Kellogg Pact.

In glowing terms the President referred to the Kellogg pact, explaining that it had been strengthened "beyond even the scope visioned by its great proponent."

"Its force," he said, "is the force of mobilized public opinion of the world. That is the greatest force which the world can command."

He drew attention to his proposals for disarmament, then asserted:

"If it shall be the will of this nation that for another four years I shall continue to lead in the execution of their purposes, they may be assured, both by the pledge of past endeavor and by solemn pledge for future endeavor and by the further knowledge of my personal conviction and deep emotion on this subject, that for yet another four years this nation shall continue to advance in leadership toward the precious goal of world-wide and enduring peace."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7.—Repeal of the law which prohibits liquor exports from Canada to the United States was urged in parliament today by Col. S. C. Robinson, conservative, who has a big distillery in his constituency. He said Canada was losing $15,000,000 in excise revenue through this law. The government ignored his suggestion.

ONLY 17 AMERICANS IN PARIS HAVE CAST ABSENTEE BALLOTS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York News.]

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Though in Paris, the interest of Americans in tomorrow's presidential election is keener than it has been for any election since the war, only seventeen among thousands of eligible persons have cast absentee votes, according to consulate records. Only certain states permit absentee balloting. The ballots must be requested from home states which mail them here. After being filled out they must be registered at the consulate.

Elaborate plans are being made to listen to the election returns tomorrow night. Both local American papers will broadcast the results. Many restaurants and cabarets are making special arrangements to permit their clients to hear the returns.

Although there is no legal restriction prohibiting Chicagoans, who are in Europe or more distant countries, from voting providing they comply with all requirements, they are denied the privilege of casting ballots by a quirk in election arrangements, according to officials of the board of election commissioners. The situation as related to tomorrow's elections was explained by officials as follows:

"The last day for filing withdrawals with the election commissioners was Oct. 10. Consequently the printing of ballots could not be started until after that date. That meant that printed ballots would not be received by the election commissioners, probably, earlier than ten days before the election. That does not allow sufficient time for a ballot to be sent to an absentee voter in Europe and be returned to Chicago to be counted on election day with other ballots. A ballot sent to London in an election last year did not return in time to be counted."

JAMES SIMPSON JR. CALLS ON VOTERS TO USE BEST JUDGMENT

James Simpson Jr., Republican candidate for congress from the 10th district, gave out a statement last night urging the voters to exercise their best judgment at the polls today and promising, if he is elected, to work for the welfare of all citizens.

"Voting is the most sacred privilege and also the most sacred duty which falls upon our citizens," Mr. Simpson's statement said. "I beseech my fellow citizens of the 10th congressional district to exercise their most calm and thoughtful judgment in performing this duty. I shall accept gladly the result of their combined judgment.

"Should the men and women of the 10th district select me as their representative in congress I now pledge them to give the best of my ability and to work unceasingly for the welfare of all the people of the 10th district, the state, and our nation.

"I shall work with all my ability for a tariff and for an encouragement which will bring about quickly jobs for those out of work, both in industry and on the farm—and at an American wage; not the pay of peasants in Europe or of coolies in China.

"I shall work for a slash in cost of government; to carry out the already expressed wish of the people of this district for repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act—and shall keep in the district an office through which the people here may know what congress and their representative is doing."

GRIGSBY-GRUNOW DIRECTORS SUED FOR ACCOUNTING

B. J. Grigsby, William C. Grunow, and five other directors of the Grigsby-Grunow radio manufacturing company and of the Majestic Household Utilities corporation, electric refrigerator manufacturers, were charged with fraud yesterday in a bill filed in the Circuit court. The complainant, Joseph B. Kiefer of Lakewood, O., owner of 100 shares of Grigsby-Grunow stock, demanded an accounting of the directors' activities and payment of damages to the Grigsby-Grunow company.

The bill charges the directors used funds of the Grigsby-Grunow company to experiment with the electric refrigerator and to obtain patents. These patents and the right to use the name "Majestic" were sold to the utilities company for "a grossly inadequate price," the bill charged. The bill also charged that the stock of the new company was never offered to Grigsby-Grunow stockholders but was kept by the directors and a few of their friends. In all these acts, the bill charged, they were guilty of a breach of trust.

The defendants named with Grigsby and Grunow were A. C. Winnan, J. R. Cardwell, John Fletcher, C. L. Schmidt, and A. F. Mecklenburger.

CHEAT BUILDER OF HIS $2,500 IN CHARITY'S NAME

August Ciucci, of 2657 North Marshfield avenue, a building contractor, lost $2,500 yesterday to a pair of swindlers who posed as philanthropists. The two men approached him last week and said they owned several houses which they wished to remodel for the use of poor families. They asked Ciucci if he would repair the houses. He was agreeable.

The swindlers met him again yesterday and exhibited a package which they said contained $4,000 advance payment. First, however, they said, Ciucci must put up some money to prove his ability to carry out the work. Again Ciucci was agreeable.

He withdrew his $2,500 from a downtown bank, and joined the pair at Diversey and Marshfield avenues. One of the men suddenly complained of a headache. Would Mr. Ciucci get some headache tablets at the corner drug store? Ciucci was still agreeable, and he also consented to leave the two packages—his $2,500 and their supposed $4,000—while he went on the errand. When Ciucci returned men and money were gone.

MILLS INSISTS CHANGE WOULD PERIL RECOVERY

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, in a Republican campaign speech tonight asked American voters to take into consideration "the dangers incident to a change in policies at a time when the trend seems upward and there is ground for belief that the bottom of the depression has been passed."

THOMAS CLOSES HIS CAMPAIGN IN MILWAUKEE

Raps "Glorified Racketeering" of Old Parties.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Norman Thomas, the Socialist nominee for president, closed his campaign for the high office tonight in Milwaukee, the city where he was selected as the party's leader at the national convention several months ago.

It was the final rally of the party in Wisconsin. Delegates from every Socialist community were at the North Shore station to greet Thomas when he arrived on the 8:03 p. m. train, and to escort him to the Municipal auditorium.

In his talk, Thomas characterized the campaign just closing as "one of superficiality, invective, and ballyhoo." He denounced what he said was Republican coercion of industrial and business employés, and Democratic tactics which, he said, had prevented the Socialist ticket from being on the ballot in the three southern states of Oklahoma, Florida, and Louisiana.

Condemns Old Parties.

The campaigns of both of the old parties were described by him as "only wordy battling." The parties are divided "only by lust for office," he said.

His words were directed specifically to the workers. Thomas declared. He disclaimed any appeal to the bourgeoisie.

"If you belong to the comfortable, owning class you may perhaps with some logic vote for one or another of the old parties, which, by their skill in cajoling and coercing the masses may project for a little while longer their favored economic position and social prestige," he said. "Even so, you who have eyes for the future and love in your hearts for a civilization of security and peace, will rise above class interest and cast your vote tomorrow for socialism.

Glorified Racketeering.

"If you are a worker or a professional man who must find your reward and whatever security you hope to have in the fruits of honest work you will want this year to renounce the insanity of voting for a party which seeks to perpetuate the glorified racketeering which capitalism has become."

Thomas said we are living in a world where the right to use our natural resources and the splendid machinery we have had the wit to invent, makes it for the first time possible to conquer poverty and the reign of scarcity on which capitalism has flourished. "Our civilization should be based," he continued, "on an abundance of the good things of life—an abundance as equitably distributed as water in a well supplied city."

In the midst of the present plenty, he said, there exists an army of more than 13,000,000 unemployed and 200,000 youths, "vagabonds cruelly deprived of their homes by capitalism."

"The really significant thing is that neither of the old parties has any program to bring us out of this," Thomas said.

ASSERT GARNER LIBEL; ASK U. S. RADIO SCALP

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Ewell D. Moore and Phil Dodson, as attorneys for a group of Los Angeles citizens, tonight addressed the following telegram to the United States radio commission at Washington:

"Consider this a complaint against radio Station KNX of Los Angeles and the Rev. Stewart McLennan, pastor of First Presbyterian church of Hollywood, who in a broadcast over this station on Sunday, Nov. 6, charged that Speaker John Nance Garner was recently intoxicated in a café in Washington and chased the waitresses around the café.

"Said statements are clearly slanderous and untrue and contrary to public interest and convenience. On behalf of leading citizens of this community, this message is a protest against the renewal of any license for said station and to request that its present license be calceled."

GREETER GAW'S GLAD HAND IN SAD PLIGHT NOW

His left eye closed and his right greeting hand swathed in wet bandages and looking almost as large as a southern ham, City Greeter George D. Gaw was found as a patient in the Swedish Covenant hospital last night. He has been there since the morning of Oct. 30. Curiosity over his failure to meet visiting dignitaries during the last week prompted a search for him which eventually led to the hospital.

"Just a regrettable accident," explained Greeter Gaw, waving his good left hand and beaming pleasantly with his good right eye. Then he told the story of the accident.

He and his wife, he said, were guests at a Halloween costume party at the home of Nicholas Lavezzorio, 4726 North Maplewood avenue. Greeter Gaw was dressed as a pirate. As the party was about to break up, another guest noticed what appeared to be a fountain pen in Mr. Gaw's coat pocket.

"But it wasn't a fountain pen," said Greteer Gaw. "It was a gas gun. I exhibited it around, and started to put it back in my pocket. The trigger caught and the gun exploded in my hand. The flame burned my hand and the gas which was discharged closed my eye."

Four Milkmen Are Robbed of $164 by Three Bandits

Four milk wagon drivers, making their rounds yesterday morning on the west and south sides, were held up by three gunmen and robbed of a total of $164. The victims and the amounts taken from them were: James Hampe, 928 Elgin avenue, Forest Park, $30; William Mulford, 905 South Kedzie avenue, $24; Hugh Dawson, 7052 South Lincoln street, $60; and Ralph Cogmatellico, 6112 South Keeting avenue, $50.

HORNER FORCES DESTROY SMALL 11TH HOUR FRAUD

False Letter Is Used as an Attack.

Mayor A. J. Cermak last night denounced as forgeries a number of letters sent to downstate Democratic leaders bearing imitations of his signature and appearing on replicas of Democratic headquarter's stationery.

The bogus letters demanded immediate contributions under penalty of excluding the recipents from sharing "in the fruits of tomorrow's victory." Apparently they were sent broadcast throughout the state, as some of them were received in Egypt. The recipients immediately notified Bruce A. Campbell, state Democratic campaign manager, and Campbell in return communicated with Mayor Cermak.

The mayor promptly issued a statement branding the letters as fakes and placing the authorship on the remnants of the old Chicago city hall machine, which, he said, has disclosed its desperation by this eleventh hour attempt at trickery.

Cermak Hits Small Trickery.

"If any evidence was needed," said the mayor, "to show that Len Small and his associates are utterly demoralized, repudiated, and defeated, it is contained in the forged letters. It is almost unnecessary for me to state that no appeal was made to downstate Democrats for funds. I certainly made none and know of none made by anybody else. On the contrary, we have tried to send Chicago aid to the downstate Democrats.

"But, regardless of that, no exchange of jobs for funds would be conceived of by any one except men as blind morally as those who concocted the forged letters.

"In view of the vileness of the campaign waged by Len Small and his associates, I cannot say that I am at all surprised that they have added forgery to their other accomplishments.

"They Stop at Nothing."

"The man who robbed the state treasury and was compelled to pay over $650,000 of his loot and the man who took $2,500,000 for 'experts' and still retains the money raised by school children for the Mississippi flood sufferers will stop at nothing. Forgery is a minor sin compared to the others of which they have been guilty.

"At the last minute they have offered the voters of Illinois another indisputable proof that they are unfit to be citizens of the state, let alone to aspire to office."

Police Blame Labor Trouble in Truck Plant Bombing

Labor trouble was blamed by police for the bombing early yesterday of the Schukraft & Co. plant, 1201 Washington boulevard, designers and manufacturers of automobile truck bodies. Employés of the company have been ignoring union rules in vulcanizing tires, according to investigators. The side door of the plant wos torn off and plate glass windows shattered by the bomb, which caused damage of $100.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—[Special.] — The District of Columbia's voice in the selection of the next President was estimated today at between fifty-five and sixty-five thousand votes.

While citizens of the district have no suffrage under the constitution, officials of the local Republican and Democratic committees estimated today that some 55,000 persons with legal residence in various states will vote by mail tomorrow.

Added to these will be a large number of government workers who live in nearby Maryland and Virginia who will be excused from their offices tomorrow long enough to cast their ballots at home.

Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, whose home is on the Virginia side of the Potomac, several miles south of Washington, will cast a ballot in Arlington county, it was said, and hasten to his office for the remainder of the day.

With the exception of Secretary of Commerce Roy D. Chapin and Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, who will vote by mail, President Hoover's cabinet will vote personally in their home precincts. Secretary of the Treasury Mills is in Washington today, but will go to New York early tomorrow.

Attorney General William D. Mitchell, only Democrat in the Hoover cabinet, is in St. Paul, Minn., where he will vote tomorrow.

RECORD NUMBER MAY VISIT POLLS IN EMPIRE STATE

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—This state's five million voters listened to the customary election eve pleas tonight as they prepared to go to the polls tomorrow under cloudy, threatening skies and choose their favorites for national, state and city offices.

The largest number of voters on record have registered and New York City will ballot for a President, governor and mayor at the same election for the first time since 1888. The voters also will be given their second opportunity in four years to decide whether to lend their support to a governor of the state as Democratic candidate for President.

In the presidential race, Democratic leaders expect Gov. Roosevelt to carry upstate counties and come into New York City with a lead of more than 50,000 over President Hoover. In the city, Tammany figures give Roosevelt the staggering plurality of 981,000. Four years ago New York's electoral vote of 45 went to Mr. Hoover in preference to Alfred E. Smith.

Republican leaders discount Democratic upstate claims and predict Mr. Hoover will bring a lead of 400,000 to the city and gather sufficient votes in town to carry the state.

WRECK BLOCKS FOUR TRACKS.

Monmouth Junction, N. J., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The four track main line of the Pennsylvania railroad between New York and Philadelphia, was blocked by wreckage this afternoon following a collision between a freight train and a work train. The engineer of the freight train, William Frank, 48, Newark, was seriously injured.

If Roosevelt and Horner Fail Here's Reason.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

If, contrary to indications, Gov. Roosevelt, Judge Horner et al, find themselves tonight at the bottom of an avalanche of Republican ballots, they probably will have skidded on Mrs. Knapp's prize rug. "Because of a nail a kingdom was lost." And because of her Democratic carpet, Mrs. Marie Knapp of 4415 Mango avenue, believes the election ought to be lost—by the Democratic party. She is, in the vernacular, "just plain burned up" about that rug.

When Mrs. Knapp first heard about the rug she had visions of all the splendor and artistry of the orient gleaming in miniature upon her highly polished living room floor. It was mid-September, a Sunday evening after the big Democratic rally at Riverview park. Her husband, August, arrived home still breathless from the shock and confided that he, a rockribbed Republican, had wandered into strange political pastures and had emerged the winner of the second grand prize of the event—a $300 rug.

Plans to "Cash" Rug Upset.

For the Knapps it was a tremendous windfall. They had rugs adequate for their needs. Not $300 ones, but good enough. The head of the household, a bricklayer, hadn't enjoyed steady work for three years. Consequently Mrs. Knapp, none too gullible, reckoned mentally that if the monetary value of the unexpected trophy were only half what it was represented, it could be cashed for winter coats for herself and two children. She found a ready purchaser, and set out with alacrity to collect the prize.

That day and the next day and the next, she related yesterday, she called on Ald. Henry Sonnenschein as instructed, failing to reach him. She began saving carfare and buying phone slugs. The telephone operator was sympathetic about the nonarrival of the rug, but she couldn't reach Mr. Sonnenschein. Five weeks passed. One day Mrs. Knapp's temper boiled over via telephone. Mr. Sonnenschein called back and asked whether she would settle for $50. With the $150 in mind, she snappily assured him she wouldn't. Then after more days and more calls he telephoned that the rug would arrive next day.

Prize Rug Arrives.

Five days later a private coupé drove up to the Knapps' door and a driver, who declared he knew nothing about the matter, delivered a rug bound in burlap and chugged away. They unwrapped their prize and surveyed a nondescript, sizable rug of a value estimated by a furniture dealer at between $20 and $25. Now it's a cause celebre, if not a causus belli in the political situation of the district.

"We hung it out on the line to exhibit it," declared the disappointed Mrs. Knapp. "That rug's lost plenty of votes for the Democratic ticket around here. Why, it's so coarse it would ruin a good floor to put it down unless there was a pad under it. So scratchy the dog won't even sleep on it. It doesn't match anything I've got and nobody would buy it. If I'd dreamed it would be like this I'd have snatched up that $50."

Ald. Sonnenschein declared the rug had been donated, described as a $300 rug, and that he had not been in charge of the program and knew nothing about the prizes. He declined to name the donating firm.

MAC DONALD FIGHTS POSTPONEMENT OF WORLD TRADE PARLEY

LONDON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Painting a gloomy picture of the European economic situation, Prime Minister MacDonald told the house of commons today that the world economic conference should start its sessions before Christmas.

"Anybody who understands the issues at stake and talks about spring or early summer as a date for that conference deserves the strongest censure," he said.

"Agreements must be secured for the interchange of goods with all its ramifications and complexities. Otherwise there is very little hope for a return of healthy international trade or for the return of prosperity to any European country."

The preparatory commission charged with drawing up the program for the conference adjourned Saturday at Geneva with the intention of meeting again in January.

ANNOUNCES PLAN FOR PARADE ON ARMISTICE DAY

Charles V. Falkenberg, general chairman of the Armistice day activities of the Cook county council of the American Legion, announced yesterday that the Armistice day parade will be made up of only one division instead of the two divisions first planned. The parade will form between 9:10 and 9:30 Friday morning at Michigan avenue and Jackson boulevard. The marchers will move west to La Salle street, north to Randolph street, east to Clark, south to Washington, and west to La Salle. After thus circling the city hall and county building they will halt in front of the reviewing stand in La Salle street, half way between Washington and Randolph streets. There the ceremonies will be conducted.

Tentative reports indicate, Chairman Falkenberg said, that bands from the Woodlawn and Board of Trade posts and drum and bugle corps from Commonwealth Edison, Glenview, Medill Tribune Square and Police posts and the Northwest Side Ex-Service Men will participate in the parade. The Woodlawn post drill team and the firing squad of Russell Blackhawk post will also march.

MISTAKE COSTS 1 MAN PRECINCT ITS ONLY VOTE

Judge-Clerk Fails to Register Himself.

Although Julius Sheffler married the widow of Julian Dojmoeich, who for years was the one man election board, election clerk and only voter in precinct No. 2 of district No. 15 in Worth township, and although Sheffler has lived on the same farm, he has failed to qualify for his predecessor's electoral privileges. This was the ruling yesterday of Dan Carey, chief election clerk in the county clerk's office.

Until his death two years ago Dojmoeich annually had been appointed judge and clerk of election in his rural precinct. The ballot box, a sheaf of ballots, a voting booth and poll books were delivered to him. He registered himself and on election days supplied himself with a ballot, cast his vote, and notified County Clerk Sweitzer of the result.

Widow Continues on Farm.

A year after her husband's death Mrs. Dojmoeich married Sheffler and continued to reside on her farm with her new husband and her 8 year old son, Julian Jr. After Dojmoeich's death there were no election duties in Worth township until last April.

Chief Clerk Carey said that at the April election, due to an error, Sheffler received a ballot box, ballots, and other paraphernalia of a polling place. Carey said that a week before the primary investigators called at the Sheffler farm to see if Dojmoeich was there, since notice of his death had not been received at the county building.

The investigators found only the boy at home. He was asked the name of his father and truthfully answered, "Julian Dojmoeich." Satisfied, the investigators departed. Three days later representatives of the county clerk appeared, administered an oath as election clerk to Sheffler, whom they found at home, and left the voting equipment.

Mistake Costs Him Vote.

Sheffler performed his duties as clerk, but because of a mistake in the county clerk's office Dojmoeich's name was continued on the polls books.

Recently, when arrangements for today's election were made, Sheffler complained that he had not received his check for his April primary election work. An investigation followed and the circumstances were brought to light. Chief Clerk Carey also discovered that Sheffler had failed to register himself for today's election.

"This oversight is going to mean that for the first time in years we won't get a vote from this precinct," Carey said. "No judge and no clerks are appointed, no polling place has been chosen, and no ballots will be sent out there."

EIGHT HOODLUMS ARRAIGNED FOR ELECTION PLOT

Police Keep Details of Charges Secret.

Eight men, seven of them known to police as directors of some of the most profitable rackets in Chicago, yesterday were charged with conspiracy to collect campaign funds to influence an election unlawfully in the Felony court. They were seized last Tuesday in a richly furnished office at 1 North La Salle street.

Continue Case to Nov. 21.

The defendants are: William [Three Fingered Jack] White, labor czar and killer; Murray Humphries, former Capone assistant and terrorist in the cleaning and dyeing business; Charles Fischetti, one time chauffeur for Al Capone; Marcus [Studdy] Looney, business agent for a teamster's union and a labor racketeer; William [Klondike] O'Donnell, west suburban gang leader; Paddy Sullivan, alias Cullen, a brother-in-law of George [Red] Barker, slain racketeer; William Bartin, alleged associate of White and James [Fur] Sammons, and Samuel Alex, minor hoodlum and safeblower.

Judge Frank M. Padden continued the case until Nov. 21 to allow Chief Schoemaker more time for investigation. Attorneys Tyrrell Richardson and W. W. Smith, representing the defendants, told the court that they were "completely in the dark" concerning the charges. Prosecutor Russell Root confessed that he did not know the basis for the charge. Chief Schoemaker refused to reveal the details. Bond of $5,000 each were set.

Talk Results in Charges.

Detectives William Drury and John Howe said the charge had been placed as the result of statements made by Humphries and Looney at the detective bureau.

Asked what he was doing, Humphries answered, according to the detectives: "I'm out collecting for Courtney." They said Looney added: "Sure, I'm going to give him $1,000 myself."

Writes Suicide Note, Then Ends Her Life by Poison

After writing a suicide note Mrs. Dorothy Kramer, 52 years old, 2508 East 77th street, committed suicide yesterday by drinking poison. She had purchased the poison a short time earlier in a drug store and had paused on the back porch of Mrs. Karl Mattson, 2600 East 76th street, to swallow it. A child who saw her fall on the porch called Mrs. Mattson, but Mrs. Kramer died before help could be summoned.

GOV. ROOSEVELT PLEDGES BEST TO HIS COUNTRY

Spends Final Day Among Home Folk.

active campaigning have left with him. He told his listeners how for twenty two years it has been his custom to end every political campaign in the little auditorium, and that where once, while in legislative campaigns, he talked only to these neighbors of his, and then, running for governor, talked to the whole state, now, he said, "the entire country is within earshot."

"My travels and contacts," he continued, "have made many Americans everywhere, I hope, my friends and neighbors."

How many miles he has traveled, how many states he has visited, how many people seen and how many talks he has delivered—these statistics are not as important, he said, as the vivid flashes which impressed him.

Vignettes of Campaign.

And then he gave his hearers vignettes of the campaign—"the great crowd under the lights before the capitol at Jefferson City," "the patient attention of the Kansans under the hot sun at Topeka," "the stricken but dauntless miners of Butte," and so on, all the way through his campaign. All these people that he has seen, Mr. Roosevelt said, have made one thing clear to him.

It was a day given over to sentiment—and also to superstition. The Democratic presidential nominee has been convinced that the nation will elect him to his great office, but he wants the folks of his own and the neighboring counties to be with him in the election tomorrow.

Mr. Roosevelt also went through the same motions he has followed in all his past campaigns, speaking in the same towns from the same sites and since he was successful in these other campaigns, from those early days of running for the legislature up to his last two campaigns for the governorship, it may be set down that in his wish to be successful tomorrow, in his bid for the highest office in the land, he didn't want to offend any of the fates.

Being a candidate for the presidency of the United States this time didn't change much the nature of his campaigning in this Hudson valley land. He fared forth with ballyhoo, brass bands, campaign dodgers, cards, and windshield stickers.

Mr. Roosevelt set out from his Hyde Park home at 1 o'clock this afternoon, driving in an open touring car despite a chilling wet drizzle. At Wappinger Falls, the first stop, he told the group gathered to greet him that he felt fit to go on campaigning for another four weeks, and indeed, he looked fresh and active enough, at the end of this strenuous campaign to justify his statement.

Visits Veterans' Hospital.

The governor stopped for a few minutes at the Castle Point Veterans' hospital—the veterans there all have votes—and then he went on to Beacon. It was in that quaint old town in the village square where twenty-two years ago Franklin Roosevelt, then a young Democrat upstart running for the state senate in a Republican stronghold, made his first political speech.

Then, ferrying across the Hudson to Newburgh, where a brass band led a march up Broadway, the governor greeted a crowd of 5,000. He pointed to a big banner directly above him, adjuring every one to vote for Hoover and Curtis.

"I see there's a Republican sign over my head," he declared, "just as there was when I was here in 1930. Well, in 1930 the Republicans were beaten, so that's a good omen, isn't it?"

Turning up the Hudson then, on the west of the river, the Roosevelt party motored into Highland, where a fire siren was summoning the citizenry to greet their governor.

Then, at Kingston, where he was served with a "summons" to appear at the White House on March 4, the governor talked before a large crowd.

TOWN KEEPS VOTE RECORD UNDER DIFFICULTIES

New Ashford, Mass., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Two dozen alarm clocks tonight were set for 5 a. m., and 33 persons climbed into bed with their mind set on answering the first ring.

New Ashford is out to maintain its established claim to being the first community in the country to report its presidential vote, and the polls open tomorrow at 5:45 a. m., for the 33 voters.

There are 34 accredited voters in the town and the absence of the thirty-fourth voter is a story of circumstances which for a time threatened to wreck the town's distinctive record.

A hard cold sent Miss Margaret Ingraham to the North Adams hospital. Enthusiasts on Saturday took Miss Ingraham an absentee voter's ballot and she marked it. On their return to New Ashford they learned that the envelope carrying the ballot had to have the postmark of the place from which it was "mailed." Back they went for the stamping.

Then it was found the law requires that at least two towns must separate the absentee voter from the place where the ballot is to be opened, but by highway only Williamstown is crossed.

Congressman Allen Treadway wired Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook for a decision. He decided Miss Ingraham's ballot would be illegal. Then another law popped up. It provides that the results of the voting may not be announced until the closing hour, 9:45 a. m. Finally the town fathers got a certificate from Miss Ingraham's doctor saying she was physically unable to go to the polls.

Therefore, the town will be in a position to announce its vote as soon as the 33 others have voted.

Gov. Roosevelt's Closing Speech

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The text of Franklin D. Roosevelt's final speech of the campaign in Columbus hall here tonight follows:

"For twenty-two years it has been my custom to end every political campaign with my friends and neighbors of all political parties here in Dutchess county. I began my public service here many years ago.

"I have learned much of what I know of human life and of political affairs in country and in city from you, my friends. I have held to the belief—and I still hold it firmly—that you, whom I know so well, represent in a great degree the ideals, the hopes, the standards and the problems of all Americans.

Continues Custom.

"This year I continue my custom although science and circumstance have widened the circle of my neighbors. In earlier years I talked to you alone, then to the whole state. Now the entire country is within earshot, and my travels and contacts have made many Americans everywhere, I hope, my friends and neighbors.

"These many weeks of the campaign have been crowded with action, motion, change. They have been marked by a thousand impressions. The bare facts do not tell the story. I have traveled many miles—it doesn't matter exactly how many. I have visited many states—the number isn't significant. I have spoken many times—my hearers will be kind and not tell me just how many. And I have seen millions and millions of people.

Essential Unity of Things.

"Statistics, numbers, percentages—applied to human things like these take from—they certainly do not add to—their strong vital importance. The impressions count—the vivid flashes—tell us of the essential unity of things.

"Some of them I shall never forget. The great crowd under the lights before the capitol at Jefferson City, the patient attention of the Kansans under the hot sun at Topeka, the long day through Wyoming with the strong direct kindness of the people who came, some of them, hundreds of miles to bid me welcome; the men and women who made a great city in the valley of Salt Lake, the stricken but dauntless miners of Butte, the world consciousness of Seattle, the citizens of Portland who sustained me with keen understanding through a long technical discussion of public utilities.

"A thousand such impressions crowd my memory. Farmers again from the California valleys gathered under the sun at Sacramento, the welcome of San Francisco, that magnificent city where the old east meets the new west; Los Angeles, the miracle of a city built, as history measures time, in a moment.

"I shall never forget the sunset at McCook, Neb., and the strong progressive farmers. Sioux City and Milwaukee, and Chicago and Detroit, Pittsburgh and Indianapolis and Springfield and Louisville. And then my neighbors in my southern home in Georgia. The children in wheel chairs at Warm Springs—also happy in a great hope—and north to New England at Portland and Boston and Providence and Hartford.

"Each of these memories and many others have their individual significance to me. If I can catch them all together and give them vitality and meaning and life, I shall have fulfilled the purpose of my travels. These people, all of them—these neighbors of each and every state—have made one thing clear: They have expressed some hope in the future, confidence that things will be better. I set out to learn, more than to teach. All of you, east and west and north and south, have helped me.

Public Kind and Friendly.

"And you have graciously helped me, too. You may not universally have agreed with me, but you have universally been kind and friendly to me. The great understanding and tolerance of America came out to meet me—everywhere. For all this you have my heartfelt gratitude.

"Out of this unity that I have seen we may build the strongest strand to lift ourselves out of this depression.

"If all of this multitude of my friends and neighbors give expression tomorrow to your united confidence in the invigorating tonic of a change, I may in some modest way bring this unity of purpose to practical fulfillment.

"A man comes to wisdom in many years of public life. He knows well that when the light of favor shines upon him it comes not, of necessity, that he himself is important. Favor comes because for a brief moment in the great space of human change and progress some general human purpose finds in him a satisfactory embodiment.

Humble Emblem of Restoration.

"To be the means through which the ideals and hopes of the American people may find a greater realization calls for the best in any man. I seek to be only the humble emblem of this restoration.

"If that be your verdict, my friends of America and my next door neighbors of Dutchess county, and that be the confident purpose behind your verdict, I shall in the humility that suits such a great confidence seek to meet this great expectation of yours. With your help and your patience and your generous good will we can mend the torn fabric of our common life.

"On this very eve of the exercise of the greatest right of the American electorate, I bid you good night. And I add to that, God bless you all."

SANITARY DISTRICT FILES ITS ANSWER TO LAKE DIVERSION PLEA

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The Supreme court today set Nov. 14 as the date when oral argument will be heard on the application of the states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Ohio, and Michigan for the appointment of an officer or officers of the court to carry out the decree ordering the sanitary district of Chicago to complete its sewage treatment program and cut the Chicago water diversion to 1500 cubic second feet plus pumpage by Dec. 31, 1938.

The reply of the Chicago sanitary district to Wisconsin and its allied lake states was filed with the Supreme court today by William Rothmann, sanitary district attorney. It was signed by Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district.

"The numerous charges of negligence, incompetence, and bad faith, failure, neglect, and refusal to carry out the decree, lack of effort in performance, obstruction, avoidance, and circumvention of the performance of the decree, neglect and refusal adequately and reasonably to provide for financing, failure to levy and collect normal taxes, dereliction of duty, willful disregard and defiance of the federal government, etc., contained in the application of the complainants, are wholly without justification," the attorney for the district said.

Young Oak Park Wife Asks Divorce from Dallas Hanes

Mrs. Clair Finlay Hanes, 20 years old, 220 South Maple avenue, Oak Park, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Superior court against Dallas F. Hanes, 146 North Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park. Hanes is the son of William R. Hanes, head of a merchant tailoring company. Mrs. Hanes' father is Hector C. Finlay, a manufacturer. Her bill, filed by Attorney Frank Cantwell, charges her husband with cruelty. They were married on April 30, 1932.

BLAME 2 DEATHS ON INEXPERIENCE OF BOY FLYER

A coroner's jury composed of three pilots and three laymen yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death "due to inexperience and lack of instruction" at the inquest into the airplane crash in which Carl A. Bayer Jr., 16 years old, and his sister, Anna Marie Bayer, 17 years old, of 5400 Parker avenue, died on Sunday. The crash occurred at Central avenue and 71st street. Bayer was piloting the plane.

The jury recommended that the federal and state licenses of Capt. Edward A. Dixon, manager, and Frederick Yeomans, instructor, of the Aero Flying association, which owned the plane, be revoked on the ground that they had been delinquent in allowing Bayer to take his sister on a flight when he lacked the proper amount of instruction "to cope with any hazard that might arise."

Capt. Dixon said he was with the Royal Canadian Flying corps during the war. He holds a limited commercial license. Yeomans, who said he was an instructor in the Royal Air Force during the war, holds a transport pilot's license. Yeomans said he cautioned young Bayer not to make vertical turns, knowing that the youth had not had enough instruction to perform them safely. Capt. Dixon lives at 8442 Seeley avenue and Yeomans at 215 North Central avenue.

Man's Body Plunges 135 Ft. Into River in Traffic Crush

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—A taxicab skidded on the wet pavement of the Williamsburg bridge early today and dumped a horse drawn wagon just ahead of it. Out of the wagon catapulted a man's body. It skimmed over the guard railing and dropped 135 feet into the East river. The driver of the taxicab, Charles Heyman, summoned the bridge police. They called the marine division and launches immediately began searching for the body of the victim, Stanley Siegel.

HORNER WINDS UP STATE CAMPAIGN ON VICTORY NOTE

Predict Glenn Will Lead G. O. P. Ticket.

hope, to reveal to them a willingness and a capacity to help them with their problems, to lead the way toward recovery and security. I conceive this duty my task when elected governor, and tonight I dedicate myself to you toward that end. As a candidate for governor I have not offered abuse for my opponent or the poison of malice and distrust, but rather my record as a private citizen and public official.

His Ambition Is to Serve.

"I have but one ambition in asking that you elect me governor—that is to serve you and the entire state, every section of it. To some these may seem idle words, but if that be the case they do not know me. I have already received all the honor and glory that one man should rightfully wish for. Power for power's sake alone is not within my desires. What is left is the opportunity to serve, to contribute what ability I have to further the welfare of the state.

"I want Illinois to go forward to contentment, prosperity, and security. My pledge to you tonight—and I do not give my word lightly—is that you may expect me to give all that I possess in service, in loyalty, and devotion to that end."

GLENN THANKS VOTERS

Senator Otis F. Glenn issued a pre-election statement yesterday thanking the voters for their consideration, commenting on the fact that he had received assurances of support from large numbers of independent voters, and congratulating his Democratic opponent for the senatorship, William H. Dieterich, for the high plane on which their campaign had been conducted.

"I am grateful to the people of Illinois for the considerate and courteous treatment which I have received in this campaign," said Senator Glenn.

"My opponent has conducted a vigorous and thorough campaign, clean and honorable. I have endeavored to treat him with the same fairness and decency which he has accorded me. Regardless of the result we meet at the close as friends, comforted by the fact that we have carried on the contest in a manner in keeping with the dignity and importance of the office we seek.

"The attitude of the press of the state is indeed appreciated, as is that of the organizations of our party who have stood by me so loyally. Assurances of support come to me in large numbers from independent voters, and I am happy that they feel my record in the senate has been such as to merit their indorsement."

AUTO HURT KILLS LEDOUX.

An inquest into the death of Joseph Gust, 44 years old, who was killed by an automobile driven by the Rev. Norman H. Camp, 65 years old, of the Moody Bible institute, was continued yesterday until Nov. 18 to allow the police time to find witnesses to the accident. Gust, a resident of the relief station in the old Criminal court building, was struck at Kinzie and La Salle streets. The Rev. Mr. Camp, who lives at 5416 Winthrop avenue, appeared at the opening of the inquest but was not called to the witness stand. He was told to return when the inquest is reopened.

"MISS ILLINOIS," NAMED BY WIFE IN DIVORCE SUIT

Evelyn Cushing, who won the title of "Miss Illinois" in a beauty contest eight months ago in New York, was named co-respondent in a bill for divorce filed yesterday in the Superior court by Mrs. Sophie Weiss, against Theodore Weiss, owner of a cafe in Kenosha.

Mrs. Weiss charges that Miss Cushing is now living with Weiss in Kenosha. She also charged that on Aug. 10 Weiss threatened her life when she refused to step aside for Miss Cushing, and that on Aug. 10, at Fox Lake, he beat her with the butt of a revolver.

Miss Cushing has a bill pending in the Superior court asking the annulment of her marriage to Hallet Schultz, asserting that their elopement to Waukegan and marriage on Feb. 2 was the sequel to a drinking party, and stating that they never lived together.

FOG CAUSES FOUR AUTO DEATHS AND HALTS AIR LINES

Mist Covers MiddleWest; Slows Traffic.

Dense fog which blanketed the streets of Chicago and highways of the metropolitan area Sunday night and yesterday caused the death of four Chicagoans and the injury of two others in an automobile accident.

The fog extended over the entire middle west, halted airplanes and slowed up other traffic.

The four were killed and two injured late Sunday night when an automobile driven by Frank Warzynski, 29 years old, 4936 South Keeler avenue, crashed into a truck and trailer on route 49 near Crescent City, 20 miles south of Kankakee.

Fog Obscures Trailer.

The dead are Mrs. Hazel Warzynski, wife of the driver; their daughter, Dorothy, 6; Mrs. Julia Adasiewicz, 50, of 2104 Mospratt street, and her daughter, Viola, 18. Warzynski suffered minor injuries, as did Mrs. Anna Cebulski, sister of Mrs. Warzynski. Warzynski said that the fog prevented him from seeing the tail light of the trailer until he was upon it.

Children See Grandma Killed.

While her three grandchildren looked on in horror, Mrs. Anna Connor, 72 years old, a widow living at 1410 West 78th street, was struck and fatally injured by an automobile last night. The accident occurred at 78th and Loomis streets while the grandmother was taking the youngsters to a store.

The children were Anna Drexel, 9 years old; Joseph, 6, and Agnes, 4, children of Mrs. Clara Drexel, Mrs. Connor's daughter. Dr. Samuel L. Governale, 42 years old, of 6905 South Ashland avenue, driver of the car, took Mrs. Connor to the Auburn Park hospital where she died several hours later. He was not held.

Total for 1931 is 962.

Four other deaths yesterday in Cook county brought the automobile toll for 1932 to 962. The victims:

Russell Noble Rogers, 68 years old, a retired real estate dealer. Fatally injured at 41st street and Drexel boulevard last night. He lived with his wife, Louise, at the home of Alton Baird, 4131 Drexel boulevard. Police arrested Michael Mayton, 21 years old, 5000 Prairie avenue, the driver.

Unidentified woman, about 50 years old. Killed by an automobile at Grace street and North Central avenue. She wore a wedding ring with the name "Rosetta." There were no witnesses to the accident.

Walter Sidney, colored, 68 years old, 1436 West 14th street. Killed by an automobile at 14th and Peoria streets.

Mrs. Rosetta Biagi, 50 years old, of 2931 North Sacramento avenue. Killed by an automobile at Grace street and North Central avenue. There were no witnesses to the accident.

FLORIDA STORM RUINS THOUSANDS OF TRUCK ACRES

Caribbean Hurricane Brings Flood.

West Palm Beach, Fla., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Financial disaster washed over a 20 mile strip of the truck growing district on the eastern shore of Lake Okeechobee last night and today as heavy rains inundated thousands of acres. J. L. Kerr, president of the Pahokee chamber of commerce, estimated it to be "the worst financial disaster Pahokee ever had; 21 inches of rain, 40 square miles under water, 10,000 acre crop loss."

The Everglades experiment station and a prison farm near Belle Glade reported their fields 10½ to 12 inches under water and a number of crop experiments ruined.

Atlantic Coast Drenched.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—A Caribbean hurricane wrecked one vessel and threatened several others today as it sped toward western Cuba, while heavy rains drenched the Atlantic coast northward from Florida and west to the Ohio valley and the lower lake region.

The American schooner Abundance foundered off eastern Jamaica in the hurricane, but its crew of six was rescued.

The Blue Funnel freighter Phemius, after radioing that it had been struck by the storm 150 miles east of Cape Gracias a Dios, Nicaragua, was located by a salvage tug which went to the rescue.

Two other vessels that earlier were reported in trouble were taken in tow.

MISSING MAN FOUND HANGED.

The body of William White, 59 years old, 340 West 63d street, who had been missing from his home since Oct. 27, was found yesterday hanging in a vacant building at 342 West 63d street.

7 NEGROES FACING DEATH SAVED BY U. S. HIGH COURT

Alleged Alabama Rapists Granted New Trial.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court today reversed the decision of the Alabama courts in the internationally agitated Scottsboro rape case, in which seven Negro youths were sentenced to death for attacking two white girls. By a vote of seven to two, Justices Butler and McReynolds dissenting, the court set aside the death sentences and ordered a new trial on the ground that the defendants had not been fairly tried in the first instance.

Just an hour before Justice Sutherland began reading the majority decision in the dignified atmosphere of the Supreme court chamber the capitol plaza below had resounded with the whacking of nightsticks on communist heads as 100 radical agitators attempted to stage a demonstration in behalf of the seven defendants.

Guard Supreme Court.

Fourteen radicals were arrested during the sharp hand-to-hand fighting that followed before the four score or more communists had been routed by the use of tear gas guns and nightsticks in the hands of capitol and metropolitan police.

One hundred policemen assigned to the task of guarding the Supreme court patrolled the capitol building until all the court decisions for the day had been read and the justices had gone home. Two policemen were injured, although neither was hurt seriously. Several communists were knocked down, one was run over by a police side car, but none was sent to the hospital.

Justice Sutherland, in handing down his decision amid scenes reminiscent of the rioting staged by the bonus expeditionary forces last spring and summer, upheld counsel for the petitioners in their contention that the Negro defendants had not had a fair trial.

Convicted in Tense Atmosphere.

The justice said the record showed plainly that the men had substantially been denied the right of counsel at a time when their lives were in peril. He said the evidence showed that instead of being tried in a calm judicial atmosphere the defendants had been convicted and sentenced to death "in an atmosphere of tense, hostile, and excited public sentiment." Every step taken, from the arrest and arraignment to the sentence, the justice said, "was accompanied by the military."

Justice Sutherland asserted that the failure of the Alabama court to give the defendants reasonable time and opportunity to secure counsel constituted not only an effective and substantial denial of a fair trial, but also amounted to a "clear denial of due process" as guaranteed by the constitution.

Dissenting, Justices Butler and McReynolds held that the record showed that the seven colored men had had a fair trial. Justice Butler said the evidence sustained the guilty verdict. Justice Butler asserted also that the court, in holding that the failure of the trial court to make an effective appointment of counsel was a denial of the due process within the meaning of the fourteenth amendment had extended federal authority into a field "hitherto occupied exclusively by the several states."

Attract World-wide Attention.

The Scottsboro case attracted world-wide attention shortly after the seven defendants had been sentenced to death in three groups after trials lasting one day for each group. Communists and radical organizations in Moscow, Germany and several other nations, as well as the United States, went into action in an attempt to obtain a reversal of the verdict.

Petitions were signed, demonstrations carried out and so much intense feeling aroused that almost every session of the Supreme court since last term has been carried on under strong police guard. Thousands of letters were sent to the court demanding freedom.

The seven defendants, Andy Wright and Hayward Patterson of Chattanooga, Willie Robertson of Memphis, Charley Weems, Clarence Norris, and Ozie Powell of Atlanta, and Olen Montgomery of Monroe, Ga., were charged with having raped two white girls on a railroad train near Scottsboro on March 25, 1931. Six days later the men were indicted.

Reviews Trial Record.

According to the Supreme court opinion the evidence showed that the defendants, with a number of other Negroes, were upon a freight train on its way through Alabama. On the same train were seven white boys and two white girls. A fight took place, according to the evidence, the white boys were thrown off and the girls raped. Each girl testified she was assaulted by six Negroes.

There was no demonstration in the Supreme court chamber when the verdict was read although the police were of the opinion a half dozen white and colored radicals had entered the room. About a dozen left after the opinion was read and one was arrested as a communist.

Justice Sutherland said the records showed the defendants had not been provided with proper counsel and had not been given ample opportunity to protect their interests by choosing counsel of their own. No lawyer had been named to defend them, he said, up to the very morning of the trial.

"We think," he said, "that the failure of the trial court to give them reasonable time and opportunity to obtain counsel was a clear denial of due process."

Check Swindler Sentenced to Jail for Five Months

William Heitman, 45 years old, was sentenced to five months in the House of Correction yesterday by Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court. Heitman was arrested on Sept. 29 when he attempted to cash a fraudulent check in the East Side Trust and Savings bank. He was identified at the police showup by seven persons who had cashed checks for him.

YOUTHS CONFESS KILLING DIRECTOR OF PLAYGROUND

Beat Him After He Bans Checker Game.

Sol Rauh, 53 years old, 5315 Cornell avenue, was beaten to death yesterday at noon in the office of the Trumbull playground at 2312 South Trumbull avenue, of which he had been director for the last month.

Early last evening two youths, arrested by Lieut. Charles Welling and Sergt. Joseph Fallon of the Lawndale police station, confessed that they had slain Rauh. He had forbidden them to play checkers in the fieldhouse, they said, and they lay in wait for him and slugged him with a blackjack and an iron bar.

Loot Victim's Pockets.

The youths are James Hrabak, 22 years old, 2227 South Kedzie avenue, and Irving Fischer, 21 years old, 2101 Marshall boulevard. After beating the playground director they stole his trousers and took the $12 he had in his pockets. The money was found in the leaves of a detective magazine, which contained a story similar in the details of crime to their killing. The police recovered the trousers from an ash can where the prisoners admitted hiding them.

Victim Found by Girls.

Rauh was found alive in the playground office by two girls, Dorothy Thomas and Sylvia Triska, of 2349 South St. Louis avenue, who had gone to the playground to meet companions. The girls called the police, but Rauh died on the way to St. Anthony's hospital.

The police interviewed a number of young people who frequented the park and from them learned that Hrabak and Fischer had made threats against the director. The youths were at home when they were arrested.

Democratic Precinct Captain.

Rauh was a precinct captain in the organization of Horace Lindheimer, Democratic committeeman of the 5th ward. He was appointed to the city playground service through Lindheimer's sponsorship. Recently he had been active in the Roosevelt-Horner-Courtney campaign, working in the large hotels in the Hyde Park district.

According to Mrs. Louis Nachman, 1717 East 55th street, his sister, Rauh was expected at her home for dinner last night. She said that he had called on her Sunday and was in good spirits, mentioning that he had just been paid.

ELECT LIBERAL NEW PRESIDENT IN NICARAGUA

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The election of Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, the Liberal candidate, as president of Nicaragua in yesterday's election was conceded today by President Jose Maria Moncada, who supported the Conservative candidate, Adolfo Diaz.

Sacasa had a lead of 19,000 votes when half of the returns had been counted and the president believed the majority was too large for the Conservatives to overcome. The vote was 58,777 for Dr. Sacasa against 39,773 for Diaz. This represented 63 per cent of the registration.

8,750,000 Delivered

Fifty-two motor trucks started at 5 a. m. yesterday to deliver the 8,500,000 ballots which will be used at the 3,158 voting places in Chicago and the suburban towns under the jurisdiction of the election commission.

On each truck, besides the driver, was a policeman and a representative of the election commission. The ballots, with ballot boxes, tally sheets and other election paraphernalia, were taken to the home of a judge or clerk of election in each precinct. He will keep them until a policeman escorts him to the polling place this morning.

The ballots and ballot boxes were withheld from 80 precincts in the 20th, 27th and 42d wards, which have been the scenes of violence or fraud in the past. These deliveries will be made this morning shortly before the polls open.

The election will cost $410,847 in the 3,158 precincts under the jurisdiction of the election commissioners, its chief clerk, John S. Rusch, said yesterday. Of the total $315,000 will be for salaries of judges and clerks, $31,580 will go for the rental of polling places, and the remainder will cover the cost of printing and delivering ballots and miscellaneous expenses.

FILE PETITION ASKING RETURN OF BANK ASSETS

The petition of the receiver for the North Western Trust and Savings bank, asking the court to decide on the legality of a transfer of $1,000,000 worth of assets from the bank to the North Western Securities company, an affiliated corporation, a few months before the bank closed on June 10, 1931, was filed with Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel yesterday.

Preceding the filing attorneys for the securities company, for depositors of the bank, and for the bank stockholders who also are stockholders of the securities company, argued the validity of the petition. Then the judge instructed all interested parties to file answers to the petition and set next Monday for hearing.

The receiver, David E. Shanahan, stated that Prosecutor Henry E. Ayers of the state's attorney's office had informed him that the transfer was illegal and that two dividends paid by the bank during 6 months before the closing were also illegal. Prosecutor Ayers said his examination of the bank books convinced him that his statements were true.

Attorney Charles S. Deneen, representing the stockholders, said that he could show that the transfer was proper. Attorney John T. Conlen, counsel for the securities corporation, suggested a compromise and stated that his client might return part of the $1,000,000 portfolio in exchange for other assets held by the bank receiver.

WITNESS TO DRY AGENT'S KILLING SHOT TO DEATH

Officer Guarding Him Is Wounded.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Gangland today gave another demonstration of its scorn of the law. August Gobel, the most important witness in the killing of a prohibition agent, was shot and killed in Newark, N. J., while under police protection. The patrolman assigned to guard him was wounded. The gang slayers made their escape.

Gobel, who was 47 and who lived in Maplewood, N. J., was witness to the killing of John G. Finiello, prohibition agent, who was shot while raiding the Rising Sun brewery in Elizabeth, N. J., on Sept. 19, 1930.

He was at liberty under bonds of $15,000 and was employed as a fireman in the ice plant of the Christian Feigenspan corporation in Newark, where he was killed.

Protection for Him.

Last night Gobel's family asked police protection for him, declaring that his life was in danger because of his testimony in the prohibition case. Patrolman Adolph Weigand was assigned to guard him.

Weigand declared that he and Gobel sat through the night in the boiler room of the ice plant. Gobel, he said, was nervous, and occasionally walked into the courtyard to look around.

Shortly before 4 o'clock this morning Gobel walked into the yard while Weigand remained seated on a bench in the boiler room. The policeman heard a burst of gunfire and ran to the yard. He found Gobel lying face downward, shot through the head and body.

Another Burst of Gunfire.

Weigand saw some figures on the wall about the courtyard and drew his revolver. There was another burst of gunfire. The patrolman's revolver was shot out of his hand. He was struck in the right arm and right hip by bullets.

Persons living near the plant heard the shooting. They telephoned police and a squad of detectives was sent to the place.

They found Weigand weak from the loss of blood and sent him to a hospital. Gobel was dead.

Warrant Out for Husband on Wife's Alimony Charge

Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday issued a warrant for the arrest of Stephen Corbin Ferguson, son and one of the heirs of the late Charles W. IS BEER EXTINCT? COL. REEVES HAS A HEARTY LAUGH

Tells Drys Brewing Still Is Extant Here.

Col. Ira L. Reeves, western manager of the Crusaders, militant wet organization, expressed amusement yesterday over a newspaper story which was headed:

"Beer Is Extinct in Chicago, or Practically So!"

The story consisted of a statement by the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation telling the results of a purported survey made by Chester G. Campbell, editor of the American Fruit Grower. Mr. Campbell and the foundation asserted that the amount of beer now brewed in Chicago is less than 60 barrels a day, compared with 10,000 barrels a day before the war.

Writes Letter to Campbell.

"Possibly the figures you gave out on present production were intended to apply to Evanston instead of Chicago," said Reeves in a letter to Campbell.

"Just what the purpose could be in attempting to pass off such ridiculous figures is difficult to understand, unless it be your interest in the American Fruit Grower, which we understand to be in some way associated with the California grape industry. I believe it is no secret that this industry is interested, for financial reasons, in less beer and more wine."

Reeves recalled that Campbell came into the Crusader's office shortly before the national conventions seeking information and was told that the Crusader's survey of a small area in the loop and near the Stadium, where the political parties were to meet, showed 3,500 speakeasies, all selling beer.

Gives Present Statistics.

"You must know, Mr. Campbell," wrote Col. Reeves, "unless your investigating qualifications are nil and your observations even less efficient that there are at least sixty barrels of beer sold daily in the so-called dry area in Hyde Park. He added a few statistics on the thousand and more barrels of beer consumed each day in Chicago and the hundreds of thousands of bottles of beer. Then as a parting shot Reeves concluded his letter:

"It is our conviction that the American people will express themselves tomorrow in a way that will triumphantly vindicate the fight we have been making to rip the cloak of hypocrisy from the professional drys and to expose the corruption that has been fostered by the iniquitous prohibition laws."

GUS WINKLER TO FACE PLANO HOLDUP CHARGE

Gus Winkler, Capone gangster and one time associate of Fred [Killer] Burke, was turned over to Kendall county authorities yesterday on a warrant charging him with participation in the $7,000 robbery of the Farmers State bank of Plano, Ill., on Dec. 16, 1930.

Winkler was also wanted in Wisconsin on a similar charge, but Chief of Detectives William Shoemaker decided to give preference to the Illinois authorities and thus avoid extradition proceedings inasmuch as a writ of habeas corpus had already been filed in Winkler's behalf.

To thwart any attempt at escape, a heavy guard was provided for Sheriff M. N. Hexstell of Kendall county when he started for Yorkville, the county seat, with Winkler.

HIGHEST COURT CURBS DRY LAW RAIDS ON HOMES

Evidence by Sniff Part of Case.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The Supreme court today again upheld the right of private citizens to protection from unlawful search and seizure under the national prohibition laws.

By a 7 to 2 decision the court held invalid a search warrant based only upon an affidavit stating that the signer saw cans being hauled in and out of a Newport, Ky., house and that he smelled the odor and fumes of cooking mash coming from the dwelling.

William Grau, the petitioner in the case, contended that prohibition enforcement agents entered his home armed only with the contested warrant and seized certain articles which were later admitted as evidence against him by the lower courts. He protested the validity of the warrant and the admissibility of the evidence seized, as well as the validity of the affidavits on which it was based.

Rules on Private Dwelling.

Justice Roberts, in handing down the opinion, declared the Supreme court "need not consider the alleged defect of the warrant, as we think the objection to the affidavits well taken, and the warrant consequently without lawful foundation.

"The affidavit fails to state the place to be searched is not a private dwelling," continued Justice Roberts, "and the record affirmatively shows it was. At most the deposition charges the manufacture of whisky; no averment of sale is made; indeed no facts are given from which sale, on or off the premises described, necessarily is to be inferred."

Justice Roberts declared the action of the Kentucky Court of Appeals in upholding the conviction of Grau on the evidence seized with the void warrant was a "broad construction of the prohibition act," which unduly narrows the guaranties of the fourteenth amendment.

"Those guaranties," he declared, "are to be liberally construed to prevent impairment of the protection extended."

Doesn't Waive Citizen's Rights.

Congress intended, in adopting the national prohibition act, said Justice Roberts, "to preserve, not to encroach upon, the citizen's right to be immune from unreasonable searches and seizures, and we should so construe the legislation as to effect that purpose.

"A search warrant may issue only upon evidence which would be competent in the trial of the offense before a jury."

The action against Grau, he concluded, "should have been quashed by the lower court and the articles seized delivered to the petitioner. Their admission as evidence was in error and the judgment must be reversed."

Justices Stone and Cardozo dissented from the majority opinion, holding that the judgment of the lower courts should be affirmed.

Overrules Pleas for Three More H. O. Stone Officials

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday overruled motions for directed verdicts of not guilty in behalf of Leslie A. Needham, attorney for H. O. Stone & Co., and Claude O. Niles and David E. Coleman, both vice presidents of the company. The court had previously overruled motions on behalf of the other six defendants, officials of the company. The defense will begin presenting evidence tomorrow. The defendants are charged with using the mails to defraud.

NEWFOUNDLAND PRISON FULL; USE STEAMER AS JAIL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Nov. 7.—With the penitentiary filled and the government steamer Meigle being used as a prison ship, Newfoundland is experiencing an unprecedented increase in crimes resulting from unemployment and destitution.

Riots by mobs of jobless men have occurred repeatedly. The government, which is hard pressed for current expenses and relief funds, is apparently helpless to remedy the situation. With the approach of winter, countrywide suffering is feared.

Only today thirteen unemployed men from Carbonear and ten from Spanlards Bay were brought here and held on bail for trial by the Supreme court in connection with a riot near Spanlards Bay recently, in which railway tracks were torn up, traffic blocked, and a former member of parliament for Carbonear assaulted and injured. The demonstration started as a protest against a cut in the government dole.

STATE DEMANDS FISHER GIVE UP CRIMINAL CASE

Plotter Kept from Prison by New Trial Plea.

Assistant State's Attorney Grenville Beardsley announced yesterday that mandamus proceedings are to be instituted against Judge Harry Fisher, former chief justice of the Criminal court, to compel him to relinquish the jurisdiction he assumed in the case of Maurice A. Barnett, convicted more than t years ago as the instigator of a fake jewelry plot.

Barnett has been kept out of the penitentiary since last March, the prosecutor said, because Judge Fisher has allowed him his liberty on bond, while the judge has been considering a motion for a new trial. tion was made before Judge Fisher after the Illinois Appellate and Supreme courts decided that the defendant should go to the penitentiary, Beardsley said. He pointed out that Judge Fisher was not the trial judge in the case, Judge Harry B. Miller having presided at the trial.

Plans Plea to Supreme Court.

"Judge Fisher has absolutely no jurisdiction in the case," said Prosecutor Beardsley. "As soon as the Supreme court is in session I shall seek mandamus proceedings. The judge's action has kept Barnett out of prison when both the Appellate and Supreme courts have already passed on the case."

Prosecutor Beardsley pointed out that last spring when a controversy arose over the legality of the special grand jury appointed by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg, the State Supreme court decided that no judge not expressly assigned to the Criminal court has any jurisdiction in criminal cases.

Judge Fisher, who at that time was chief justice of the Criminal court and was seeking to take jurisdiction over the special grand jury, is now assigned to the chancery division of the Circuit court and thus should not have jurisdiction in the Barnett case, which is a criminal matter, Mr. Beardsley said.

Barnett Convicted of Plot.

Barnett was convicted of being the ringleader in the plot wherein Mrs. Laura B. Price, wife of a wealthy box manufacturer, submitted to a fake robbery of her furs and jewels to defraud an insurance company. Barnett was sentenced to one to five years in the penitentiary after a jury trial. Mrs. Price and Max Krakow were sentenced to six month terms in the county jail. They have served their sentences.

The fake robbery occurred in the fall of 1929. The trials were held in February and March of 1930. Barnett carried his fight through every available court and last February the Supreme court ordered him to prison.

In March a petition was filed before Judge Fisher asking a new trial on the ground that there was newly discovered evidence. Assistant State's Attorney Charles Mueller asked that the petition be assigned to the trial judge for hearing, since he was familiar with the evidence. The prosecutor cited an Appellate court decision saying that such motions must be heard by the trial judge.

Refuses to Follow Decision.

Judge Fisher, in refusing to follow the decision of the higher court, said: "The Appellate court is dead wrong and I am not going to follow it."

He kept jurisdiction of the new trial motion and hearings were held from time to time. Barnett in his petition said that he had affidavits to the effect that Joseph Baum, one of the state's witnesses, had changed his original story. Baum later before Judge Fisher said that he had been paid $50 for the affidavit. He said that the affidavit was untrue but that he had agreed to sign it when he was told that it was to be used only for the purpose of trying to get Barnett consideration from the pardon and parole board.

Judge Fisher took the case under advisement last June. When asked yesterday, when he would give a decision, he replied that it would be at the end of this month.

$1,935,901 LOANS THROUGH FARM CREDIT GROUPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The Reconstruction Finance corporation announced today that loans totaling $1,935,901 had been made to 559 farmers and stockmen through the regional agricultural credit corporations during the four weeks they have been in operation. The total disbursements represented an average loan to each borrower of $3,463.

n application for a 35 milion dollar loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation was filed with the interstate commerce commission today by the St. Louis-Kansas City Short Line Railroad company. The money, according to the application, would be used to "complete" a railroad designed to shorten the distance between St. Louis and Kansas City by forty-two miles.

The company seeking the loan was incorporated in 1928 and entered negotiations with Dillon, Reed & Co. of New York for financial backing for the project. The negotiations collapsed in 1929, according to the application, with the collapse of the stock market.

Approval of the loan, it was said, would enable the company to begin construction immediately and would put 20,000 men to work for two years.

SLAYING MOTHER SERIOUSLY ILL; POISON EFFECT

Charleston, Ill., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Inez Carrell, Chicago widow who slew her three children while worried over finances, lay ill of acute appendicitis today in a sanitarium where she is under arrest on murder charges.

Dr. R. H. Craig, city physician, said appendicitis developed yesterday and he planned to operate late tonight unless she improved. He said it probably was induced by the "general poisoning of her system" in the attempt to commit suicide with an overdose of a sedative two weeks ago.

THREE JOLIET CONVICTS AGAIN SEEK FREEDOM

Three prisoners in Joliet penitentiary, who are serving terms of from 10 years to life for robbery with a gun, will seek their freedom Thursday in a hearing on writs of habeas corpus before Circuit Judge Leonard E. Telleen of Rock Island. They are Harry Jennings, sentenced from Chicago in 1922; Peter Kiefer, sentenced from Bloomington in 1925, and Harold Sharp, sentenced from Ottawa in 1926.

The petition for the writs was based on the fact that the legislature reduced the sentence for robbery with a gun to one year to life five years ago, after the trio were sentenced.

Kiefer, Sharp, and Jennings were refused freedom on similar pleas made before Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Woodstock in the middle of September. Judge Shurtleff ruled that the Illinois Supreme court had decided the matter in a decision handed down against Jennings in 1929.

Jennings appeared before Judge Joseph B. David in that year and made his first plea for release. He was successful and was freed. Attorney General Carlstrom appealed to the state Supreme court, where the decision was reversed and Jennings was ordered back to prison. Seach of the records revealed that he had been arrested on a federal charge and sentenced to three years in Leavenworth prison. He was returned to Joliet after his release from Leavenworth in March of this year.

CANADA LIBERAL PARTY TO IGNORE BRITISH TREATY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7.—Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, toda served notice on the government that his party, it returned to power, will not consider itself bound to maintain tariff rates provided for in the new Anglo-Canadian trade agreement, which is effective for five years. Prime Minister Bennett had said that parliament was in honor bound to observe the five year agreement even if there was a change in government. King retorted that the Liberals did not propose to continue tariff policies inaugurated by the Conservative party. The Liberals are fighting against tariff increases against the United States.

PRINCIPAL URGES DONATIONS FOR HUNGRY PUPILS

New Contributions Push Fund Above $11,000.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A letter received yesterday by the Hungry School Children's fund from the principal of a school not far from the loop gives a vivid picture of the task before the fund. The fund is sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

"The Hungry School Children's fund which you are raising will be of untold value to the undernourished and needy children of Chicago this winter," wrote the principal.

Many Children Underfed.

"Such children are found in all parts of the city, but more especially in the poorer sections. Our school, located in one of the poorest sections just south of the loop, is in need of money for free lunches for undernourished children. From one-third to one-half of the total school population falls in that category.

"Can you help us secure money for the needed lunches?"

So, readers, it's up to you.

A few dollars will give a child a free hot lunch every school day, and a few more will feed a high school student who is trying to complete his four year course. Every penny you give will go directly to providing these lunches. Contributions of any amount are welcomed by the fund.

Gifts Pass $11,000 Mark.

$50—In the name of Margaret B. Friedlich.
$5—Mrs. Sarah J. Heckelsweiler, Ruth and Jessie Knox. In Memory of B. J. Samuel's birthday, Esther Stanger, Mrs. Margaret S. Fitch, G. F. Fairbears, N. S. K.
$4—M. A. R.
$2.50—Mrs. B. S.
$2—The Ladies of the Bon Villa, Bridge club, Sincerely, M. Weiss, E. S. S., Christian Hask, Bud and Dick Reeves, G. M.
$1.50—A Friend.
$1.40—Fay Lomad club.

Total	$ 151.91
Previously acknowledged	10,982.05
Grand total	$11,133.96

Hungry School Children Fund

There are 15,000 children who go to public school hungry every morning. A dime a day will furnish a substantial noonday meal for each of them.

Girl Held to Grand Jury After Theft of Dresses

Miss Eva May Anderson, 19 years old, was held to the grand jury in bond of $5,000 yesterday by Judge Frank M. Padden on a charge of stealing dresses from her former employer, Mrs. Etta Ross, 4949 North Kedvale.

GRAIN AND HAY SHOW ENTRIES CLOSE NOV. 10

Midwest farmers who expect to exhibit at the International Grain and Hay show, to be held in connection with the annual fat stock show Nov. 28 to Sept. 3, were advised last night by B. H. Heide, manager of the show, that entries will be accepted if postmarked on or before Nov. 10. More than 5,000 exhibits of field crops are expected in the 36 classes open to all farmers.

"No charge is made for entering this largest of all farm crop expositions," declared Heide. "All that is necessary is to indicate what samples will be sent. Each state is sending a special representative who will receive the samples and prepare them for exhibition. The samples must reach Chicago by Nov. 21 and will be returned to the owners upon request."

SHOOTS WOMAN, KILLS SELF.

Fayetteville, N. C., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Grover L. Easter of Chappells, S. C., a deserter from the 16th artillery, Fort Bragg, critically wounded Mrs. Lena Hales of Fayetteville, who was separated from her husband, and killed himself last night. Officers said the shooting was a case of unrequitted love.

WELFARE FUND DRIVE REACHES $1,776,119 TOTAL

The preliminary drive of the Emergency Welfare Fund of Cook county reached a total of $1,776,119 in subscriptions at a luncheon meeting of the 21 team captains held yesterday in the Chicago club. New subscriptions reported at the meeting amounted to $205,093. The drive is being conducted for a fund of $7,500,000 to finance welfare work other than unemployment relief this winter.

Among the large contributions were: Illinois Bell Telephone company, $75,000; Swift & Co., $50,000; Herald and Examiner, $12,000; Inland Steel company, $10,000; and Wilson & Co., $10,000. The three leading teams were announced as follows: The team of John Stuart, president of the Quaker Oats company, $308,140; George A. Ranney, vice president of the International Harvester company, $153,875; and Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, $150,112.

R. Douglas Stuart, vice president of the Quaker Oats company and president of the fund, told the workers that he hoped they would raise about $3,000,000 before the preliminary campaign ends and the public drive begins on Nov. 14. He added that he understood that many large subscriptions were about to be closed.

An office was opened yesterday morning at 131 South Wabash avenue by Mrs. William S. Monroe for the old-time Yankee circus to be conducted in the Chicago Stadium for the Emergency Welfare Fund by the women's division of the Salvation Army.

STOP COLDS QUICK
—in the Dry Stage!

A cold should be treated promptly the first 24 hours. This is why: A cold ordinarily passes through three stages. The Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days, and the Mucous Secretion Stage. Once a cold gets beyond the first stage it is far more difficult to relieve.

Relief comes quickly if you take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine immediately—because this cold remedy does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels—kills the cold germs and fever in the system—relieves the headache and grippy feeling—tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

No worry about what you're taking when you take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad aftereffects. Does not upset the stomach or make the head ring. For years Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine has been the stand-by of thousands in the treatment of colds and grippe. You're playing safe when you take this famous cold tablet! Every drug store in America sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Handy, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped. Beware of substitutes.

An Oil that reaches vital parts of your Motor as quickly as possible or An Oil that is already on all the parts before your motor starts!

DID YOU KNOW THIS . . . that half of all your motor wear occurs while you're starting your car and letting it warm up!

Here's why: Your motor makes 3,000 to 5,000 revolutions before oil circulates from the crankcase to all parts of the motor. Your motor runs with vital parts receiving no oil from your crankcase reservoir!

What protection do other oils offer you against this half of your motor-wear? The best of these oils "reach all parts in the shortest time," say their makers.

What protection does Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil offer? It is already in and on every part and lubricates safely from the second you step on your starter! A "Hidden Quart" of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil stays up in your motor and never drains away! Other oils drain away during idle periods, leaving parts "dry." Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil actually penetrates and combines with metal surfaces and never leaves any part unlubricated. It cuts starting-wear to the minimum and gives your car longer life!

Like other good oils, Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil is thoroughly dewaxed and circulates freely at subzero temperatures.

Avoid the terrific wear of winter's long warming-up periods. Change today to Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. 30c a quart.

Rule Through Alliances with Mother Country.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JAIPUR, India, Oct. 16.—[By Mail.]—India flowers occasionally in magnificence as the product of its humble, unchanging village life. After a hundred miles of semi-desert and irrigated sections, where men in dirty turbans guide a white bullock and a wooden plow and Ruth in scarlet headdress gathers the leavings in the field of Boaz, Jaipur rises against the evening sky in pink splendor, with the unreality of fairy book pictures.

All the little trickles of trade and land rentals, the ill requited labor of centuries, the long, dark bondage of the poor, flourishes here in castle and temple, wide streets with fancy facades, summer homes on the mountain, parks, fountains where there are more pigeons than at St. Mark's, and, as always, the shady English cantonment far from the noise and dirt of the bazaar.

Gandhi Faces Long Battle.

Jaipur is one of the supposedly self-governing native states, where the next person in importance to the maharaja is the English "resident." England is the "paramount power" not only because of its direct control of British India but through the alliances and treaties with hundreds of native princes, rulers of ancient lineage, who have received royal honors, fixed places in the "warrant of precedence," a certain number of salutes. England upholds them and they in turn bind India to the empire.

With the aid of the princes the non-nationalist Mohammedans and all those Indians who are bound by trade and the silken social meshes that reach down from the British throne the Gandhi independence party has a long journey ahead of it before the United States of India becomes a political reality.

British Make Many Reforms.

The British influence in these ancient principalities has led to many reforms and many of the states are abreast of the rest of India. Jaipur has an English college on the main street, also a Sanscrit college. It has courts of justice instead of the old royal decisions, where unfaithful servants were tossed to the alligators. But the alligators are still there, winking sleepy eyes in a stagnant pond back of the king's palace. And the state elephants sway gently in their stables waiting for the next parade when they will pull the maharaja and his women in their gold coach.

There is a palace for the women in the courtyard. The king has a seven story palace with many porches and turrets. When he awakens in the morning he looks across the court to his temple where Vishnu sits, ruling the world with love. The common people enter by a rear gate and are also allowed to worship there. Women prostrate themselves and kiss the pavement as soon as they touch these sacred pavements.

Holy Men Sit Outside.

Outside the gates sits a group of sadhus, holy men who have covered their naked bodies with ashes and just sit and wait for the spirit to rule them out of all desire and for the people to feed them. Their faces are so painted with caste marks that they resemble a circus clown, but these are very holy men who never smile. Back of the temple the Brahmin priests are saying their morning devotions in low mumur.

There is a gold and flower painted special hall of audience for the king to receive the "resident" and other notables, another hall for him to watch his dancing girls, acres of private gardens, lagoons and fountains, secretarial building, courts, just a touch of today amid the medieval, for this is a walled city and the king has cellars full of gold and jewels, a throne and everything. Three carloads of treasure, including twenty tons of silver, were taken from Jaipur to Bombay this week. Twelve armed men guarded it. The man in charge was dressed in European clothes and spoke excellent English. Over in the neighboring state of Jodphur an expert from London has been appraising the royal jewels and plate. He has been at work for two years and it is said that he still has a long task ahead.

A Variety of Life.

The dusty roads leading into the city are crowded with early morning traffic, bringing a wealth of harvest. Creaking wooden wheeled bullock carts, trains of camels, women with huge bundles balanced on their heads. More wealth for the traders, more taxes for the king.

The life of the road is astonishingly varied. There is no standardization, no sameness in India. Women in white purdah, looking like Halloween joke costumes, the common women in clinking silver anklets, with bits of gold stuck in the side of one nostril, or a bangle of gold hanging between nose and upper lip, a dozen bracelets, perhaps, their dresses leaving the body bare only around the middle of the waist.

Cow Has Special Privilege.

Outside the field work the chief occupation of the Indians seems to be drawing water from wells, filling large clay jars to take home on the head, and redistributing dust around roads and walks with a brush. These are the lowly sweepers, of course, the untouchables, the unclean. And everywhere birds and animal life, which is never taken by the Hindus. They must have separate drinking water for Hindus and Mussulmans, but the same pool will do for sacred cow and people, bathing, and cooking.

The cow is an intimate member of the family group, whether at supper or at noonday siesta by the side of the road. With the same casualness as the animals, the people sit down in the dust anywhere, comb their hair, cook a meal, or take a nap. No people could have fewer wants than these country people, and it is because of their unwanting that there is such greed in higher places.

Gandhi and his extremists would dispossess these princes and rich landowners, redistribute the wealth of India, level things off somewhat. The country people know about him, but it is not their economic future that concerns them now. He is a saint, a god come to earth. They are fifty years behind the people of the towns such as Cawnpore, Lucknow, Delhi, all along that wide path where the mutiny of seventy-five years ago blazed into such terrible retribution both for English and Indians. There is no talk of armed mutiny now, except among the small party of revolutionists who have become desperate assassins.

The hope of the nationalists is pinned on "swadeshi," which means "buy Indian." It is the same as the "buy British" cry of the empire business men. This and the khadi, or home weaving movement sponsored by Gandhi, is expected in time to break the back of the British from a commercial standpoint and force them to yield political control. About all the country people are forced to buy is pieces of cotton. If they refuse to buy this from the English what will become of the Lancashire mills? That is what is happening now, added to a general boycott which is covertly conducted.

A Store Incident.

"I went into a store to buy some cigarets," said an Indian gentleman. "I asked for Gold Flakes. The clerk looked hard at me, as if he did not understand. I repeated the order and he said: 'Are you sure you want Gold Flakes?' There were several men in the store and they looked hard at me. I realized then that this was an English cigaret and I was supposed to buy Indian ones. I do not like the Indian cigarets, so I insisted on the British, but I felt ashamed of it."

In Cawnpore the other day the servant of a man who dealt in British goods was waylaid and severely beaten, after the merchant had refused to boycott British cloth. The boycott is cutting into British business severely in Bombay and other centers. Calcutta is menaced not only by this form of noncoöperation but by terrorists.

Thousands in Prison.

With cold, calculating, courageous persistence the British are endeavoring to meet this situation and "congressmen" are arrested daily to join their fellows in prison. At one time the number of national workers in jail is said to have numbered 85,000. The most repressive laws since the days of the mutiny are in use. These are called "ordinances," temporary measures under the unmeasured power which the government has in emergencies and wherever bills have been introduced to make these permanent a fierce opposition has arisen in legislative halls.

The Congress section of the Indian press has been roughly handled. Homes of editors have been searched, papers suppressed and others forced to put up financial guarantees. The question of what is proper or improper to print is left to government officials. There is, however, a large amount of free criticism of the government going on in the press. The Bombay Chronicle is exceptionally outspoken and nationalist, although the editor complains that the bureaucracy demanded security from the paper for an article which had no reference to civil disobedience and contained no incitement to disorder.

English Press Backs Government.

The larger English papers always support the government and so have no complaints about the situation. They take the tone of their editorials and news from government policy, in so far as nationalism is concerned. The English die hards and the Indian extremists are at opposite poles, and it remains for the liberals and moderates in both countries to try to work something concrete and progressive out of this unwieldy, ununited, religion fissured people.

India's social structure has received a deep shock from the political necessity of the Poona pact, which is the first break in the wall which the untouchables have sought to scale. From Madras to the Frontier provinces the campaign is on to treat these people as human beings, and wells and temples are being opened to them. In Jubulpore a "sweeper" has actually been nominated for public office.

The horizon brightens, but suttee, or the burning alive of widows, is still practiced occasionally; child marriages continue, and a Hindu college professor said recently that by the social laws of his community his family had to purify itself because a Christian had taken food in his house. From south India it is reported that an elder son who had been baptized was found unfit to inherit a property, while a younger son who was serving sentence for murder was found fit.

Doctor Gives Creosote For Dangerous Coughs

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops all coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of all colds and coughs, no matter how long standing, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use. (Adv.)

BRITISH INQUIRY UPHOLDS SYSTEM OF JOBLESS DOLE

[Copyright, 1932, By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The majority report of the royal commission on unemployment insurance, made public today, upholds the "dole" system as the "first line of defense over a large part of the field of employment for a great majority of the unemployed." Moreover, it recommends certain extensions in the system to include domestic servants, and it would include under a separate plan a system of benefits for unemployed agricultural workers. The commission's investigation required two years.

The majority and minority reports agreed that the state should be responsible for training and educating unemployed persons, especially young men and women, during the period of their unemployment.

Would Spend $191,980,000.

Under present conditions, the commission estimates, the proposed pecuniary assistance to the unemployed would cost the government £58,000,000 pounds [$191,980,000] per year. The present debt on the unemployment insurance fund amounts to £115,000,000 [$380,650,000], which the commission would transfer to a separate account to be amortized in sixty-five years.

The majority report was presented to parliament today. It was signed by the chairman of the commission, Judge Holman Gregory, and his six associates. The commission recommends various economies and would take the question out of politics by setting up a permanent statutory commission to guide the government on a flexible administration of insurance in accordance with conditions prevailing at any given period.

Minority Would End Means Test.

The minority report was signed by two Socialist members of the committee, W. Asbury and Mrs. D. C. Rackham, and recommends that unemployed persons receive benefits as long as they are out of work, regardless of whether they are insured. The minority also would completely abolish the so-called means test now in operation to determine the actual need of uninsured jobless persons.

The majority report criticizes successive British governments for making provision for financing unemployment on too low estimates of the number of unemployed. The governments, according to the report, adopted a hand to mouth policy and the "interests both of employers and employed have been sacrificed to political expediency."

The commission says various emergency measures in recent years have resulted in a complicated body of laws which should now be superseded by a consolidated act to get rid of anomalies and make jobless insurance workable.

Would Bar Politics.

Parliament, according to the commission, is not the best qualified group to control the situation. There should be appointed a permanent statutory commission outside of the political arena to advise the government, the report holds.

Instead of a fixed period of twenty-six weeks, to which the insured jobless man is now entitled to benefit in any one year, the commission recommends minimum and maximum periods ranging from thirteen to thirty-nine weeks.

The report says that because of the seasonal character of farm labor, it is inadvisable to try to make the present insurance scheme cover unemployed agricultural laborers, but that some separate plan should be devised for their benefit.

French Decision on U. S. Debt Payment Is Delayed

PARIS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Louis J. Malvy, president of the finance committee of the chamber of deputies, said today the government will explain its plans to his committee before making any definite decision regarding the United States debt payment of $19,261,000 due in December. The question probably will be discussed within the next few weeks. The debate on agricultural problems, which is to be resumed in the chamber tomorrow, probably will last all week.

Dear Mr. Donahue:

The success of State Street Day was impressive evidence of the power of the Press. The splendid cooperation of the newspapers in publicizing the event was principally responsible for the big crowds on the Street and in the stores throughout the day.

The large section which the Chicago Tribune devoted to State Street Day was, I feel, one of the most important factors in focusing the interest of shoppers in the event. I want to thank you on behalf of Marshall Field & Company for your valuable help. The Tribune, in characteristic fashion, did a good job, whole-heartedly, effectively and with a fine spirit of cooperation.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Donahue:

STATE STREET DAY is now a matter of history and record. Our annals in connection therewith, however, would not be complete without some word of recognition and appreciation to those who helped us make it a success.

In behalf of State Street Council, I extend to you most sincere and hearty thanks for the part you played.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Donahue:

We have long been of the opinion that close cooperation between newspapers and advertisers should be productive of much good to both.

The best illustration of what may be done in this regard is what was accomplished when the Chicago daily newspapers cooperated with merchants on State Street Day - October 21st.

Sales of The Fair on that day were increased 48% over the corresponding day of last year. We established the increase entirely by the splendid cooperation of all concerned, the Chicago Tribune quickly showing its effort to demonstrate the pulling power of the Tribune as an advertising medium.

We hope that more of this sort of thing will be done in the future and that State Street Day will be the forerunner of closer cooperation between advertisers and publishers.

Yours very truly,
THE FAIR,

Dear Mr. Donahue

State Street Day proved that the body of business is not dead but dormant, that it is not done but doing, and is even strengthened by its Rip Van Winkle hibernation. It needs only to be aroused to action and you did it beautifully last Friday.

State Street Day was not a hypodermic injection. State Street Day was not a pulmotor treatment. State Street Day was simply an experiment to learn first, whether there was any life left in the body of business, and second, how it could be brought back to activity. The experiment was a gratifying success.

By its preliminary promotion and final presentation, the Tribune spoke for all State Street, and spoke with rare intelligence and effect.

Yours very truly,
Salem B. Baskin

Dear Mr Donahue

The Chicago Tribune really put over State Street Day for us.

I have never seen as aggressive or as effective work as your institution produced — and because of its forcefulness we put 70% of our entire appropriation for the week in your paper.

We liked the results — and we know you'll be interested in the figures:

Increase in unit sales 131%.

Very respectfully yours,

Dear Mr. Donahue:-

I feel that a word of appreciation is due you from the Boston Store for the splendid manner in which your publication supported State Street Day.

The results were very heartening, in view of the fact that this is the first time all of State Street cooperated in a movement of this type.

Yours very sincerely,

Dear Mr. Donahue:

State Street Day was a most impressive demonstration of the value of concerted effort. The editorial cooperation of the various Chicago newspapers; plus the large amount of space used by the merchants, brought about a regular avalanche of buying that spread from one end of the street to the other.

I wish to thank the Tribune on behalf of the Hub for the very excellent assistance of their editorial department.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Donahue:

It occurs to us that the recent experiences of State Street Day have crystallized a feeling that by means of intelligent cooperation the improvement in Chicago business will be materially hastened.

I think that The Tribune and other newspapers working with the great downtown retail stores of this city have shown that public buying can be materially stimulated. For instance, on State Street Day, it would have been difficult to put your finger on any branch of merchandise that seemed to hold a greater attraction than other branches. Our deduction is that depleted home inventories were being filled again. Every division of the business was favorably affected.

The volume results in our store were very satisfactory indeed. Another point which I think is of great interest to all of us is this: - the proportion of shoppers from outside of Chicago far passed all expectations. I believe that the Tribune because of its large circulation in the tributary area was instrumental in attracting a tremendous number of buyers from the vast area around Chicago.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Donahue:-

I should like to have you know that Sears' State Street Store, as a result of Chicago's "STATE STREET DAY" had, by many thousands of dollars, the largest Friday's business it has had this season. Mr. Ray, the Manager of our State Street Store and I both feel that the Chicago Daily Tribune was largely instrumental in bringing about the day's splendid results. We believe that such a day, adequately prepared, should be repeated several times a year, with increasingly good results as the sale gains prestige and momentum.

STATE STREET TELLS THE TRIBUNE ABOUT STATE STREET DAY

On Friday, October 21, Chicago's State Street Stores co-operated to offer the public one of the most attractive buying opportunities in years—State Street Day. From the viewpoint of the public and the stores alike, the event was a sensational success. The Chicago Tribune, alone among Chicago newspapers, devoted an entire section of its issue of Friday, October 21, to this event. In this same issue of the Tribune retail advertisers placed more advertising than they did in any other Chicago newspaper for the event. The Chicago Tribune with its dominant coverage of responsive buying power in Chicago and suburbs is the newspaper that produces volume sales in this market at low cost.

VON PAPEN ASKS NEW REICHSTAG TO 'LEND A HAND'

Appeals to All for Aid in Rebuilding Germany.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—President Paul von Hindenburg and Chancellor Franz von Papen will spare no effort to enable those sections of the new reichstag which really desire to coöperate in the reconstruction of the fatherland to translate that desire into action, the chancellor said today.

At the same time he expressed the conviction that the period of quiet following the German and American elections will have a salutary effect on the world's economy.

Von Papen responded to a remark on the fact that both Germany and the United States were voting at about the same time, in this fashion:

Predicts Stability in U. S.

"No matter how the votes go in the United States tomorrow, Americans will have four years of stability ahead. I fervently hope that with us, too, this election will be the last one in many a year.

"For, what the world, what business, what industry and what labor need above all is transquility, quiet, relief from political excitement.

"I cherish the confident expectation that when the reichstag assembles it will develop a working majority capable of constructive work."

The new legislature was elected yesterday. One of the outstanding results of the voting was that Adolf Hitler's strength dropped from 37.7 per cent of the total ballots to 33 per cent, and his national socialist party delegation in the reichstag was cut from 230 to 195. The communist reichstag membership jumped from 89 to 100, the nationalists increased their membership from 37 to 51, and the socialists dropped from 133 to 121.

Plea to Foes' Patriotism.

Chancellor von Papen admitted that on the face of arithmetical calculations the new reichstag could pass a vote of nonconfidence.

"But when the members make clear to themselves that this majority is purely negative, I trust they will heed President von Hindenburg's appeal to their patriotism," he said. "He will do everything humanly possible to give the reichstag majority an opportunity to co-operate actively."

The result of the election," Von Papen said, met his anticipations exactly. "All we could expect was a gradual strengthening of those elements which are willing to lend a hand—and this obviously took place."

The chancellor said he did not think the increase in the communist vote should cause alarm in foreign countries.

"Communism, of course, is a grave problem everywhere," he said, "but in Germany it merely means that the more radical socialists went over to the communists, just as they did in earlier periods of great economic distress, such as 1923. With better times they will be likely to leave the communist banner again."

Nazis Push Berlin Strike.

Meanwhile Hitler's Nazis announced late tonight that the Berlin transportation strike would be carried on with renewed vigor after the communists had decided to quit. The Nazis and Communists called the "wildcat" strike five days ago.

The Nazis appealed to strikers and the laboring class to join them against "perfidious" Socialists and claimed that the communists, by ordering their men to return to work, showed that they had been making the strike a political issue. Twenty-six persons were arrested yesterday on charges of committing acts of sabotage in connection with the strike.

Post-election disputes resulted today in the knifing to death of a Hitlerite at Chemnitz. Two communists and one Nazi were critically wounded by bullets near Schwelm.

HEARING ADDS TO $300,000 HARRIS SUIT MYSTERY

Mystery continued yesterday to shroud the $300,000 suit brought against Norman W. Harris, son of the chairman of the board of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, by James G. Clark of Mount Kisco, N. Y. A copy of an amended declaration containing ten counts and giving the basis of the action was handed to Circuit Judge John R. Caverly by Clark's attorney, Lloyd C. Whitman, with the understanding the presentation was not for record.

After reading the counts in his chambers several times the judge declared he would not be responsible for giving out the information contained in them. Attorney Whitman also declined to discuss the counts. Attorney Jay Fred Reeve, representing Harris, said he was making no effort to keep the basis of the suit a secret, but would not disclose the nature of the counts.

The judge set arguments for Nov. 17, and Attorney Reeve said he would contest the filing of the petition on the ground that the action is "against public policy."

In the declaration Clark alleges Harris had promised to pay him $500 a month for life in return for "certain chattels" and also to make provision in his will for Clark and two small daughters. Clark has been divorced by Mrs. Dorothy Funk Clark, who left him in 1931. Harris is married and has one child.

STRUCK IN HEAD BY A BULLET, HE TAKES IT AS JOKE

William Klynloos of 10125 Emerald avenue was struck in the forehead by a bullet yesterday but was living to joke about it last night. "It just bruised me and didn't hurt much," he said. He's keeping the bullet as a souvenir. Klynloos was riding on a State street car at 27th street when the bullet, fired from a .22 caliber rifle, crashed through two front windows of the car and hit him. Police said the window glass had helped to slow up the bullet thus sparing Klynloos' life.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—John Hughes Curtis, the shipbuilder from Norfolk, Va., who was convicted by a jury in New Jersey of hoaxing the authorities in their search for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's kidnaped son, received a remittance of his sentence of a year in jail today.

A representative of the attorney general's office and the Hunterdon county prosecutor agreed to the action when Curtis came before Judge Amos O. Robbins in Flemington, N. J., with his attorney.

A $1,000 fine, imposed with the year prison term this spring, was paid. One $1,000 bill was handed to the county sheriff, and Curtis walked out of the eighteenth century courthouse, a free man.

Curtis had claimed that he was in contact with the baby kidnapers, and took Col. Londbergh to several land and sea trips, all of which proved futile. His arrest followed the finding of the baby's body in the woods near Hopewell, with indications that the child had been dead all the time Curtis had been operating his hoax.

War Chief Predicts End of Capitalism.

MOSCOW, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Climaxing a two day celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the soviet régime, K. E. Voroshiloff, commissar for war, told 50,000 troops of the Moscow garrison assembled in Red square today that the world depression signalizes the end of capitalism.

His address followed a parade of about 1,000,000 soldiers, sailors, workers and peasants representing all the far flung Socialist Republicans of the soviet union.

Standing beside the war commissar, who was the only speaker, were Joseph Stalin, secretary of the communist party and actual head of the soviet union; M. Molotoff, president of the council of peoples' commissars; Michael Kalinin, president of the central executive committee of the government, and other leaders.

Leaders Review Parade.

These leaders earlier in the day had stood atop the Lenin mausoleum and smiled and waved their caps to the marchers.

"Our increasing successes in Socialist construction will continue until Socialism comes to the whole world," declared Voroshiloff. "Fifteen years ago we won the right to construct a Socialist society at the cost of much sacrifice of blood. We now are building only the first stories, but our immense successes so far, at a time when the rest of the world is unable to cope with the depression, show what can be done in the future."

Reiterating that soviet Russia desires peace with the world, Voroshiloff added: "We do not want to fight, but our frontiers are sacred and we will never let any one cross them."

Hails Stalin's Leadership.

All downtown traffic was suspended and only essential industries operated. The celebration began yesterday and tomorrow is set aside as an official "day of rest." Banners waving over the streets carried new slogans for the second five year plan, beginning on Jan. 1, and satirized the hated capitalists.

Fourteen of the prettiest co-eds at Northwestern university practiced yesterday with Hal Kemp, orchestra leader, for the Navy ball to be held at Medinah Athletic club on Nov. 18 by Sextant, honorary naval society of the Naval Reserve Officers' Training corps at the university. One of the group, each representing a sorority, will be chosen queen of the evening and crowned by naval officers who will be guests of honor. A formal dinner for members of Sextant and their guests will precede the dancing.

COOKERY SCHOOL TO START TODAY ON NORTH SIDE

Aragon Ballroom Doors Will Open at 11:30.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

THE TRIBUNE School of Cookery, which in the last two weeks has been attended by 40,000 women, will go into its third and final week today in the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue.

After visiting the polls in the morning, some 5,000 women are expected to attend today's session of the cooking school, which will open at 1 o'clock with a preliminary program of music and dancing by stage and radio stars. The ballroom seats 5,000.

Thousands of west side women who heard Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, home ecomonics authority, on the stage of Guyon's Paradise ballroom last week, during the second week of THE TRIBUNE School of Cookery, indicated their intention of attending this week's sessions on the north side for further instructions from Mrs. Chitwood.

All Women Are Invited.

While this week's lectures are held on the north side especially for the benefit of north side housewives, women throughout the city are invited to attend. Mrs. Chitwood's lectures and the foods she prepares will differ from those of the previous two weeks. Each day's lecture also will differ from another day's.

Phil Maxwell, master of ceremonies, will open the program of entertainment promptly at 1 o'clock. The doors will be open after 11:30 a. m.

Billy Bryant, whose Showboat company is giving "Hamlet" at the Cort theater; Clyde Shafer, supervillain, and other members of the Showboat company will be on the program.

Community singing by the audience will be led by Frank Bennett, accompanied at the piano by his wife, Mrs. Cathryn Bennett. Solos by Ruth Streeter and by Lawrence Salerno, W-G-N baritone, will be heard. Ed Smith, W-G-N announcer, will appear, and the Betty Jones School of Dancing will sponsor dance novelties.

Mary Meade to Talk.

Mr. Maxwell will then introduce Miss Mary Meade, THE TRIBUNE'S cooking editor, who will make a short talk. Mrs. Chitwood's lecture will follow, with an intermission in which Carl Moore, orchestra director, will make an appearance through the courtesy of Kennaway Music and Entertainment, Inc., and more dances numbers will be given. Miss Meade also will speak over W-G-N at 11 a. m. today on subjects related to the school of cookery.

Tomorrow afternoon Ben Bernie of the College inn, Hotel Sherman, will act as guest master of ceremonies.

Club women of the north side will act as hostesses at each day's session of the cooking school. Today's hostesses will include Mrs. H. J. Klug, 1639 Farwell avenue, director Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Jane Rice of the Hotel Belmont, Chicago Woman's club; Mrs. G. V. McIntyre, 4245 Hazel avenue, president of the Big Sisters, and Mrs. W. H. Hermsdorf, 4511 North Francisco avenue, president, Woman's club of the People's church.

Tomorrow's Hostesses.

Tomorrow's hostesses will be Mrs. Otto C. Dwors, 2042 Osgood street, women's auxiliary, German group of A Century of Progress; Mrs. H. O. Nickel, 1969 Foster avenue, American Daughters of Sweden; Mrs. Adolph Warner, 1835 Lunt avenue, Catholic Woman's club; Mrs. E. J. Marke, 4950 North Lockwood avenue, president, Altrui club of Jefferson Park, and Miss Marie W. Becker, 6222 North Irving avenue, vice president, Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs.

Thursday's hostesses will be Mrs. G. B. Schulten, 1469 Edgewater avenue, Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. John Leine, 6037 North Fairfield avenue, vice president, American Daughters of Sweden; Mrs. E. V. Brooks, 1337 Albion avenue, treasurer, Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Charles Elson, 2210 Estes avenue, Catholic Woman's club of Rogers Park.

M'GURN MANN ACT SENTENCE IS SET ASIDE

The two year prison sentence imposed on "Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, Capone gangster, for conspiracy to violate the Mann act with Louise Rolfe, who is now his wife, was reversed yesterday by the United States Supreme court. The four month sentence given the Rolfe woman was also set aside by the high court.

McGurn and the woman were sentenced by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley for making trips together in 1928 to Jacksonville, Fla., and Gulfport, Miss. The sentences were upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, with Presiding Judge Samuel Alschuler dissenting.

The Supreme court held with the arguments made in the appeals of McGurn and his wife. The trips were not made as a conspiracy to violate the Mann act, defense attorneys argued, because McGurn had been living with Miss Rolfe in Chicago. Any immorality, the decision held, was incidental and not the purpose of the trips.

PENSION SCHEME NEAR COLLAPSE IN NEW ZEALAND

80,000 State Servants Face Loss of Savings.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Nov. 7.—Unless remedies are found at once, New Zealand's 80,000 state servants, teachers, railroad workers, and members of the various administrative bureaus, will see their pensions scheme collapse. This startling disclosure is contained in a report presented to the government.

The fund is $115,000,000 short and, until this is made up, the pensions plan for state servants remains unsound and its future uncertain. Present payments can be met only by draining the contributions, which are being paid by men still in active service. These payments should be accumulating to meet payments due them when they retire.

This superannuation fund for state workers was started by the one-time Liberal party leader, Sir Joseph G. Ward, whose return to power was the feature of the 1928 political campaign. Ward, known as "the wizard of finance," launched the plan with the belief that the future would take care of itself.

He credited all contributors with the service they had already marked up in the government register. There was no cash to meet the needs and the government showed no intention of making good the lack of funds.

In the beginning the scheme was satisfactory from the point of view of persons retiring from state service. They were entitled to quit after 45 years, or even sooner. The retiring allowance was a life pension of two-thirds of the salary at the time of retirement.

But while the money was poured out in pensions, little cash came in. The government payments, calculated as bonuses, never touched the point necessary to allow the fund to become a fund. They were drained along with the rest.

Fear Life Savings Lost.

Today 3,000 retired state servants draw $3,000,000 from the fund each year. Present contributions total $1,200,000 a year. Thus thousands of state workers see their life savings and prospects of a pension disappearing in the haze of the government's financial difficulties.

The growing desperation is stressed in the report that government contributions are now $37,000,000 in arrears. At the same time the economy commission, appointed by the government to investigate the nation's financial distress and devise ways of economy to balance the budget, reveals that the total liability of the government is $115,000,000.

"It is a liability from which the state cannot honorably escape," the commission said. "Unless the financial policy is altered there will be nothing whatever to refund the existing contributors any portion of their contributions."

Charges Poor Management.

The commission charges that the government "acted unwisely in times of stress" through retiring superfluous public servants in order to remove their salaries from the budgetary liabilities.

The one way out of this dilemma, the committee advises, is to cut benefit rates, raise contributions and lengthen terms of service for members of the pension scheme. Contributors must now serve until they are 60 years old, or 55 years in the case of women, combined with 35 years' service.

THE HUNTER HUNTED!

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the famous artist, R. Atkinson Fox . . . inspired by the battle between an enraged bull buffalo and the savage Indian hunters whose lances roused the beast to furious charge. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

GERMAN AND AMERICAN ELECTIONS.

Thirty-five million German voters went to the polls Sunday, and when the returns were counted six parties had seats in the reichstag and no party could form a government. The smallest party had eighteen seats, the largest 195. The largest is Hitler's National Socialist, whose natural enemy, the communist party, has a hundred seats. The Reds gained and the Nazis lost in the election.

Twelve parties went into the election. A half dozen went into the American election, but only two could possibly figure in any material way in the result. Americans reconcile their differences of opinion sufficiently before an election so that they can produce an administration by their votes. When the ballots have been counted they have a government. There may be considerable confusion in congress over legislative issues, but the continuity of administration is assured. Disputed electoral votes threw the Hayes-Tilden election into a special election commission, but the decision was there when electoral college controversy was decided. The country has not had to fall back on election by the house of representatives for over a hundred years because the people have been able to divide on the two party line.

Political conflict at the dagger's point as represented by the issue between Reds and Hitlerites with a multiplication of parties in between the extremes can neither produce nor sustain a republic. Democracy requires more common ground than that. Even if there is stalemate in legislation there must be an administration of law and of government function. When a society discards the hereditary system of providing continuity in administration it must, above all, be able to supply an equivalent out of its political action.

The American traditionalism which sustains the two major parties provides the common ground needed for a practical agreement. The republic does not disintegrate into so many irreconcilable fragments that it cannot get a government out of its voting.

REVENUE FROM THE HOME BREW.

As might have been expected, the receipts from such new taxes as are now in effect have fallen far under expectations. The treasury estimates, which were much too high, being the product of an optimism that hoped rather than knew, proved to be unreal and unsubstantial. The September yield on the malt, wort, and grape concentrate tax was $315,000; the estimate was $6,833,000. In this one instance it was more than six million dollars less than anticipation. Logically, of course, there should have been no expectation whatever. The taxed ingredients are, to common knowledge, in general use because they make an alcoholic beverage not, at least in the case of the malt and wort, intoxicating in common use, but nevertheless prohibited under the eighteenth amendment by the Volstead act. Congress made no bones of the hypocrisy of refusing to allow a legal beer to be produced commercially and taxed regularly and at the same time of handing the treasury department an expectation of getting money from illegal practices.

It may be too bad that the treasury can't get the money from the contraband beverages that it expected to get, but there is a palpable justice in the failure of a deceit. It would not be much of a greater absurdity if the government sent out exhorters urging the people to make more beer and wine to bring the revenue up to the estimates. When congress took this oblique method of getting taxes from prohibited uses it cleared the way for any subsequent jocosity the government might perpetrate.

LADY LUCK.

A woman of fifty or so appeared in the news reels recently because she had been lucky to win $50,000 in the Irish sweepstakes. With her husband she was looking forward to more music and flowers in later life than had been in the family calculations before, probably with an excess of optimism and small reckoning of disillusioning chances.

These sweepstakes are regarded officially in the United States as very bad medicine for the people, and the postoffice department puts a heavy hand on circulation of information about them. The news reels have greater freedom than newspapers which use the postoffice for circulation.

It is thought to be demoralizing, and no doubt it can be, when a people set too much store on future happiness to be obtained by risking a dollar to get ten. The more the dollar is needed the worse the practice is. Theorists can build up an explanation of fallen or decayed nations on a theory that the people learned to trust to chance instead of work and thus got their come-uppance. Nevertheless the poor worm can be hunted too hard, and even if he can't turn he can squirm in the direction of the prohibited diversions.

Uncle Sam can be, and has been, made a most eccentric moral guardian, more frequently by departmental orders than by acts of congress. The American principle that laws are made by the people and administered by government is fractured most often by bureaucratic orders with which the people have had nothing to do whatever—the American equivalent of the medieval king in council. The federal government proceeds by department ukase and the states by legal method to hedge in the petty gambling instincts of the people. It's a tight control in doctrine even if a loose one in operation. Possibly the national disposition for speculation is related in part to the attempted suppression of more trivial adventures with chance.

REDUCING UNCLE SAM.

A jackass liberal says that the citizens demanding economy in government talk a lot but are afraid to specify what they want cut out. A person blindfolded could take an ax at the federal structure and destroy ten useless institutions for one that had any value in a short time with blind chopping. Without any question any one could lay down a scheme of federal retrenchment which would be all to the good. For instance, the abolition of the departments of labor, agriculture and commerce. The necessary vestiges of these departments, if any, could be retained as bureaus in other departments. There is where they began before the federal government conceived its mission to be that of spending as much money as it possibly could raise on every project any group of hobbyists could present. The work of retrenchment is a plain job of knocking big ones into little ones. Each extraneous activity of government has begun as a little one and has rapidly enlarged itself into a big one. There is constant pressure to create more little ones, as, for instance, the department of education, which will at once become a big one.

The department of commerce has recently extended itself into a twenty million dollar palace. If it were a section of the state department it could, very likely, direct all of the consular service which is required by American commerce. Any other activities it undertook it should require defense before a fish-eyed, skeptical jury. The department of labor is a political racket. Any real services which it provides for the American people could be performed by a division of, say, the interior department. The department of agriculture likewise would have all the room it needed if it were a section or division of the interior department.

The department of agriculture is merely a sluiceway for subsidies which never should be granted, to states which shouldn't expect to receive them. It does no good to agriculture which can offset the injuries. If direct taxation such as income taxes were apportioned under the old constitutional provision, as they then were required to be, to the states in proportion to population, the subsidies would receive their quietus. The income tax amendment has made it possible to endow the mendicant states with the funds of the taxpaying states. It has been a most serious upset in the original ideas of American taxation.

Any one could take a pencil and in two hours strike out of an appropriation bill the items of subvention and subsidy which represent the destructive burden of wasted public money and oppressive taxation. They relate to the edification of adults and the alleged education of children, the eradication of weeds, the building of dams, the irrigation of land, the suppression of private enterprise, the extension of political pay rolls, the ornamenting of villages with public edifices, the dredging of duck creeks and bullfrog ponds, the control of private habit, and the maintenance of censorship. It would be the easiest job in the world for any one with a reasonable amount of common sense and a fair idea of what the federal government really ought to be to take a billion dollars out of the federal budget, if in attempting it he were not surrounded by a mob of other citizens seeking only to retain jobs which should not be filled, grants of money which should not be made, and activities which should not be countenanced.

VISITING CRUSOE'S ISLE.

[New York Times.]

An Englishman—a botanist, to judge by his technical knowledge of ferns and palms—recently made the mistake of visiting Juan Fernandez, Robinson Crusoe's island. His shattered illusions make doleful reading in the London Times. A mass of land that towered several thousand feet some 400 miles off Valparaiso looked promising enough from the deck of a steamer. The investigations should have ended there. Where was the sand on which Man Friday had left the ominous footprint? Rock—nothing but rock. And where were the blacks that so alarmed Crusoe? In their stead political prisoners, would-be presidents of Chile and their more ambitious hangers-on. Defoe's goats were there, leaping from shelf to shelf, just as in the time of Robinson Crusoe, or rather Alexander Selkirk, his prototype in the flesh. A weary, tortuous ascent led 1,800 feet up to the lookout from which, for five longing years, Selkirk scanned the horizon for a sail. The spot is marked by a stone erected by the officers of H. M. S. Topaze in 1868. Were they honoring Alexander Selkirk, a sailing master of the Cinque Ports when he was voluntarily marooned in 1704 and a lieutenant in the royal navy when he died? Or was it Robinson Crusoe?

No, this is not the desert island of boyhood dreams. The dumping ground of political offenders has a definite location on the map. Crusoe's isle can be found only in Defoe's imaginary geography. Latitude and longitude, Great Circle sailing, compass and sextant—these avail nothing in the quest. We must wing thither on the pinions of Defoe's imagination. It is your boy adventurer clad in a fringed leather jacket bought in a department store and armed with a deadly wooden musket, as Crusoe would have called it, the fearless pathfinder stalking the treacherous Iroquois in the back yard, who makes the flight with ease. Unsuccessful revolutionists clad in machine made clothes and earning a living by catching lobsterlike langousts or making canes from palms? Nonsense. These are cannibals that must be watched. And this rocky shore described so erroneously by the botanical gentleman in the London Times? There's sand everywhere. Any one can see Friday's footprint in it who knows how to look. Crusoe's parrot whistling and squawking, his barking dog, his mewing cats, Crusoe himself hallooing to Friday in the forest—they are all there on the island. Only one must never take the steamer as the London botanist did to look for them.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WHAT, OUR ROOSTERS CROWING already? Even before the votes are counted? Even before the most of them are cast? Yes, indeed, even before they're split. These are Norman Thomas roosters, and they are doing their crowing now. They can do it better now than after the election. However, they will crow then, too, for whatever happens our peerless leader will have a moral victory, and one can crow over a moral victory before, during, and afterwards. Which is the nice part about a moral victory. That's what the "I don' wanna lose my vote" people can't understand. They think if you vote for somebody who gets licked, then they've lost their vote. We moral victory fellows, we're just the other way around. All we're afraid of is that Norman Thomas might be elected. For in that it wouldn't be a moral victory. However, the danger is not so great as to keep us awake nights. Especially as our peerless leader will not vote himself, having failed to register. So with Mr. Thomas not voting we have little fear of not winning a tremendous moral victory. So go to it, roosters, crow your heads off.

This pageant—not until I see
The end.

WHILE MR. HOOVER MADE a speech in Denver Sunday he wanted it distinctly understood it was a speech about the home fires and had nothing to do with the campaign, as he would not make a political speech on the Sabbath under any circumstances. Which reminds us of the little boy who was sitting on the floor busy with his building blocks on Sunday. His mother spoke up and said, "Willie, you mustn't play with your blocks on Sunday." "O, it's all right," said Willie, keeping on with his toys, "I'm building a church."

WE CONTINUE in a state of wonder and amazement that Mr. Farley, the w. k. chairman of the Democratic national committee, claims only forty-eight states for Mr. Roosevelt. This may be, as has been claimed by some, because of the fact there are only forty-eight states, but knowing the proneness of national chairmen to make enthusiastic forecasts we prefer to think that it is because of Mr. Farley's innate modesty as well as desire rather to minimize the Democratic victory than exaggerate it.

POOR APPETITE IN CHILDREN.

DR. JOSEPH BRUENNEMANN says that poor appetite in children is much the most prevalent present day disorder. Somewhere about 80 per cent of the children have it. This has not always been so, and there is significance both in its fairly recent origin and in its wide prevalence. The reasons for it are several fold.

Among them are: Too few children associates, particularly at the table; too much coaxing, coercion, knowledge of feeding, choice of foods, excitement, attention from mothers, and a lack of consideration of the child's way of thinking.

Dr. Brennemann says no child should ever be forced or coaxed to eat. Put his food before him and leave the child to do the rest. If he has not eaten after a short while begin removing the foods from the table, one article at a time. Pay no attention to the child, and when he thinks you are quite indifferent he may start eating; or he may even ask you to leave some dish. If he does not, remove all food and consider the matter closed.

... some of the wards of the Children's hospital the food is wheeled into the middle of a large ward and the children are allowed to take what they want. They are not compelled, coaxed, or even advised to take anything or to avoid anything. The possibility of eating as they please has entirely eliminated the anorexia, or absence of appetite, 80 per cent prevalent among children in their own homes.

Nor has it done compensating harm. It is their experience that a child who eats too much meat for one meal, or several, will switch from meat to vegetables, and will stay on a vegetarian diet voluntarily until he reëstablishes his balance. Dr. Brennemann does not get excited when a child eats five bananas or seven helpings of potato, or ten eggs at a meal, as he has seen happen. He knows that the pendulum will swing and that nutrition will be kept in balance. If, perchance, there is an attack of indigestion, it passes in a few hours or yields to a laxative. Such an accident would not compare in importance with the anorexia and undernutrition which is the alternative.

Before accepting this demonstration and drawing deductions from it two facts must be considered. One is that the hospital dietitians put on that movable cafeteria counter only wholesome foods. Certain articles are not put there, and the child, therefore, has no chance to pick them. The other is the well known fact that the best cure for the poor appetite child is to put him in a children's hospital, home, or asylum. When a child finds himself eating with other children and with no special attention from nurse, parent, adult, or any one, he is almost certain to have a desire to eat.

SNORE PREVENTIVES.

C. A. W. writes: I am a woman 68 years old. When I sleep I snore loud enough to wake the dead. What can I do to prevent it? When I awake in the morning my tongue is dry and it feels as though it had been scalded. Is that a bad symptom?

REPLY.

Learn to sleep on your stomach or side. In so far as you can, sleep with your head in a position that causes the mouth to close naturally. When one sleeps on the back, gravity makes the lower jaw drop. When this happens the lips come apart, air travels in by two routes, and the soft palate begins to flop.

Some persons wear a head stall that holds the lower jaw up. Some hold the lips together by adhesive tape. Dry mouth and coated tongue due to sleeping with the mouth open are remedied by scraping the tongue with the dull back of a table knife, and by chewing gum.

DILATED PUPIL.

Mrs. H. J. writes: What would be the cause of the pupil of one eye being dilated when the other is normal? The pupil of my daughter's left eye is much larger than that of the other. It has been this way for about three years. What is the cause, and what would correct it?

REPLY.

There are several causes of unequal pupils. Among them are tumors of the brain. It is not apt to be an unimportant symptom, and an effort should be made to find the cause. There is no treatment except that based on the cause.

SALE OF MORTGAGES.

Buena Vista, Ill., Oct. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Has a president of a national bank a legal right to sell mortgages or securities to his depositors; that is, mortgages that he is selling on a commission? A president of a national bank sold mortgages to my parents on western land. 2 When he sold these mortgages to them he said they were mortgages of his own holding and that he would take them back any time and reimburse them. It turned out that he was selling them for an investment concern for a commission. He refused to make the mortgages good. Is this a violation of the law? If it is a violation, what can be done? C. B. L.

1. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned.

2. If you can prove a material discrepancy between his representations and the facts, it might be worth while for you to go over all of your facts in a personal interview with an attorney, but we doubt if you will recover anything from the bank officer.

AUTOMOBILE LIGHTS.

Glen Ellyn, Ill., Oct. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise me if it is legal to display two green lights on the rear of a passenger car? A number of my friends have them, but I am under the impression that the rear lights are for trucks only. F. H.

The Illinois motor vehicle law provides in section 16 [c] that after Oct. 1, 1931, trucks and buses, "the length of which, together with any trailer or trailers in tow thereof, is more than 25 feet and the width of which is more than 80 inches . . . shall display on the front thereof [in] a horizontal line near the top of the vehicle approximately 6 inches apart three green lights plainly visible at a distance of at least 200 feet; also on the rear thereof in a horizontal line approximately 6 inches apart 3 red lights visible at a distance of at least 200 feet; also on the front of the body of said vehicle near the lower left hand corner one yellow or amber tinted reflector; also on the rear of the body of said vehicle not more than 12 inches from the lower left hand corner one red reflector.

"All motor vehicles of the second division more than 20 feet long and all trailers and semi-trailers . . . shall display on each side of the vehicle at approximately the 1-3 points of the length of the same at a height not exceeding five feet of the surface of the road, and reflecting on a line approximately at right angles to the center line of the vehicle, two amber tinted reflectors of a type approved by the secretary of state."

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 8, 1916.

CHICAGO.—At 7 a. m. the result of the presidential election remained in great doubt—apparently hanging on California, Kansas and Minnesota. Arizona and New Mexico are claimed by both Hughes and Wilson campaign managers; California is probably Democratic. Idaho, Oregon, and Wyoming are leaning to Wilson. Managers of both candidates are claiming victory—the Wilson managers vociferously. Incomplete returns give Hughes seventeen states with 242 electoral votes. There are eight states with 73 votes in doubt. Mr. Wilson, according to incomplete returns, has carried nineteen states with 196 votes and almost certainly three others with 20 votes. He also is expected by his managers to get 52 others if he carries Minnesota and Kansas. Hughes swept the majority of the most populous states of the Union. He carried all of the larger Republican strongholds except Ohio. In New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania, the Hughes vote approached landslide proportions.

CHICAGO.—Frank O. Lowden was elected governor of Illinois by a plurality over Gov. Edward F. Dunne that is now in excess of 150,000 and is likely to go to 175,000. With him were elected all candidates for state offices on the Republican ticket—namely: John G. Oglesby, lieutenant governor; Louis L. Emmerson, secretary of state; Edward J. Brundage, attorney general; Len Small, treasurer; Andrew Russel, auditor of public accounts; Mary E. Busey, William L. Abbott and Otis W. Holt, trustees of the University of Illinois.

CHICAGO.—Among probable winners in the Cook county election are these: Maclay Hoyne [Dem.], state's attorney; John Kiellander [Rep.], clerk Superior court; Peter M. Hoffman [Rep.], coroner; George K. Schmidt [Rep.], assessor, long term; Harry Emerson [Rep.], surveyor; Charles H. Sergel [Rep.], president sanitary district; Robert E. Crowe [Rep.], judge Circuit court; Joseph Sabath [Dem.], judge Superior court.

PARIS.—The French took all the German positions on a front of two and one-half miles extending from Chaulnes wood to southeast of Ablaincourt refinery, says the war office communication. The villages of Ablaincourt and Pressoire and Ablaincourt cemetery were captured. On the Somme front from July 1 to Nov. 1, the Franco-British forces have captured 71,532 men, 1,449 officers and 985 machine guns. They took also 178 field guns and 215 trench mortars.

ROME.—A surprise attack on Italian positions in the Adige valley, between Loppio and Mori, was undertaken by the Austrians on Nov. 5. The war office announced today that the attempt was unsuccessful. In the Travignola valley the Austrians continued without success to attack Italian positions.

BOSTON, Mass.—Fifty-four persons were drowned tonight when a crowded passenger car of the Boston Elevated Street railway plunged through an open drawbridge into Fort Point channel just outside of the South station terminal. The car fell forty feet to the water, which is seventy-five feet deep at this point. Twelve persons were rescued by fire boats and tugs.

WHAT A MARKET!

Although the metropolitan market is only ¼ of 1% of the country's total area, 13.6% of the country's retail trade is done here. There are 2,927,457 families who spend a total of nearly seven billion dollars, an average of $2,300 yearly per family and shop in 177,000 stores.

The wholesale trade in the New York district amounts to more than 16 billions per year . . . 24% of the whole country's total. Of the city's 1930 population over nine years old, 54% were gainfully employed (more than 3,100,000). Factory workers alone total 1,110,000; professional service, 280,000; banking, brokerage insurance, and real estate, 207,000; wholesale and retail trade, 519,000.

There is no market like New York, not only in its size and richness, but in its ready response to newspaper advertising. To cover this vast market . . . in all of its essentials . . . the Herald Tribune provides a never-failing open door.

MRS. HARRIMAN, RAIL MAGNATE'S WIDOW, DEAD

Active for Years in Charities.

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Edward Henry Harriman, widow of the famous railroad financier and builder, died tonight after a brief illness. She was 81 years old.

Mrs. Harriman, who was well known for her philanthropies, was the former Mary Williamson Averell, daughter of W. J. Averell, banker and railroad official of Rochester, N. Y. She was born in this city on July 2, 1851, and spent much of her youth in Ogdensburg, N. Y., where she was married to Mr. Harriman on Sept. 10, 1879.

Mr. Harriman died on Sept. 9, 1909. His will disposed of an estate valued at more than $100,000,000. He named Mrs. Harriman his sole beneficiary and executrix.

For many years she had played an important part in the civic, philanthropic, educational and artistic life of the country.

Her contributions to charities were widespread. She was decorated by foreign governments for her services, had contributed largely to the Red Cross and found time always to take an active interest in the welfare of railroad workers.

RITES TOMORROW FOR A. P. STALLE, HOTEL OFFICIAL

Funeral services for Albert P. Stalle, chief buyer for the Hotel Sherman company, will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the Church of the Atonement, Kenmore and Ardmore avenues. Burial will be in Acacia cemetery.

Mr. Stalle, who was 58 years old, died Saturday in his home, 6354 North Hermitage avenue, of pneumonia. He was born in Monte Carlo and came to the United States in 1901. He was employed at the Hotel Sherman for 18 years, first as chef and later as chef's steward or buyer, for all of the hotels operated by the Sherman Hotel company.

Last June Mr. Stalle was presented by the French government with the medal of the Order of Merite Agricole for his activity in forming an organization of chefs de cuisine in Chicago. His widow, Mrs. Eloise Rudelius Stalle, and four children, Albert W., George E., Lucile M., and Evelyn M. Stalle, survive.

U. S. ARMS ENVOY SEES MUSSOLINI; TALK FOR HOUR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 7.—Norman H. Davis, leader of the American disarmament delegation, discussed disarmament with Premier Mussolini for an hour this afternoon. Two more conversations between the two are scheduled for tomorrow.

Although no communique was issued, it is understood that Davis, upon asking Mussolini his opinion of Germany's demand for equality in armaments, was told that Germany has a juridical right to rearm, but that Italy is anxious to see general disarmament instead.

Davis was a guest at dinner of Alexander C. Kirk, American chargé d'affaires, tonight. He will be entertained at a banquet given by Mussolini tomorrow evening.

JUNIOR LEAGUER IS FOUND DEAD IN GAS FILLED ROOM

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Miss Mildred Harbeck, 30, a member of the Junior league, was found dead today on a bed in a rear room of her apartment at 306 Lexington avenue. The room was filled with gas, which leaked out of a tube disconnected from the gas stove.

The police listed the death as accidental, but are continuing to investigate the circumstances.

The police found no notes or messages by the dead woman. It is said the family owned the house, which is located near Thirty-seventh street, in the old Murray hill residential section, now a district of hotels and business offices.

Old Fashioned Book Written by Swinnerton

"The Georgian House" Is Leisurely Novel.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Georgian House," by Frank Swinnerton. [Doubleday-Doran.]

IT has been three years since Frank Swinnerton, who won such startlingly immediate fame with "Nocturne," has given us a novel. We—the readers of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE—have been fortunate, however, in hearing from him every week in the letter which he writes from London for the Saturday book page, and we feel an especially intimate interest in "The Georgian House," knowing that it was being written during the weeks—and the months—that we have been receiving the weekly news budget from him. We may even look for marks of those letters in the book.

MR. SWINNERTON.

We would not find them, however, for Mr. Swinnerton is that truly ambidextrous literary person, a critic and an essayist with one hand and a novelist with the other and, while the two talents foster one another, they do not make themselves obvious in their interrelationship.

"The Georgian House" is a fine old fashioned novel, both technically and in spirit and material. By that I mean that there are no modern tricks of technique in it; that the carpentering of the novel is as solid and fine and permanent as—well, as that in the Georgian house, for instance, which gives this book its title, a house which had already stood a couple of hundred years and was the finest house in the village when the story opens. The style is the style of the classic English novel, firm, rhythmic, flowing, sonorous, with all of the subjects having predicates, and all of the verbs subjects. There is nothing staccato or scherzo about "The Georgian House" despite its mysterious tenseness. It gives the impression, without being so at all, of a long, leisurely tale. It is only a little over 300 pages, but there is so little rush in either the style or the tempo of the book that the reader is a little surprised when he has finished it to realize that there has been a double murder, two seductions (at least), forgery, life in Sing Sing, lost wills, blackmail, and other spectacular events encompassed by its quiet, leisurely, charming narrative. It is like the work of a skilled prestidigitator—the means is concealed from the eye, only the result is apparent, and that so different from what one thinks.

The spirit of "The Georgian House" is as quiet and leisurely as its style (and as charmingly, gently amusing). Drama is clothed in the casual veil of everyday happenings and when something spectacular does happen Mr. Swinnerton has so thoroughly calmed the reader by his magic of sharing with him the village peace and quiet that the reader lulls his excitement properly and sedately.

Not that "The Georgian House" is dull—far from it. It has the indefinable quality—that "It"—which makes the reader want and want very MUCH to know what is happening on the next page. But that wanting is a very gentlemanly or ladylike wanting, a delightfully charmed rather than a hectically witched allurement.

With the drama that is in "The Georgian House" (and immediately outside it) it may seem a contradiction to say that the material as well as the technique and the spirit is "old fashioned." But the tragedies and the comedies, the nicenesses and the naughtinesses are batterings of a fate and emotional outbursts gentler and less psychoanalytic than most of the events and their attendant emotions of the so-called "modern" age. There is a fragrant aura of the past about "The Georgian House," although it is a novel of today.

The other hand of Mr. Swinnerton—the critical essay hand—has presented us recently with a book called "Authors and the Book Trade" [Knopf]. It is concerned with that most interesting business (to most readers of books), the business of publishing books. In it Mr. Swinnerton delightfully asks his readers "Who Would Be a Writer?" (I could answer that for him. Every one—according to the numbers of letters I get asking me how to start writing.) He tells "Why Books Are Published," discusses the work of the publisher's reader, of literary agents, of reviewers, and of the reading public (that means you). He chats about the size and price of books, about booksellers and about authors and advertising. In other words, he thoroughly covers, even though he does it hastily, the subject of the writing, publishing, and selling of books, and answers more questions than even a composite of all of my correspondents could think to ask about the book business. And he does it in delightful, compact essays.

POLLING PLACE!

Step right up, Fans, and cast your votes! We know you're busy with the national election today, but you don't have to go out to vote in this election, just use the Ballot on this page. Write clearly the name of your favorite feminine screen player on the dotted lines, sign your own name and address and send the completed work in to MAE TINEE.

This contest opened Sunday and you should see how the votes are rolling in!

As the count now stands, CONSTANCE BENNETT is in the lead, and GRETA GARBO and JEAN HARLOW are tied for second place. NORMA SHEARER and MARLENE DIETRICH are third and fourth place, respectively.

The day's young and so is the contest, so you fans whose favorites aren't mentioned above, hurry up and VOTE!

By Anna Nangle.

Contrary to my expectations, this movie is not the maudlin sort of thing it might have been nor is it "daring," as the ads describe it.

It's a simply told, pathetic story of the woes and joys of the occupants of a maternity ward in a hospital. It concerns itself principally with one Grace Sutton, a wan young girl who has been convicted of murder and is brought from the jail to the hospital for the birth of her child. Just how or when the murder occurred is not made clear, the film relating only her experiences from the time she enters the ward. The part is interpreted convincingly by Loretta Young, and Eric Linden, who usually pains me greatly, is particularly good as the shabby, bewildered young husband, without money or a job.

This rather delicate subject of birth has been deftly and sympathetically handled and is never offensive.

The entire cast is excellent, with Glenda Farrell as the unwilling mother of twins doing an intuitive bit of work; Aline MacMahon really marvelous as the nurse in charge of the ward, and Frank McHugh carrying off the usually silly part of a new father with his usual humor and skill.

The picture has a good deal of humor, but its main note is one of aching pathos. It is a sincere and touching film and the director is to be congratulated.

Produced by Paramount.
Directed by Ernst Lubitsch.
Presented at the Chicago theater.

THE CAST.

Lily	Miriam Hopkins
Marianne	Kay Francis
Gaston	Herbert Marshall
The Major	Charlie Ruggles
François	Edward Everett Horton
Giron	C. Aubrey Smith
Jacques (the butler)	Robert Greig

If you're pretty well worn out with political speeches, football upsets, etc., you might run over to the Chicago this week and take in Mr. Lubitsch's latest opus.

You can relax completely, for "Trouble in Paradise" follows the usual style of all his work and consists of frothy sophistication, with beautiful costumes and sets, competent players, clever dialogue and, of course, the inevitable staircase. No Lubitsch picture is complete without a long and handsome row of stairs as the scene of a good bit of action.

The film boasts an excellent cast—Kay Francis, stunning in velvets and satins; Miriam Hopkins with her blonde charm and natural ability, and the suave Herbert Marshall as the object of the affections of both lovely ladies.

Chicago Girl Has Lead in U. of I. Student Play

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Miss Dorsey Connors, 162 East Ohio street, Chicago, and William P. Coppell, Havana, Ill., will play the leading rôles in the Mask and Bauble Dramatic society production, "The Butter and Egg Man," to be given during the annual Dad's day week-end on the University of Illinois campus starting next Thursday.

Society Turns Out for Two Charity Events

Attend Play About Chicago and Cradle Ball.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Smart society was benefit conscious to the nth degree last night, for two of the most widely advertised and talked-of benefits of the season were given, one for the Olivet institute at the Goodman theater, and one for the Cradle at the Drake hotel.

In spite of the downpour of rain which held up traffic and delayed a bit the raising of the curtain on the opening performance of "When Chicago Was Young," society was out en masse for this gala performance which Mrs. Howard Linn had taken over to benefit Olivet, the pet charity of this busy social leader who every year arranges something to raise funds for the settlement house.

The atmosphere of old Chicago was felt as soon as one entered the theater, for there were the loveliest young maidens in billowy skirts and bustles and frills and furbelows and all the other femininities of two generations ago distributing programs and ushering. There was tall Marjorie Goodman in a fragile white net embroidered in tiny pink roses that had been worn by her paternal grandmother, Mrs. William O. Goodman, who with Mr. Goodman was in last night's audience.

Louise Dewey in White Gown.

And dainty Louise Dewey in a white gown with tiny ruffles, also the property of Mrs. Goodman. The green and white costume worn by Mary Reed also came from Mrs. Goodman's wardrobe, and the lovely pink one worn by Jean Schweppe. Frances Clow was wearing a pink taffeta that had belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. Francis Mann of New York, and another of Mrs. Mann's gowns, a lovely dark red heavy silk, was worn by Miss Marjorie Horton. Nancy Traylor in pink and Mary Senior in blue were among the other debutantes who contributed to this picture of old Chicago.

Mrs. Linn was unable to estimate last night how much would be realized for the charity by the benefit, but she said that twenty boxes had been sold for $100 each and all the eight hundred seats in the theater had been sold so she is sure a goodly sum will be the net result.

Society Well Represented.

The list of those in the audience would read like the new Social Register, for it seemed as if every one were there. Most of the names mentioned by the actors and actresses on the stage as being prominent in Chicago's development and growth were represented by children and grandchildren of those early Chicagoans in last night's audience.

A few of the many fashionables there were the Potter Palmers, the Chauncey McCormicks, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Robert H. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis, Miss Eleanor Holden and William A. Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins, Miss Eleanor Dennehy, the Barrett Wendells, the Alfred Shaws, the junior William R. Odells, Mrs. William P. Hodgkins, Mrs. Livingston Fairbank, Miss Libby Chase, the junior Joseph T. Bowens, Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. David S. Cook, the Arthur Aldises, the Herbert E. Bradleys, Mrs. Helen Walton, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg and her daughter, Miss Alice Gerstenberg, who with Miss Herma Clark were the authors of the drama; the Harold Pynchons, and the Charles H. Chadwicks.

Benefit for The Cradle.

Several of the debutantes changed their quaint old gowns for chic modern ones after the performance and dashed off to the Cradle party which was a dinner dance with dinner being served from 8 o'clock until midnight. There the busy buds sold flowers and cigarets from cradles, reminding the guests of the good cause to which their money was going.

Mrs. Howard W. Fenton, general chairman, estimated that nearly $2,500 would be made by the party, which was a radio broadcasting affair with the music and cabaret being broadcast as an advertisement for a bank.

Some of those at the party were the Stanley Morrills, the Melvin A. Traylors, the Robert E. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Press Hodgkins, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hagey, Miss Betty Offield, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lamson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bridges, Miss Lydia Swift, Miss Honoré White, Miss Martha Lee, Miss Julia Kramer, Miss Helen Marie Castle, Miss Betty Whatley, the Henry Daweses, the Rush C. Butlers, the Paul Butlers, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy, the John C. Slades, and the K. V. R. Nicols.

Janet Fairbank Says Students in Berlin Lead a Simple Life

The simple life is the only one for an ambitious music student in Europe, Miss Janet Fairbank informed members of the Woman's City club yesterday at the tea given in her honor, where she related her experiences while studying voice in Berlin. For all that, her stay abroad included an international broadcast from the German capital, with a radio audience of many millions; attendance at numerous small parties for visiting celebrities, and a course at the Mary Wigman School of Dancing.

"I'm sure there's very little night life in Berlin for the average student," she said. "If you come tired to a lesson you are only sent home, because they say it's useless to try and teach a weary person. Through newspaper friends I met many of the celebrities arriving there and kept in touch with what was going on in other parts of the world, but my biggest thrill came when I had the opportunity of being on the program of an international radio broadcast last summer."

Society to Enjoy Many Election Returns Parties at Homes, Clubs

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE most important engagement every one twenty-one or over has today is to go to the polls, and the next most important is to get the returns tonight at one of the numerous parties that have been planned at clubs, hotels, and private houses. And even those who cannot vote—no debutante is old enough to cast a ballot yet—are going to the election returns parties, for every one is intensely interested in this election, more so than usual, it seems.

The Casino members will have a buffet dinner—all the smart clubs have buffet service nowadays for their large affairs, and the members love it, not only because it cuts the cost but it is so informal and jolly—with a telegraph wire and screen to keep them in touch with the results.

Up at the Saddle and Cycle the members and their guests will depend on the radio for the returns while they are dining—buffet service there, too—and dancing and enjoying themselves. Some of those who will be there are the Kenneth Carpenters, the Alexander Kirks, the Fairbank Carpenters, Mr. and Mrs. Bowman C. Lingle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevenson, the Hays Macfarlands, the Frederick W. Keiths, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Hersey, Mr. and Mrs. Aldis J. Browne, and the Carroll H. Sudlers.

Tavern to Hold Election Dinner.

The cards announcing the Tavern's party tonight, in the inimitable style in which the secretary always writes the announcements, make one sure it will be a gay and festive occasion: "The club will serve a special dinner on election night. Full telegraph service of election returns will be received and announced by loud speakers—mechanical, not human. Lantern slides of election night atmosphere will be shown in the 'Of Thee I Sing' style. Motion pictures in the mood of the occasion will be exhibited." The Russell Forgans will entertain a party of about sixteen, "Andy" Rebori has reserved a table for twenty-five, the Alfred Shaws and Preston Boyden are having a joint party, Mr. and Mrs. James Norris, Mr. and Mrs. Warner Robinson, Leo Hogan [his party is for Virginia Skinkle and Sydney Heap], and the Howard Willetts are among others who will be dinner hosts at this attractive club.

The largest private party in town that I've heard of is the one the Joseph T. Ryersons are giving at their residence, 1406 Astor street. It is to be a buffet dinner with the returns on the radio and the hostess said yesterday that it might be that the entire party would adjourn to some club or other place that has a wire after dinner, but I doubt very much if any one will want to leave the Ryersons' attractive Chicago room, where the party is to be given.

Out in Lake Forest most of the gatherings will be small, three or four couples, and the same is true of Winnetka, Wheaton, Barrington, and all the other places where there are fashionable commuting colonies.

At the Drake hotel tonight the Frank Loesches, Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Cary, the Robert Peacocks, the Walden Shaws, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hecht, and the Swedish ambassador, Wollmer Bostrom, who is here from Washington for a brief stay, will entertain parties.

The South Shore Country club is having a gala party tonight, too, with a special wire and screen for the results, dancing, and a buffet supper.

The Chicago Golf club at Wheaton had a large and jolly party last Saturday night, the harvest home dinner and dance, with the Albert J. Pardridges, the Harold Scotts, the John Van Nortwicks, and the Gorton Fauntleroys among those entertaining.

After the symphony concert Friday afternoon Frederick Stock, the con-

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we give our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

A window given up to the beauty of plants can be achieved by any one who has sunshine—and the window. No structural changes are necessary for a simple plant-window. Just shelves, installed at the sill line and at desired intervals above. The lowest shelf should be of strong wood for the heavier plants, its paint protected by a glass cover over it. Above this, across the window, are placed the plate glass shelves supported by metal brackets. A bright spot, such a window makes, in any home.

LOUISE BARGELT.

'When Chicago Was Young' Is 'Picture Play'

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"When Chicago Was Young," the play that was staged at the Goodman Memorial theater last night for the benefit of Olivet institute, is an episodic picture of the growth of Chicago. Its theme is historical and belongs in the field of pageantry rather than drama; its method is a mild and chatty mulling over of the diffuse and picturesque traditions of the city's evolution.

In the details of costuming and stage decoration the production has vivid and graceful authenticity, and it evokes a sense of the past by putting bygone notables, such as Long John Wentworth, John Crerar, George M. Pullman, Marshall Field, and Mrs. Potter Palmer through the paces of their daily life in the good old days before the World's Fair of 1893. It permits its audience to enjoy a taste of ancestor worship.

Herma Clark and Alice Gerstenberg have failed, however, to supply their charming animated museum with an adequate story. They will answer, of course, that Chicago itself is the story and the plot and the dynamic force behind their talkative puppets. Yet they have not succeeded in getting the spirit of their intended epic into the breasts of the people with which it is populated. The story element in "When Chicago Was Young" is slight and it is treated with a fluttering, undramatic touch.

The play begins with a prologue which shows the arrival of Pere Marquette, Louis Joliet, and their voyageurs at the mouth of the Checagou river in 1673. The first act is placed in the lobby of the Trement house in 1858, with hints of real estate speculation, political activity, and the impending civil war in the air. Abraham Lincoln might have walked through that lobby, for he was campaigning in Chicago then, but the authors missed the opportunity for this stroke of dramatic suggestion.

The second act, preceded by a tableau of fugitives from the great fire, deals with the aftermath of this disaster in a Wabash avenue mansion. There is much talk of the devastation, the suffering and the relief work; but the chief business of this episode is with the ingenue daughter of a couple who figured in the first act, and her reluctant betrothal to a substantial middle-aged citizen.

Then the chronicle jumps from 1871 to 1893 for the third act. The scene is the Potter Palmer mansion; the occasion, a ball in honor of Princess Eulalie of Spain. The ingenue of the second act is now a matron who has carried on the Chicago tradition at the cost of a broken heart.

An epilogue on the terrace of the Tavern club, in June, 1933, rounds out the historical picture. The site is that of the swampland prologue, but now the towers that Pere Marquette saw in his delirium are visible in fact, and the glow of another great exposition is in the air while the grandchildren of the first act ingénue gather about her in a family reunion.

The acting is mainly that of well-drilled semi-professionals or little theater folk who have not yet learned the trick of pace and timing. Marian Read, around whom the little family history is constructed, has professional skill.

"When Chicago Was Young" will remain at the Goodman for the next three weeks.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIPLEY

Copyright, 1932, By Hall Syndicate, Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE STRANGE DEATH OF MRS. PARSONS.

With considerable difficulty, Claudette, Mrs. Parson's maid concluded her account of the finding of her mistress lying outstretched on the bed, dead from an instantly fatal bullet wound through the temple. Prof. Fordney had found the large, luxuriously furnished bedroom in perfect order.

"Was there any one else in the house?" he asked.

"Not that I know of. I retired very early last night, but it's possible Mrs. Parsons had a caller after that."

Fordney pulled from his pocket the automatic that had been found on the dead woman's dresser and inquired, "Have you ever seen this before?"

"Yes. It was hers. We're alone a great deal and she bought it some time ago for protection."

"You heard no shot?"

"No, sir. The first thing I knew of her suicide was when I took the breakfast tray up at nine thirty this morning."

"The doctor says she had been dead at least eight hours by that time," replied Fordney. "I don't understand how you failed to hear the shot."

"I'm a very sound sleeper, sir."

"No, sir."

"By the way, how do you awaken in the mornings . . . by an alarm clock?"

"Yes, sir."

"Suppose you take me to your room. I'd like to see it."

With a frightened look the maid led the way. Fordney found the alarm set at seven o'clock and tightly wound. As he looked inquiringly at the maid, she exlaimed, "I always wind it immediately on getting up."

"H'mmm. Is that so," murmured Fordney. "It looks bad for you, Claudette. Mrs. Parsons was murdered."

Hats Fashioned Just for You Are Style Hit

Models Made to Match Costumes.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

You've no idea what a clever pair of fingers, some sharp and snippy scissors, a few pins and a couple of days' time can accomplish until you have ordered a hat in one of the swanky hat shops where they fashion hats like your pet dressmaker designs your best looking clothes.

You can enter one of these exciting spots, languishing with a midseason attack of boredom, be guided to a stuffed chair before a mirror, let an engaging and enthusiastic young person deftly fuss with a swatch of fabric, mutually agree upon color and a day for a fitting and walk out an hour later with all spirit imaginable.

Some thrilling new ideas snagged from a large and bewildering collection of perfectly stunning models can be released. A startling cap-hat is a three cornered affair with all kinds of personality. You wear it asiant your newest flat curled coiffure with a confidence that it is perhaps the best looking hat you have had in years. Any sort of material is usable, sheer woolens, dull silk crêpe, velvet, Bagheera, and slick silks.

At the peak of the three corners you can have a cunning fur bow, a couple of fuzzy silk tassels pulled through gold or silver circles, a patch of fur that matches your coat, or anything else. All colors can be used, but the gal who likes red can buy a knockout model in this shade that should make her cheerful for days.

These shops welcome the shopper with a bunch of material remaining from some especially good looking suit or coat in their wardrobe. From an assortment of funny shaped scraps nimble fingers tuck and cut and trim, evolving a hat, just for you, that will make you sit up and cheer. One smart tweed affair was made with a shallow brim and a trick collapsing crown that looked like a deflated bellows off the head but snug and snappy on the skull. All this was contrived with ingeniously placed elastic. Then a strap was added to wear across the back of the head.

An amusing version of what Napoleon wore, at least when he was painted or photographed and was in a genial mood, is a hat for a stately lady with regal ideas. This Napoleonic treasure is a honey; it is flat but perky, with a list to the right eyebrow that is charming. It turns up in the rear and has some flat bows inserted around the flattened crown. On the wrong person it would be a flop, but, tilting over the right eye of the right gal, it is superb!

ductor, and Mme. Claire Dux, this week's soloist with the orchestra, and Mrs. Stock and Mme. Dux's husband, Charles H. Swift, and the Kellogg Fairbanks and "Janet Jr." will drive out to the Swifts' new country place, near Mundelein, to spend the week-end there.

The house party is a birthday celebration for Mr. Stock, who was born on Nov. 11, 1872. Mrs. Swift is planning to invite some friends for luncheon on Sunday if that plan is agreeable to the birthday celebrant.

The Swifts plan to spend every week-end this winter in the country for they are so enthusiastic about the eighty year old house they have there —all rebuilt and redecorated, however, according to Mrs. Swift's own simple but chic ideas—that they want to spend as much time as possible there.

The Women's Parish League of St. James' church will meet today to begin preparations for the famed mincemeat which they sell each year to benefit the church. The work will begin at 10 o'clock and continue all day in the church cafeteria at 666 Rush street.

The league members are not going to hold their annual Christmas bazaar this year, but orders for the delicious mincemeat may be placed through Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson of 1406 Astor street. The league meets every week for sewing, but this year the women are making garments to be distributed through relief agencies instead of the exquisite things they used to fashion for their bazaar. Miss Lyla Woodruff is president of the league.

The woman's division of the emergency welfare fund has called its first big meeting for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock on the fifth floor at 10 South La Salle street. Mrs. William L. Hodgkins is chairman of the division and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mrs. Frank Hixon, Miss Margaret Conover, and Mrs. John W. Gary are vice chairmen.

Mrs. Wentworth Leaves Thursday.

Mrs. Moses Wentworth and her son, John, are leaving Thursday for New York to sail Saturday for Italy. From there they will go to Cairo to meet "Mrs. John," who left about three months ago with friends for a trip around the world.

Mr. Wentworth had taken a similar trip soon after he was graduated from Harvard in 1914 and he could not spare the time for such an extended trip just now, so he and his mother planned to meet his wife on the last lap of her trip. They all will return home early in January.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Chappell Jr are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter on Sunday at the Presbyterian hospital. Mrs. Chappell is the former Caroline Byron Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon A. Smith of Chicago and Lake Forest.

Mrs. Julian A. Soames and her little daughter, Edith, sailed from New York last Friday to spend the winter at their estate at Wrexham, North Wales.

The Chicago Drama league has sent out invitations to a tea for Clemence Dane on Thursday of next week at the Drake hotel. Miss Dane is to speak on "The Ghost in Literature and the Drama."

Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Isom of Scarsdale, N. Y., formerly of Winnetka, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to William Christopher Hayes, son of Mrs. Sidney Hall of New York. The wedding took place on Oct. 27 in London.

Miss Emerson Is Married.

Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Emerson of Flushing, L. I., formerly of Chicago, announce the marriage of their daughter, Gertrude, to Basiswar Sen on Nov. 2 at Calcutta, India. Miss Emerson, who was co-editor of "Asia," has been associated with the magazine since it was founded in 1917. She has traveled extensively in the Orient and has contributed many articles on oriental subjects to "Asia" and other magazines.

She is a graduate of the University of Chicago, a Fellow of the Royal Geographical society, one of the founders of the Society of Woman Geographers, and a member of the American Asiatic association. Her book, "Voiceless India," a study of Indian village life, was published in America in 1930 and in an English edition in 1931 with a preface by Rabindranath Tagore.

Mr. Sen is a graduate of the University of Calcutta and was associated for some years with Sir J. C. Bose, the well known Indian scientist. He has pursued independent researches in the cellular structure of plants both in Europe and the United States, and now has his own laboratory in Calcutta. His scientific papers have been published by the Royal Society of Great Britain.

Mr. and Mrs. Sen will be at home after Dec. 1 at 8 Bosepara lane, Baghbazar, Calcutta. During the summer months they will reside at Kundan House, Almore, United Provinces, India. The bride's father was assistant director of the Chicago Art institute for several years.

"What We Live By" will be discussed by Dr. Horace J. Bridges at the third of his series of five lectures at the Fortnightly this morning at 11 o'clock.

Curly Lashes Still Desired by Every Girl

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday, apropos a recent visit with Miss Irene Rich of the movies, we touched on the improvement that the artificial eyelash has given us of recent days. Every day and in every way these lashes are becoming more and more the answer to Miss Everybody's prayer. I say Miss Everybody, meaning every girl not naturally endowed with a richly fringed eyelid.

I wonder sometimes about this passion for eyelashes. And what, if anything, is so provocating of envy? I recall a test made sometime ago in which I found out for myself that while good silhouettes are craved, good complexions wanted, beautiful hair desired, richly fringed eyelids led all the rest in girlish wishes. Maybe because the matrons had already got in their deadly work they were not so prominently numbered among the wishers in this particular test of mine. Too, so many matrons are occupied with silhouette training that their minds are occupied therewith to the exclusion of frivolous eye trimmings.

Well, a young lady wishing for eyelashes today can bat as deadly a pair as she wants, providing she has the price of them. She can have them whatever length she wishes, natural length, a bit longer, or very long. And she no longer has to use a magnifying glass and a pair of fine forceps to get them on her lids. Nor is it longer a long and tedious job. Fringes in black and brown may now be adjusted in a minute. They come in pairs the length of the lid. Slipped in under the lid, they stay as long as you may reasonably ask.

And they do give the girls a kick whether or no they get in the hoped for work on the boy friends. Better be a little "studious" about the better color of the two for your eyelid. If you are a bleached or platinum, honey or straw blonde, better be doubly experimental, choosing the one that is not too diametrically opposed to your shade of hair.

And here's another little trick illustrated the other day before my eyes. If your hair is of brilliant blonde tone and you adopt long dusky lashes, keep the cheek rouge toned down to almost nothing. You'll be surprised how much more charming it will make you. Pile on red rouge along with the other artificialities and you look as if the tabloids 'll get you if you don't watch out!

British Bishop Pleads Again for Good Will

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The Rt. Rev. Lord William Gascoyne Cecil, bishop of Exeter, brought his message of international good will and peace to 700 members of the Church Club of Chicago last night at a dinner and reception given for him and Lady Florence Cecil at the Hotel Sherman. It was the last of many social functions in their honor during their stay here.

Bishop George Craig Stewart introduced the speaker as "the bishop of that diocese which is about to celebrate the 800th anniversary of the founding of an ancient cathedral." He explained that the lord bishop is a descendant of those who have filled an important place in the history of England, being a descendant of Lord Burghley, statesman during the time of Queen Elizabeth, and the second son of the third marriage of Salisbury, the prime minister to Queen Victoria.

"I have come here to promote the friendship between the English speaking nations and through them, the peace of the world," the lord bishop began. "It is my one hope that we who have the same historic traditions, the same customs and thoughts may extend our friendship to all races, and that will result in everlasting peace. It is obvious that the United States exercises a dominating effect upon the opinion of the world.

"We must get to the stage where we have such a feeling toward our fellowmen," he concluded, "that we will detest wishing to do them harm. We must train our subconscious mind in that direction."

Preceding the address the choir of Grace Episcopal church of Oak Park sang. John D. Allen, president of the Chicago Church club, presided. Among others at the speakers' table were Lewis Bernays, new British consul to Chicago, and Mrs. Bernays, Mrs. Allen, Everett L. Millard, president of the English Speaking union; Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Angus S. Hibbard, and Dr. and Mrs. Charles Spencer Williamson.

In the afternoon the bishop and Lady Florence were guests at a tea given by the English Speaking union at the Tavern club.

Makes Bow at Luncheon

Miss Caryl Bloomingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Bloomingston of 1209 Astor street, who was introduced to society at a luncheon at the Drake hotel recently. Miss Bloomingston took part in the Service club revue and also in St. Luke's fashion show, two of the largest charity affairs in which debutantes have parts. Miss Bloomingston went to the Finch school in New York last year and to Ogontz the two preceding years.

Energy Bottled Up Can Cause Lots of Trouble

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A true story:

Gene is eight.

School has never gone smoothly for him, or his mother! There have always been bad reports from teachers that Gene is a troublesome child. Gene's mother always dreads the beginning of school, which is an old fashioned one where the young children have to sit still pretty much all day.

But this fall Gene's mother had a surprise. The first day of school Gene came home with, oh marvel of marvels, a beaming face. As he ate his whole wheat bread and butter and drank his milk his mother's astonished ears heard these words:

"School's swell this year, Mom. I've got an awful nice teacher. And say, Mom, do you know what? The sun shines all morning in our room."

Gene happy! No complaints!

This kept up for a week, two weeks. And at last mother's curiosity got the better of her. She went to see the teacher.

"Yes, of course, everything's all right. Gene's fine. I saw right away what sort of a little boy he was, just bursting with energy, and that it would cause trouble all around if he had to sit still all day. So I make him a sort of right hand man and invent errands for him.

"When I see him on the point of bubbling over I send him down the hall to sharpen pencils for me. Or I have him take a note to the janitor which gives him a long walk, or the principal's office, which is a shorter trip. He's doing very good work too. All he needed was a safety valve."

Bottled up energy causes a large share of the trouble that both parents and teachers have with children.

WEDDING

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Katherine Lamn to Dr. Frederick Robison of Danville on Sunday morning at the residence of the bride's brother and sister-in-lay. Dr. and Mrs. Michael Mason, at 2258 Lincoln Park West. The ceremony was followed by a wedding breakfast at the Belden Stratford hotel. The bride and bridegroom, who are graduates of Northwestern university, will reside in Danville after a honeymoon in the west.

Every Man Seems to Fall for Her Except THE One

BY DORIS BLAKE.

I suppose a girl must be aware that she has that something about her that gets the men, one and all. There are girls and women over whom nature has cast a glamor of some sort that is irresistable to the other sex. So, when "Helene" confesses to being one of these, we agree with her that it is not conceit to mention it. She's stating a fact.

We've known girls and women who obviously never raise an eye to get attention but who have that something undefinable to work its magic for them, if magic you call it. "Helene" thinks it a misfortune.

Every place the girl goes she has men after her. Girls cattily accuse her of using some subtle witchery they never would be guilty of. They hint untoward conduct. This hurts. Then, the motives of men vary. Their admiration is not always in commendable form. Experiences that have not been courted by the girl cloud the horizon. BUT, with the inconsistency that marks human events, ofttimes, the one and only man the girl cares for will not give her so much as a tumble. He remains adamant to her charms. Of all the men, he alone remains cold, aloof.

And of all the men in this girl's experience he is the only one to whom she's made the slightest advance. Sounds like the tale of some of our great lovers.

Life is like that often with the type that lures with a small difficulty. You, "Helene," might favor one of the young Apollos who come offering honorable intentions. You might, indeed, forego struggling for the prize that's out of reach since, won, he might prove quite human clay, no better, no worse than one of your frank and open admirers.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff, and he and his wife, an ill bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. The three hold nightly seances in the library. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister, Rachel, are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Braselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London asking her to search for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Her body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. The Tilburys are left Caroline's fortune, on condition they search for the Holy Grail in the ruin of an ancient abbey on the estate, which Caroline believed to be her father's wish. Natasha is arrested. It is learned that the man she'd been meeting secretly was her wastrel brother, Michael, who is wanted for theft and has left the country. News is received of his death. Natasha is brought to trial. There is no proof of guilt. She is freed, though still under suspicion. Neil continues the murder search. A notice appears in newspapers asking the return of an alligator bag, reward offered, no questions asked.

INSTALLMENT I.

MYSTERIOUS PAPERS MISSING.

Still unheard, Neil drew nearer, and as he did so, something caught his eye. It was the open pages of the Daily Express, outspread on the concrete floor beneath the pail of dirty water.

Hardly had he observed this when something odd happened. In the rear creaked a firm, heavy tread, and turning, he beheld a blue coated constable, solemn faced, important, coming in his direction. At the self-same instant there was a stumbling noise, the crash of an overturned pail, and streams of water flooding the floor. Albert Stokes had met with an accident. Nor was this all. He was glaring, transfixed with some sudden emotion—was it fear?—not at Neil, but over the latter's shoulder. His gooseberry green eyes started from his head, his greasy skin had turned quite remarkably pale.

"Mr. Saunders about" boomed the constable's deep voice, "No? O, well. I just popped in to see if he or you would take a ticket to our garden fête? Two shillings. Booked for June 5."

Stokes' relief was spectacular. A foolish grin widened his mouth as he explained that Mr. Saunders had gone up the street for tobacco. The policeman, pleasantly off duty, dawdled for a few minutes, sold Neil a couple of tickets, and departed, saying he would call in later. Stokes wiped his hands on a bit of waste and, still looking weak, inquired into Neil's requirements.

Neil, however, had swiftly altered his decision. He purchased some oil, got back into his car, and in a quarter of an hour was hammering on Natasha's bedroom door. Without ceremony he burst in, to find the girl beside the window, listlessly mending a silk stocking. She turned, but before she could speak he had plunged headlong into an announcement.

"My dear, I've made a stupendous discovery! It's been staring me in the face for two months, but, blithering ass that I am, I never saw it till now! First, look at this advertisement, it's appearing in all the daily papers."

"Can it be Caroline's bag? But who—why——"

"That's what we've got to find out. Never mind for the moment who wants it. It's who stole it I'm talking about. Can't you guess?" As she stared and shook her head blankly, he brought out the triumphant words, "That lout at the garage—Albert Stokes."

"Bert?"—incredulously. "So you think he's the thief?"

"Of course. He took it just after you brought the car in. He was alone, wasn't he? And the car was unlocked? Hold on a minute, though—at every other time are you perfectly sure you left it so that no one could get inside?"

"O yes, absolutely. There are so many motor thieves in London one has to be careful. There was a rug there, if nothing else."

"Exactly—and when we opened the door that night I remember seeing the rug folded up on the back seat. Who folded it—you or Michael?"

"Neither of us. We were too tired to bother. It was on the floor in a heap, just as it slid from my aunt's knees."

"That clinches it! Bert folded it up—and took the bag he found underneath. You always said your aunt must have dropped her bag in the street, but I never thought that seemed likely."

"It sounds plausible, but——"

"It's more than plausible—it's what happened. Naturally Bert lied to us, but he had the bag then, only hadn't been able to open it. He believed it had something valuable in it, and was waiting till he got home to investigate. Now I understand the funk he was in at the trial when they were cross-examining him."

"Can he have seen the advertisement?"

"I don't know, of course, if there were only meaningless papers in the bag, he probably got rid of them right away and the bag as well, for fear of being caught with it. If that's so, he couldn't claim this reward; but somehow I don't believe he has done that, or else why should he turn green with fright when a constable walks in? One thing's certain, though. He can hardly have answered the appeal yet, for this is today's paper."

"Always assuming it is Caroline's property and not some quite irrelevant bag. I must say it's a strange coincidence, if it isn't hers. So you think those papers inside it may constitute a menace?"

"Again I don't know—but what we may take for granted is that it's extremely unlikely for any person outside Stoke Paulton to have any interest in the bag one way or the other. If neither you, I, nor Crabbe know anything concerning those manuscript sheets, who else is there who could have any idea on the subject? There's only one answer to that question."

"Tilbury," she whispered. "But why should he upset himself over a thing like that, when he's got practically the whole property by law, and with no one disturbing him? What you saw can't be another will throwing him out of possession."

"No, it can't be a will, but if there wasn't something underhand about his intentions, he or any one else would apply openly to the police, not go inserting advertisements with this clause about no questions asked. Anyhow, I'm catching the next train to London to start a thorough investigation—and you, my child, had better come along with me."

She shrank back against the window. "No—I can't do that!" For a second she could not speak, then went on with an effort, "Listen: This morning I slipped out for a walk, just to get some air. On the road I passed three lots of people I knew, and all of them—just didn't see me. I don't intend to go out of this place till I leave it for good."

"The beasts!" He caught her to him angrily. "Tasha—why, why won't you be reasonable and let me take you away from all this? Somerset isn't the world, you know. It's just a little censorious backwater. I can't bear to think of you being subjected to these humiliations."

"Do you imagine marrying you would make it any better? On the contrary, it would be worse, for I'd always be miserable over dragging you into the mire with me. Promise, please, not to say anything more about it. . . I'll drive with you to the station, though, and walk back. You're right, I mustn't stick here in this room all the time."

He helped her into the gray tweed which had been through each stage of her turbulent drama, little knowing the important part it was to play in the last act of all.

"That's right, put on your red beret. It looks like old times."

On the way to Glastonbury, he returned to the momentous subject.

"Why did the Tilburys, before the murder was found out, keep dropping in at Saunders' place to inquire for you? It strikes me it was the bag they were so anxious about, that they wanted to get hold of it before you did. Crabbe declares they turned the house upside down hunting for something. Doesn't that look as though they thought there was just a chance that what they wanted wasn't in the bag after all?"

"It does, rather. I'm afraid to hope—but it almost seems as if we were on the right track at last. If something will only come of it!"

"Something must come of it. By this time tomorrow I may brink back some really startling information. I'll tell you what—keep the old bus, make use of it, and meet the 4:18 tomorrow afternoon. Then we can go back together and thrash the whole thing out."

She nodded. His train was already at the platform. He dashed into the station and, turning for a last glance, saw her almond shaped eyes resting on him with a still, inscrutable gaze. His heart gave a great surge as he flung down money for his ticket and leaped into a compartment.

Cook for Two Will Welcome These Rules

Aid in Keeping Cost of Food to Family Size.

BY MARY MEADE.

Food, it would seem, was made to be cooked for big families. The cook book recipes, for instance, say: "Serves six," or "Enough for eight." Butchers look askance if asked to cut off a nice little roast for two. Cans, if one is to buy economically, leave the caterer for two ever with the problem of left-overs on the refrigerator shelves. The cake which disappears with shocking speed when the family is a sextet or even a foursome becomes hard before two lone diners can reach the far, crusty corners. Watermelons in season demand a general calling in of the neighbors to handle them, and a Hubbard squash is a veritable Waterloo when two or less come to dine.

Nevertheless, even newly-weds grow hungry, bachelors with a yen for economy still eat at home, and appetites still thrive back in the old homestead though all the youngsters have adopted kitchenettes of their own.

Cooking for three, two, or one, then, is quite a common problem and one which has a set of rules all its own—rules which are worth knowing if we are really to make our food bills correspond to the size of the family.

First, the important job is not in seeing how little you can cook, a method which is often wasteful of time, fuel, and food, but in discovering tricks to be played with left-overs or, as we should prefer to say, "food planned ahead." Don't be like the young bride who, when asked what there was for dinner, explained that this week they were having stew.

Enough meat, vegetables, or fruit may be cooked to last several days, but seldom should this food be served two times in the same way. The same can of corn may be a soup on Monday, a fritter on Wednesday, and turn up with peppers and beans as a scallop on Friday. Good refrigeration makes such pleasant miracles simple. Peas may be buttered one day and the remainder puréed in soup two days later. Left-over beets may be turned into pickles and appear again the following week. If a good sized can of asparagus tips is ushered in as a salad there are still soup and creamed toast possibilities before the can is emptied.

Frequently cake recipes may be effectively cut in half. However, if the whole recipe of plain cake is made, divide it in baking. Add a square of chocolate to one-third and bake in a small, shallow pan, later to be split and filled with whipped cream for dessert. Another third, flatter d with spices and one-half cup of mixed nuts and raisins, may be baked in two greased cup cake pans. The rest will make a nubby little loaf to be later frosted with fudge icing and served in slices.

Often half a layer cake recipe will, when baked, make one layer which may be cut in half, a filling added, and the halves put together as for a full sized cake.

Thanks again to good refrigeration, the modern caterer for two—or more—is learning to make up full sized recipes for pie crust, muffins, waffles, griddle cakes, and baking powder biscuits. She makes what is required for one meal and tucks the rest away, tightly covered, in the icebox or refrigerator until the next day. Refrigerator cookies and rolls may be kept even longer with perfect safety.

No matter what the butcher says, it is possible to buy meat to serve two nicely. Roasts may be had in two and one-half pound sizes. Ground meat, small steaks, chops, small or split fowls, and many other meat offerings are to be secured. Left-over meats may be sliced and served in gravy, minced, and conjured into patties, croquettes, timbales, and ragouts, even ground and offered in toasted luncheon sandwiches, blended with rice, potato, or macaroni dishes, or folded into omelets and souffles.

If you own a card file or a favorite cook book, take time some day to cut your favorite recipes in half.

Capt. Host, Robinson Go to Varsity.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Coach Heartly Anderson today gave a vaction to players who participated in Notre Dame's 24 to 6 victory over Kansas but announced that tomorrow will see two more changes in the ever shifting varsity lineup.

PAUL HOST.

Capt. Paul Host of La Crosse, Wis., will be back at right end, replacing Hughie Devore of Newark, his junior opponent who held the varsity job last week. "Host can play end with the best of them, but he was off stride against Pitt, that's all," Anderson said.

Robinson at Center

A bigger surprise, however, was the advancement of John Robinson of Huntington, L. I., to the varsity center position which has been fought over by Tom Gorman of Chicago and Ben Alexander of San Marino, Cal., all season. Alexander, who started the season with the varsity, is now with the third team with Gorman on the shock troops.

Robinson stands 6 feet 5 inches and weighs 200 pounds. Lee Hanley of Northwestern, who scouted the Notre Dame-Kansas game, remarked after the game that Robinson's work was "the best I have seen for some time on the part of Notre Dame centers." Robinson played for Georgetown prep in Garrett Park, Md., before coming to Notre Dame.

Anderson gives Robinson credit for making five-sixths of the tackles against Kansas in the last quarter and for showing up the other two centers on pass defense.

Students Warm Up.

Student spirit was approaching a peak today as the wood gathering contest for Friday's giant bonfire got under way. The student activities council will give a silver loving cup to the hall making the best showing in the contest. Instructions were issued that all wood be taken from Notre Dame property and university officials indicated that much of it would be given to the needy of South Bend.

N. U. TO USE EVERYTHING

"We'll shoot the works." Thus Coach Dick Hanley yesterday outlined the strategy to be followed by Northwestern in Saturday's game with Notre Dame. With nothing to lose and everything to gain, the Wildcats plan to turn loose every offensive weapon at their command.

The Wildcats figure that a surprise victory over Notre Dame would just about rescue a season which has elicited few cheers in their behalf. The players feel that they are a better team than their present status in the Big Ten race seems to indicate, and they plan to demonstrate this Saturday.

They'll Rely on Passes.

Once again the forward pass will be Northwestern's favorite offensive weapon. In games to date the pass attack has been the Wildcats' most consistent ground gainer. Despite Notre Dame's apparent superiority, there is no talk of surrender in the Wildcat camp. This complex is always evident when a Northwestern team prepares to face Notre Dame.

The accurate passes of Pug Rentner and Ollie Olson against Ohio almost turned the tide. This same situation prevailed in the Minnesota and Purdue games; so it is not strange that the Purple figure that a few breaks may turn the trick against Notre Dame.

Augustson at Quarter.

Coach Hanley has just about decided upon the make up of his backfield Saturday. Rentner and Sullivan will be the half backs, Ollie Olson the full back, and Roy Augustson will be at quarter. The latter turned in a creditable job in his first appearance at quarter last Saturday.

George Potter, veteran quarter back, who was out of the Ohio game because of injuries, will also be available for duty. Al Kawal, who has been at quarter back much of the season, will start at guard.

The varsity squad took the day off yesterday. A freshman eleven drilled on Notre Dame formations which they will trot forth for the benefit of the varsity today. Only dummy scrimmage will be on tap this week, Coach Hanley said.

RUCH RESIGNS AS PHILLIES' PREXY; NUGENT GETS JOB

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—L. C. Ruch, president of the Philadelphia National league baseball club, resigned today. He will be succeeded by G. P. Nugent, business manager.

Ruch, who was appointed president of the Phillies two years ago, immediately after the death of William F. Baker, said he resigned because of ill health. Ruch is 71 years old. Nugent, business manager since 1925, is 40 years old.

Cadets Don't Seem to Know Themselves.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 7.—The suspicion is growing that this year's Army football team is one of the great teams, but in their demonstrations against Yale and Harvard the West Point cadets made their opponents look so bad that it was hard to tell just how good they were themselves. In both cases the opposition would come up not just beaten and winded but dazed and demoralized, all their lessons forgotten and so futile in everything they tried that it was hard to visualize them in a close contest with a first class prep school team.

But the Saturday following their game with West Point the Yale team was Yale again and won from Dartmouth in a close, hard game. Possibly, when Harvard plays Holy Cross, the ratio will be restored there, too, although the physical condition of the Harvard players is likely to prevent their rebounding as nimbly as Yale did against Dartmouth.

Harvard Does a Swoon.

Not often does a football team with Harvard's resources react so badly to the routine heavy work of a clean football game. They should have been in fine physical shape by this time in spite of their rather priggish rule which defers football practice until Sept. 15, but before the first quarter was over their strength waned abruptly and collapse was the word for their condition toward the end.

They had a hard time with Brown. Then the Army wrecked them. And now, a breather for their game with Yale, which is the only game on the Harvard schedule that really counts, they will tackle Holy Cross, a program suggesting the system of Max Baer, the heavyweight prize fighter, who bats himself over the head with a length of pipe in the dressing room so that when his opponents bat him on the head he will be used to it.

Even Casey Got Panicky.

Eddie Casey, the Harvard coach, seemed to catch the panic himself during the second half of the game at Cambridge as the Cadets were rolling up a score of 46 to 0 and thereby writing into his own professional record a note of no mere defeat but of an historic rout. There was excitement in his manner as he ordered men into and out of the game and the players on the field were excited and erratic, too.

It seems just impossible, however, that a Yale team or a Harvard team can be quite as bad as these teams seemed in their meetings with West Point. They are the pick of a large array of talent, they have elaborate facilities for training and practice and they are taught by teachers who at least know their subjects.

Nevertheless, and it was a problem in diplomacy for Milton Simmerfelt of Benton Harbor, Mich., the captain of the cadet squad, to answer the question that was put to him Saturday evening in Boston: "Were you fellows as good as you looked in those two games or were Yale and Harvard as terrible as they seemed?"

The Army Just Clicked.

Mr. Summerfelt, who is a big, blond athlete, 24 years old, and the best individual player on his team with the possible exception of Dick King, the end, stammered a moment and said: "Well, it just seemed as though everything we tried clicked every time. I would say we were pretty good. I am sorry we had to lose to Pitt, but I don't want to claim that we could lick them even now. I thought it was fine of all those Harvard people to take that big score of ours in such a friendly sporting way."

The Army's morale was so high and Harvard's so low that even when the West Point regulars and the second string players were withdrawn and the spectators were gazing down upon an Army team largely composed of kids who had been brought along merely for the train ride as a reward for faithful toil, there was still no stopping them.

And if Yale and Harvard are normal this year, this must mean that the military academy in the final year of the present football administration has one of the greatest football teams that ever represented the academy. Everybody on the field at a given

CATCH THIS ONE, CULVER!

20 Chicago Players on Cadet Teams

Twenty boys from Chicago and suburbs will appear with the two squads Saturday at Dyche stadium when St. Johns Military academy eleven meets Culver Military academy in the feature football game on both teams' schedules. All proceeds are to be turned over to charity.

The captains of both teams, Park Wray, St. Johns tackle, playing his fourth year on the squad, and Jim Hack, who will lead the Culver cadets from center, reside in Chicago.

These Are Chicagoans, Too.

They are big, aggressive players and rated among the best prep linemen in the midwest.

Three other Chicago boys who will be in the Culver starting lineup are Ed Klich of Riverside, a 244 pounder, at left tackle; Irwin Evans, Oak Park, an end, and Bob Wieland, a half back, who in cadet life holds the rank of captain. Other Chicagoans on the squad include Harry Owen, a half back; Dan Dart and Grant Gardner, guards; Don Petty of Winnetka, an end, and Bob Busche, Jim Hack's understudy at center.

Meet Another Riley.

Physician Sues Cubs and Bears for $10,000 After Fall

Dr. William H. McOwen, Boston, Mass., physician, filed a præcipe of a suit for $10,000 yesterday in the Circuit court against the Chicago National League baseball club and the Chicago Bears football team. Attorney Joseph Rubens, who filed the suit, said that Dr. McOwen fell over some chairs in the aisle at a football game two years ago and suffered injuries to his spine and hip.

Vote this morning!

John Conrad, one of the stars of the St. Johns Military academy back field, will do the punting against Culver Saturday afternoon at Dyche stadium, Evanston.

APPENDIX AILING, SO GRIMES WILL ENTER HOSPITAL

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Burleigh Grimes, pitcher for the Chicago Cubs last season, will enter a St. Louis hospital for examination this week, it was learned tonight, and possibly will be operated upon for removal of his appendix.

Grimes, who had trouble with his appendix during the 1931 season, but was able later to pitch for the St. Louis Cardinals in the world series against the Philadelphia Athletics, decided to go to a hospital today after conferring with Dr. Robert F. Hyland. No definite diagnosis has been made, Dr. Hyland said tonight, but Grimes will be given a thorough examination to determine if there should be an operation.

Leader—Peden.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Three of the nine teams remaining in the six day bike race at the Stadium last night went into a mileage tie for first place. Jules Audy and Torchy Peden technically were the leaders by virtue of possessing 423 sprint points—more than anybody in the race.

Despite this striking grouping of artists, Letourner and Debaets, who had ridden into a solo lead during the afternoon, were not in the charmed circle. They were in second place, one lap behind the leading teams. Three laps behind were McNamara and Horan and Deulberg and Grimm, winners of the Chicago race a year ago.

Are Promoters Delighted!

You may be sure that the impresarios responsible for the current cycling event were very happy that six teams should ride into a tie the very night before the finish. The promoters thus delighted with the nip and tuck character of the competition issued a statement, as follows:

"All the artists remaining in the competition are in superb physical condition, and the finish should make sports history. Every effort was made to match the teams perfectly before this cycling struggle began, but to have six teams tied on the night before the grand finale scarcely seems believable. The rivalry among the riders, especially between foreigners and Americans, is running high, but the management has taken every precaution to see that the riding does not become too rough during the closing hours. It is hoped that the flare of old as well as recently developed grudges can be held within bounds during the remaining hours of the competition."

Steal Two Laps for Tie.

The teams tied in mileage with Audy and Peden were: Linari and Severgnini and Binda and Hill. Walker and De Lille withdrew from the race at 3:30 p. m.

Because of the presence of the largest matinée crowd that ever attended a Chicago bike race the riders yesterday afternoon were inspired to do a lot of jamming for the entertainment of the ladies and children.

Much to the surprise of the form players, who had believed that Binda and Hill would be able to keep the two lap lead with which they started the day, Letourner and Debaets succeeded in stealing two laps during the daylight skirmishing. This established a mileage tie.

The serious cycling from 9 o'clock to 10 o'clock saw Walthour-Rodak bearing down. Their reward was first place in the 10 o'clock standings. There was some switching of the ratings shortly after 10 o'clock, but at 10:22 o'clock Walthour-Rodak had regained their lead.

Wissel and Dempsey Fall.

Between 10:30 and 10:55 some of the most spirited pedaling of the week was put on view. The activity was suspended at 10:55 when Wissel fell. His partner, Dempsey, also fell at the opposite end of the track within a few seconds of Wissel's pitch.

The race winds up at 11 o'clock tonight, and will be marked by an hour of sprinting between 10 and 11, during which time there will be a sprint every mile for points. The points in the final hour will score 72 for first, 4 for second, 2 for third, and 1 for fourth.

Results of the 2 a. m. sprints:

4—Horan, Letourner, Binda, Peden.
7—Debaets, Binda, Audy, Wissel.
9—B. Walthour, Peden, Hill, Wissel.
10—Peden, Wissel, Grimm, Rodak.

TALKING IT OVER

BY ARCH WARD.

ONE week ago this morning the conductor of this column called attention to what he considered a swindle in professional football. Two days previous the Brooklyn Dodgers had appeared at Wrigley field for a game with the Chicago Cardinals. Their drawing card was Benny Friedman, probably the greatest player the professional game has developed and certainly its leading attraction.

The Brooklyn team came into Chicago the previous Monday. Friedman was with them. He suddenly left for New York due to the critical illness in his family. Newspaper men and Dr. David Jones, owner of the Cardinals, were told he would return in time to play the following Sunday.

Five thousand attended the game. It is a tribute to Friedman's gridiron skill that most of them turned out principally to see him perform. There was widespread disappointment when it was learned that Benny was not on the field.

The point of our criticism was that Friedman should have notified his club or the Cardinal club in time to let Chicago's fans know that he was not going to take part. You would expect that much consideration from a theater if you paid to see Al Jolson.

Yesterday we received the following communication from Friedman:

"Your column in THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 1 has been brought to my attention by numerous friends and fans. I am sorry that you thought it necessary to pan me without getting both sides of the story.

"Two newspapers were informed on Thursday, Oct. 27, why I suddenly left for New York. Here is my end of the story. Since I was married I have been living with my wife's folks in Brooklyn. I was notified that my father-in-law was critically ill and my mother-in-law was in a dying condition from a heart attack. I trust that you never experience a similar situation but I assure you that under the same circumstances you would have started home immediately as I did.

"I have played pro football in Chicago for five years and always have tried to give the fans a run for their money. I am one of the few touted stars that plays 60 minutes of each game. Adverse criticism of the kind you heaped upon me does not do me or the game in general any good.

"I will be in Chicago on Nov. 19 and trust I will have an opportunity to see you and straighten this out."

Comment: The fans of Chicago have no quarrel with Friedman for leaving Chicago because of sickness in his family. There are various reasons, all satisfactory, why any one might be unable to go through with a football game.

But Friedman ignores the point of the criticism—he neglected to make known that he would not be in the Brooklyn lineup that afternoon. If Friedman informed his club and they in turn "forgot" to make known his absence, they ought to be expelled from the National Professional league for fake advertising.

The incident aroused so much dissatisfaction that the owner of the Cardinals felt obligated to issue complimentary tickets to the Green Bay game Sunday to fans who had retained ticket stubs from the Brooklyn contest. Hundreds accepted.

ELECTORAL TITLE.

CHAMPIONSHIP of the Electoral college will be determined today when Republican Elephants and Democratic Donkeys meet in their quadrennial struggle, which attracts nation-wide attention. Never before have title holders been on the short end of the advance betting at such odds as the 5 to 1 offered on the challengers.

These odds are predicated on conditions under which the contest will be waged. Republicans, accustomed to fair weather, were unable to adapt their strategy to cloudy skies and heavy going. Tactics sound for normal conditions proved unavailing, until many of their usual rooters are found ranged with the opposition.

Democrats, on the other hand, have played for the "breaks," kicking on all occasions, and adopting the air route in attack. These hot air aerials in preliminary practice have been spectacular, but no matter how flighty, have registered long gains. This type of attack has attracted many followers who prefer an open game with running attack to steady, more concentrated gains through an opposing line of heavy depression.

Neither coach is entirely satisfactory to alumni as a whole. Coach Hoover of the Elephants is a holdover. Many alumni wished a change, but the board of regents made that impossible by insisting he was entitled to another contract. Basically sound in defense, he was called wavering in offense, in view of changed conditions. He was blamed, perhaps unjustly, for injuries in the ranks. Criticism also was aimed at mounting cost of maintenance and the bureaucratic army of trainers and rubbers drawing pay for alleged services while the Elephants were champions.

Coach Roosevelt of the Donkeys was not the choice of the old time alumni but of the newer radical element which desired more daring tactics in an effort to reverse the defeats suffered in previous quadrenniums. Old time coaches, therefore, have offered their advice somewhat grudgingly, although cordial support has been tendered by a certain element and by a disgruntled minority of renegade Elephants whose aspirations to coaching positions with that eleven had been turned down.

Therefore, if it were not for the importance of the contest, many supporters would be apathetic simply because of the opposing coaches.

In the game itself today, under dismal conditions on a heavy field, hot air passes and kicking seem likely to prevail over an uninspiring and plodding defense whose left wing is strong but whose right wing has weaknesses. The Donkeys will kick off and expect to recover the ball immediately by a fumble for which the Elephants have been noted recently. Thus the Donkey defense will not be tested. Whether it is strong or weak will not be known until after the championship is attained.

Reduced Prices.

Colleges have found reduction in admission prices the best means of inducing cash customers to attend their football games this fall. Therefore, University of Michigan announces 40,000 seats of its 75,000 normal capacity stadium will be available for the Chicago game Saturday at $1.10, including tax. Sittings near the center of the field will command regular price.

YALE REFUTES RUMORS ABOUT NEW COACHES

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Yale Athletic association, taking official notice of numerous reports that changes will be made in the football coaching staff for next season, issued a brief statement tonight describing such reports as "so much idle talk."

The statement said:

"At the present time Yale is not thinking about any coaches other than those in charge of the team now. The many rumors of expected changes in the personnel of the staff are so much idle talk."

HARLEM COURSE TO BE REBUILT; READY IN SPRING

Put Plant's Cost at $1,500,000.

[PICTURE ON FOLLOWING PAGE.]

It was revealed yesterday by Harry A. Ash, assistant attorney general, that a new Harlem will spring up on the site of the track out on the far west side which once made turf history in Chicago.

HARRY ASH.

Ready by May 1.

Rissman and Hirschfield are architects who have drawn up plans to make Harlem an elaborate racing plant. "The one mile track will be ready to operate by May 1, when the 1933 Illinois racing season opens," Mr. Ash said.

The return of Harlem [illegible] racing field gives Cook [illegible] major tracks—Arlington [illegible] thorne, Washington Park, and [illegible] lem—and the half mile track in Cicero known as Sportsman's Park. There is also the Lincoln Fields track in Will county, which is a part of the Chicago circuit, and the Aurora track which folded up and quit in mid-season, which is located in Kane county.

No Fight Over Dates.

"We are not coming into Chicago with any thought of a fight over racing dates," Mr. Ash said. "The law provides that racing can be conducted in Illinois from May 1 to Nov. 1. There are approximately 160 racing days. This liberality on the part of the law should preclude any possibility of a conflict in racing dates."

The new Harlem plant has been incorporated under the names of the Harlem Jockey club and Harlem Racing association. The incorporaters are headed by Mr. Ash, who represents a group of prominent Chicagoans. "The stock will be subscribed for privately," he said. "No public offering of securities will be made."

The return of Harlem to the Chicago racing picture recalls the golden days of Chicago racing of more than 30 years ago. It brings back memories of the stirring days which made Chicago the racing center of the world. The track is on Roosevelt road on the outskirts of Oak Park where the Harlem golf course has been located for many years.

Harlem and Hawthorne Rivals.

Harlem, as the citadel of John Condon, and Hawthorne, owned by Ed Corrigan, were bitter rivals back in the old days. To present a united front against the reform element, however, Corrigan ostensibly sold his interests to Richard Fitzgerald, then vice president and manager of the Chicago Junction railway. Mr. Fitzgerald, a practical business man with social and political connections, entered a working agreement with both Harlem and Washington [illegible] became a steward of the [illegible] Jockey club, with Martin Nathanson representing Harlem, and the late Lawrence A. Young representing Washington park.

Dates were allotted in this territory, and throughout the central west by the Western Jockey club. Thus relations between the three local tracks were amicable. When Washington park was forced to close its gates because of Mayor Carter Harrison's edict against betting after the derby of 1904, Harlem and Hawthorne took over the vacated dates and finished the season. They, too, succumbed the next year to a reform wave which was sweeping the country, plus the warfare between the Western Jockey club and American Turf congress with which Corrigan aligned when refused stewardship in the Jockey club.

Betting by Bookmakers.

Betting at that time was by bookmakers with boards showing the odds posted at Harlem and Hawthorne. Washington park bookies sat on stools displaying their odds on programs and gave bettors a numbered slip on which appeared no notation of the wager. Washington Park [illegible] was in the city, while the other tracks were in friendly townships. Toleration by county officials also was necessary, as bookmaking was against the law.

Under Fitzgerald's regime, Hawthorne was conducted on a high plane. So was Harlem where Mr. Condon turned all details of racing over to Martin Nathanson, a capable and fearless official. Condon did not race a string of horses because of his

THOUSANDS OF 'EM! WATERFOWL STARTLE HUNTER

Illinois River Colonies Offer Amazing Sight.

BY BOB BECKER.

The voting places are expected to be crowded today as ballots are marked, but for a real jam and a noisy, impressive "election" there is nothing like certain spots on the Illinois and Sangamon rivers, where thousands of mallards, pintails, and widgeon have crowded together in sloughs to make the smartweed patches the most popular and most congested areas in duckland.

We have just returned from one of these spots along the Sangamon where milling, quacking masses of waterfowl come into the marsh at sundown in such numbers that you can hear them for a long distance. It's a stampede such as the politicians like to talk about at election time, in this case a stampede to the smartweed that makes a duck hunter almost incoherent.

For weeks waterfowl hunters have been hearing about the increase in pintails and mallards in the Illinois river duck country. An increase for 1932 was expected since these species had a good nesting season.

Brings Louisiana Memories.

As we approached the Sangamon river bottoms near the junction of this stream with the Illinois we expected to see plenty of birds. We did. But the number congregated in certain marshes was far beyond expectations. A few nights ago when we lingered in 120 acres of smartweed flooded to just the right depth for puddler ducks, the evening stampede to a part of this slough was such a thrilling spectacle, brought so many thousands of birds together in a certain favored area, created such a roar of wings and such a chorus of quacking that it reminded us of the famous tidewater sloughs of Louisiana where millions of waterfowl spend the winter.

We stood in a duck boat fairly close to the wheeling funnel of quacking birds and the noise was like the roar of a stream speeding down a mountainside. As hundreds of ducks dropped to the water more hundreds poured into the marsh to take their places. Flock after flock of mallards, silhouetted against a gorgeously colored saffron and pink sky, went over our heads to add their music to the evening flight. When we left the smartweed and poled down the drainage ditch to Cuba island for the night the circling, milling flocks still were filling the marsh with a roar of wings no duck hunter ever forgets.

From many points along the Illinois come reports of an abundance of birds, great flocks, heavy concentrations, and similar thrilling pictures of evening flights from rest grounds to marshes where feed is abundant.

Treat for a Hunter.

At Cuba island the other night there were so many birds that we wondered if some of the ducks would not have to sit on the laps of the mallards which had reached the water early in the evening! However, there was plenty of room for the overflow. A half mile from the scene of the big push we saw from 3,000 to 5,000 birds going into a large, open place in the timber. This was another picture as the mallards, necks arched, feet out, and wings putting on the brakes, slowly dodged between branches to reach the water. All in all, the waterfowl hunter who hasn't been down the Illinois this fall has a treat ahead of him.

GRAND NATIONAL VICTORS MEET IN U.S.'CHASE TODAY

New York, Nov 1.—[Special.]—Two winners of the Grand National steeplechase, as well as eight other crack jumpers, are scheduled to meet tomorrow afternoon at Belmont Park in the Temple Gwathmey Memorial steeplechase, feature of the fall meeting of the United Hunts' Racing association. Best known perhaps, is the Sanford stud farm's Tourist II., placed first in the Grand National, 1930 when Are Light was disqualified, but winner of the renewal last September of the same famous test.

Green Cheese, winner of the Grand National of 1931, when Tourist II. was in retirement, is expected to prove the main contention to the great Sanford racer, which has been allotted 165 pounds. Green Cheese's impost is two pounds less H A. Buck, secretary of the United Hunts said both were sure starters in the Temple Gwathmey, barring accident. The race is expected to gross upwards of $10,000 and is at two and a half miles.

The racing will be the last in the metropolitan area this year, and will comprise three steeplechases and three flat races.

ANOTHER MECCA FOR CHICAGO RACE FANS—NEW HARLEM

track ownership. The betting ring was open except for the "dollar books," which were operated at all tracks by the associations.

Remember These Horses?

So the pages of turf history will be rolled back again next year, according to Mr. Ash, when Mr. Nathanson again appears as the boss of the race track at Harlem where McChesney, Imp, Light Brigade, Robert Waddell, Boney Boy, Wyeth, Sidney Lucas and Yo Tambian, horses which could whip their weights in wild cats and run faster than a streak of lightning, once were galloping to victory.

The new Harlem Jockey club suspects that the 18th amendment will soon be washed away. For the building plans call for a bar in the clubhouse of the modernistic style. "Of course we anticipate a change in the prohibition law," Mr. Ash said.

Take 15 Year Lease.

While no announcement was made, it is understood the group which Mr. Ash represents has taken a 15 year lease on the Harlem property with a privilege to buy. It is understood that John S. Condon will serve in an official capacity. He is a son of the original John Condon of Harlem. Martin Nathanson will be in complete charge of the racing. Except for these announcements Mr. Ash did not say how the others in the official family will line up.

Blackhawks Hold Public Drill Today

The Chicago Blackhawks will hold their first home practice of the season in the Coliseum at 6 o'clock this evening. Coach Emil Iverson will send the 15 members of the squad through an hour of heavy drill, finishing with a one period scrimmage between sextets made up of regulars.

The session will be open to the public without charge.

Completing a month's intensive training at Duluth, Minn., the Blackhawks arrived home yesterday afternoon, apparently in the best of condition for the opening of their 48 game schedule against the new Detroit Red Wings in Detroit Thursday night.

Johnny Gottselig reported a couple of face cuts yesterday and Art Coulter a strained shoulder, but both expect to be ready to take their places at center and defense, respectively, against the Red Wings.

Canzoneri to See Ross Box Hess Friday

Tony Canzoneri, lightweight boxing champion of the world, will arrive today to attend the 10 round bout between Barney Ross and Goldie Hess at the Stadium Friday. Ross is next in line for a chance at Canzoneri's title and Tony may defend it against the Chicagoan at the Stadium in the near future.

Ross boxed six rounds yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium, two each with Tony Leto, Phil McQuillan and Young Joe Wolcott. The cut over his left eye, which was received in the Battalino bout on Oct. 31, has healed and it withstood several punches from his sparring partners.

Hess will be making his second start in Chicago and his first in two years here when he faces Ross. In his previous match here Goldie lost a 10 round decision to Jack [Kid] Berg. He has knocked out Tommy Grogan and whipped Charlie Miller and Ray Ockley this year. Hess sparred three rounds yesterday at the Arcade gymnasium with Abie Miller, a lightweight stablemate. Harvey Pettit, Hess' manager, will remain in Los Angeles, Cal., to recuperate from an injury to his leg, received in an automobile accident. He has placed Goldie under the care of Mickey Lennon, Chicago trainer.

Frankie Battaglia and Young Terry drilled at the Arcade yesterday for their 10 round bout on the Stadium card. Battaglia boxed four rounds, two each with Joe Mendoza and Freddy Langford. Terry did loosening up exercises. He will spar with Jack King today.

A 10 round match between Dave Shade and Sammy [Kid] Slaughter and two bouts at four rounds each will round out the program. Joey Medill and Harry [Kid] Roberts meet in a four rounder. The other will bring together Heinie Schmidt and Jack O'Connell.

Billy Petrolle passed through Chicago yesterday en route from New York to his home in Duluth, Minn. Petrolle had no alibis for his failure to win the lightweight title from Tony Canzoneri last Friday, but he doesn't need any. Fans generally are taking care of this by saying the low weight weakened Billy and he could not do his best. Petrolle weighed 134½ pounds, a half pound under the lightweight limit. He scaled 134¾ when he whipped Canzoneri at the Stadium two years ago. Petrolle will rest for several weeks.

Mique Malloy is attempting to match Dave Shade and Young Stuhley at White City on Nov. 17. . . Les Marriner has placed himself under the management of Ray Alvis. . . . Tony Herrera was matched yesterday to face Young Firpo at Pittsburgh next Monday. . . . Mickey Farr has returned from New York after a visit of several days. . . . Eddie Shea is in training for his first match since he fought Kid Chocolate last Aug. 4. . . . Bob Groshek and Ian Grant have been matched to fight in a four rounder at the Midway arena on Friday. . . . Biff Bennett and Buck Everett will head the bill at the Rainbo Fronton Nov. 18. . . . King Tut will go to Boston Saturday to finish drills for a contest with Andy Callahan there on Nov. 18.

Sparta Meets Brickies in Soccer Sunday for 2d Time

Sparta, leading the National Professional Soccer league race with six consecutive victories, will meet the Bricklayers at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, Sunday. It will be the second game of the season between the two teams.

NAVY HOPES TO EVEN AFFAIRS ON CRUSADERS' CARD

The navy will have its big opportunity to get even tomorrow night at the Broadway armory, 5375 Broadway, when boxers representing the Illinois Naval Reserve meet punchers of the Illinois National Guard in the series of nine bouts sponsored by the Crusaders, national anti-prohibition organization. The program, which will be directed by Capt. J. A. Reilly, will be conducted under the auspices of the 202d coast artillery.

FRED MILLER.

The sailors' revenge motive dates from last summer, when a naval team invaded Camp Grant and was turned back by the soldiers. Since that time naval reserve authorities have sought boxers a trifle more able, and believe they have uncovered the right fighters. The navy men will enter tomorrow night's bouts with plenty of confidence.

Oleda and Miller Are Navy Hopes.

Among those who will appear on the card is a young brown gentleman named Oleda, born in the Philippines, who won a decision last week in the bouts against the army on the Black Horse troop program. Another is Fred Miller, an immigrant, who has the facial characteristics of both Tony Canzoneri and Billy Petrolle.

Fred is of Czech parentage and was born in Austria-Hungary. His parents brought him to Chicago at the age of one. He has resided here ever since. Fred had indulged in nothing more than the usual juvenile flaticuffs until 1927, when he came to the Larrabee branch of the Y. M. C. A. and requested a pair of gloves. He used them so expertly that he was entered in the city Y tournament and emerged from it runer-up in the featherweight class.

Knocks Out Campbell.

Miller joined the Naval Reserve in October of last year and has since competed in four army-navy arguments, winning all of his engagements. He knocked out John Campbell of the Army at the Black Horse troop armory last week, and hopes to win a Golden Gloves title. He is now fighting at the welterweight limit, although he is several pounds under that weight.

Lurik to Meet Clinkstock on Coliseum Mat Card

Stan Lurik, northwest side Polish heavyweight, will break into major league wrestling a week from tonight when he appears on the Jim McMillen-Rudy Dusek card at the Coliseum. Lurik has signed to meet Jim Clinkstock, the Indian giant from Oklahoma. This leaves only one more match for Promoter Doc Krone to complete.

SPRAINED ANKLE TAKES MANDERS FROM GOPHERS

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—A severely sprained left ankle sent Jack Manders, University of Minnesota full back, to the hospital today and made it unlikely that he will be in the lineup when the Gophers play Wisconsin at Madison Saturday. The mishap occurred during dummy defensive drill against forward passes.

Manders was covering Carl Tengler, reserve full back, on defense, and the pair collided.

Considerable concern also was shown today as to the condition of Pug Lund, star sophomore half back. Lund rested in the hospital from Saturday until this morning with a badly bruised leg. Today he continued to receive treatments from the trainers. Coach Bernie Bierman said that Lund would be ready for the Badgers, but he is to be kept out of practice until Wednesday.

BADGERS DRILL IN RAIN.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin football team scrimmaged in a heavy fog and cold rain this afternoon to open a week of preparation for its game with Minnesota next Saturday.

The Badgers have seen movies of their activities in the game with Illinois and Coach Doc Spears has explained to them their chances of losing to Minnesota if the same style of football is used Saturday. The movies were shown chiefly because of a half dozen fumbles.

The workout today was light for first and second team men who are still nursing bruises suffered in the Illinois game, although no serious injuries were reported. Third and fourth team players who were not in the game splashed through water and mud in scrimmage.

SCRIMMAGE AT MICHIGAN.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—It is not often that football coaches order a scrimmage on Monday when the squad has been through a hard game on the previous Saturday. But that is what Michigan coaches did this afternoon.

For the first Monday since the Ohio game in October, the regulars got into a scrimmage. They were opposed by men who made the trip with them to Bloomington last week but did not get into the Indiana game. Petoskey and Regeczi of the backfield, Williamson and Ward, ends, and Kowalik and Cantrill, guards, were on the sidelines, but the remainder of the varsity moved through the reserves by air and land.

All of the backs, that is, Newman, Fay, Everhardus and Oliver, and the two ends called on for the day, Miller and Chapman, did their share of pass receiving, while three men were used on the throwing end.

STAGG WANTS TOUCHDOWNS.

There was no rest for the University of Chicago's football team yesterday. Every man who played against Purdue and who may play against Michigan, with the exception of the cripples, engaged in a long dummy scrimmage, the object of which was to develop scoring plays. The last four times the Maroons have been within an opponent's 10 yard line, twice against Illinois and twice against Purdue, they have failed to put the ball across the goal line and Coach A. A. Stagg doesn't like it.

IOWA TAKES A HOLIDAY.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Iowa football players were given a holiday today. Several Hawkeyes still had minor bruises from the Nebraska game Saturday, but Herman Schneidman, first-string blocking half back, is the only regular on the casualty list. He is expected to be ready for action by Saturday, however. Freshmen received instructions on Purdue plays, which will be tried against the varsity later.

BOILERMAKERS REST.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Purdue football players were given a rest this afternoon before launching practice for the game with Iowa, which showed new signs of life against Nebraska Saturday.

The Boilermaker squad came through the Chicago game in excellent physical condition, and Coach Noble Kizer hopes to have it in top form for the invasion of Iowa City. However, it is doubtful whether Jim Carter will have recovered from his flu attack in time to make the trip.

ILLINI SHIFT BERRY.

HOOSIERS EYE ILLINI.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The Indiana university football squad got down to hard work today for the Illinois game at Champaign Saturday. There are no casualties.

Coach E. C. Hayes, reviewing errors shown in the Michigan game, warned his men that Illinois will be one of the season's toughest foes. The Indiana line came in for commendation from the coach, who pointed in particular to the work of McDonald and Keckich. The squad went through dummy scrimmage.

BUCKEYES DRILL FOR PENN.

Columbus, O., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—A brisk offensive scrimmage was ordered for the second string eleven today as Ohio State prepared for its annual homecoming game here Saturday with Pennsylvania. The varsity, after a short workout, was sent to the showers early.

Capt. Hinchman, Conrad, Varner, Gailus, Oliphant, and Monahan were excused from the practice, while Hinchman spent most of the day in training quarters attempting to remedy an ailing leg.

Pick Sites for Semi-Finals in Prep Series

Harrison Tech, defending champion, will meet Englewood at Normal Park and Morgan Park will play Schurz at Logan Square park in the semi-final round for the Chicago Public High School league football championship Saturday afternoon. The sites of the games were selected at a meeting of coaches and officials yesterday. The winners will meet for the league title on Nov. 19.

The field on which Mount Carmel and De Paul will battle in the Catholic league championship series Sunday is expected to be agreed on today. According to Father Urban of Mount Carmel, it will be either White City stadium or Soldiers' field. The winner will play the west section champion for the league title.

St. Mel now leads the west division with three victories and one tie. St. Ignatius holds second place with two victories and one tie and if it triumphs over Fenwick Sunday will be tied for the sectional championship. Fenwick already has defeated St. Ignatius, but the game was ordered to be replayed.

The De Paul-Mount Carmel game is expected to be one of the most interesting contests ever played in the Chicago Catholic High School league title series. Both teams are undefeated and untied. De Paul scored 96 points to its opponents' six in winning the north section title, while Mount Carmel piled up 67 points and its goal was not crossed in capturing the south division championship.

Tilden Tech won the City league soccer championship by defeating Schurz, 4 to 2, at Sherman park yesterday. Jimmy Frain and Steve Batka scored the goals for Tilden. It was Tilden's sixth victory in eight games.

The Suburban league football championship will be at stake Saturday afternoon when Evanston meets New Trier at Winnetka. Evanston is assured of at least a share of the title as it is undefeated. New Trier occupies second place with three victories and one defeat, suffered at the hands of Proviso, 7 to 6.

St. Philip's boxing team will meet the Our Lady of Angles squad of the Catholic Youth organization, Thursday night at St. Philip's gymnasium, Kedzie avenue and Jackson boulevard.

Dutch Lonborg, Northwestern university basketball coach; Paddy Driscoll, St. Mel's athletic director, and Len Sachs of Loyola, will be among the speakers at the Central Officials' association meeting at the Great Northern hotel tomorrow night.

Rockford and Elgin will meet for the lightweight football championship of the Big Six conference at Rockford, Saturday. Elgin is undefeated in 29 games.

NATALIE, NUSS WIN OPENING CUE MATCHES

Pasquale Natalie of Chicago and George Nuss of Atlantic City won the opening games of the nine handed pocket billiard tournament which began yesterday at the Bensinger Randolph room. Natalie defeated Coy Julian of Springfield, Ill., 100 to 69, in 14 innings. Natalie had a high run of 52 and Julian a 33. Nuss triumphed over Major White, Chicago, 100 to 64, in 12 innings. White had a high run of 19. Nuss a 29.

The challenge match scheduled between Augie Kieckhefer, world's champion at three cushion billiards, and Arthur Thurnblad, 1931 champion, was postponed because Thurnblad was called to Minneapolis to referee the northern section three cushion match in that city this week.

SHAMROCKS FACE CLEVELAND TEAM IN INDOOR GAME

The Shamrock pro football team will meet the Cleveland Panthers on the indoor gridiron at the 124th field artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow. The Cleveland eleven was organized in 1916.

The Panthers have ten men who weigh 200 pounds or more, among them Ken Houser, the 237 pound half back from Washington and Jefferson. Houser is the outstanding ground gainer for the team. The Shamrock cripples have recovered and the club will present its strongest lineup.

CHICAGO CITY BOWLING MEET OPENS ON NOV. 26

The annual tournament for the Chicago city bowling championship, sponsored by the Chicago Bowling association, will start at the Bensinger Randolph alleys, 29 West Randolph street, on Nov. 26, it was announced yesterday. Entries will close on Friday.

Teams with an average less than 875 are eligible for the tournament. The five man events will be bowled on Saturdays and the doubles and singles will be rolled on Sundays.

My Greatest Thrill in Football

BY HAROLD ALMQUIST.
[As told to Charles Bartlett.]

My greatest thrill in football occurred in the middle of a game which Minnesota lost to Notre Dame at Minneapolis on Oct. 24, 1925, 20 to 7. I say the middle because, although the play in question happened when the score was tied, I didn't get a real kick out of it until Dr. Clarence Spears, the Gopher coach at that time, praised me in the dressing room during the intermission instead of giving me the bawling out I thought I deserved. Incidentally, the play could not have happened under the new rules.

A majority of our boys were sophomores and Coach Rockne of Notre Dame started his famous shock troops against us. We scored on them early in the game to take a 7 to 0 lead. This didn't last long, for the Notre Dame regulars dashed into the game and tied the score in no time.

Toward the end of the half, with the 7 to 7 score still holding, we made a last desperate march to score before the period ended. We bucked and ran up the field until the ball finally was planted on Notre Dame's 30 yard line. It was fourth down, with about two minutes of the half remaining, and eight yards to go. I called for a pass, and it worked. Herb Joesting, our full back, tossed the ball to Capt. Herm Ascher, who wasn't stopped until he had gone to the Irish eight yard line.

HAROLD ALMQUIST.

On the next play Joesting smashed through the line for a five yard gain, and we were three yards from a touchdown, with three downs coming up. I called Joesting's signal again, but on this play I faded to the right and in front of him before he received the ball, as if I were about to go off right tackle. Consequently, my back was turned to the play when it developed, and I didn't see Herb fumble just as he crossed the goal line.

Imagine my surprise, then, when I turned around, and instead of seeing the ball over the goal line or near it in our possession, found it in possession of Art Parisien, the Notre Dame right half back, who was tearing top speed for our goal with Capt. Crowe running interference.

Instead of making an attempt to get by Crowe and tackle Parisien, I gave ground to them, running backwards. I knew that Crowe would bowl me over, and something told me that one of our men might catch up with Parisien from behind in time to avert a touchdown. I then started to run, facing our goal, with Parisien and Crowe. The Minnesota fans must have thought I had gone crazy, but I knew that Crowe could not "clip" me, for it would mean a 25 yard penalty. I kept on running at a moderate pace, zigzagging from left to right. This went on for ages, until I saw our goal line not far ahead and I turned to take a last chance at tackling Parisien.

Parisien Tosses Pass as Gun Ends the Half.

By this time, however, Ascher and John Murrel, who later starred with the Army, had come up in time to tackle Parisien on our 20 yard line, an 80 yard gain for Notre Dame from what should have been a Minnesota touchdown. On the next play Parisien threw one of his southpaw passes for a 17 yard gain, but the gun ended the half. I went to the dressing room expecting criticism from Coach Spears for my wild run. Instead, he praised me before the whole team and pointed out that I had averted an almost certain Notre Dame score. That's when I got my thrill.

Harold [Shorty] Almquist, was one of the best quarter backs in the history of Minnesota football. He led the Big Ten in scoring in 1927, and recently has built up a successful record as coach at Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill. The play described above by Almquist was once termed by the late Knute Rockne as "the greatest defensive play I ever have seen."

Bears Battle Spartans for Second Place

The Bears, who arrived in Chicago last evening, will report for practice at Wrigley field at noon today to make ready for the invasion of the Portsmouth Spartans Sunday.

The Bears won and tied a game on the eastern trip and are holding third place in the National league race. A victory Sunday will move them into second position behind the Green Bay Packers.

Must Stop Clark.

Portsmouth's chief threat is Clark, one of the best backs in the league, whose work has kept the Ohioans in the race. The Bears must keep him under control or run a good chance of losing.

Red Grange, recovered from injuries, displayed his old-time skill in helping defeat the Giants, and his return to active duty has helped the morale of the Bears.

Benefit for Hospital.

The Little Company of Mary hospital, 95th street and California avenue, will benefit from the game. A committee headed by Stuyvesant Peabody is sponsoring the advance sale of tickets to aid the hospital. Tickets sold the day of the game will not benefit the hospital, but the advance sale will, and, in addition, tickets sold in advance will be tax free, the government allowing the tax for charity.

Loyola and De Paul universities are holding a campaign to promote the sale of student tickets, which are selling at special rates and also are tax free.

It's Herman in the Air as Veeck Returns

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

William Veeck, president of the Cubs, returned yesterday from a two weeks' motor tour through Florida and adjoining country, but brought back nothing more startling than a case of sunburn. However, the fact that the Cub boss preferred to discuss southern climate instead of baseball indicated that there was something along the latter line that he didn't wish to be asked about.

It naturally concerned the prospects for the addition of a hitter, something the world series revealed was sadly lacking.

The impression is that Veeck, while doing a bit of vacationing on the side, may have taken care of the little matter of moving Babe Herman, who is a fair slugger, out of a Cincinnati uniform into one carrying Cub lettering.

Malone Mentioned in Deal.

If Herman, or even Chick Hafey, the other Red slugger, is obtained it may either be for cash or the services of one of the Cubs' regular pitchers, possibly Pat Malone. The Cincinnati club is hard pressed for cash, so the former method might be preferable for both parties. The Reds are supposed to have informed one club in the league that the price on Herman was $50,000.

The delay in formally announcing a swap such as mentioned above could easily be attributed to the fact that the Cincinnati club doesn't, as yet, have a manager. Donie Bush is reported to have declared recently that if he accepted the Cincinnati post he would welcome the arrival of Pat Malone. Bush, it is said, has already come to terms with the Cincinnati bosses except on the length of his contract.

Catalina Arrival Uncertain.

Nothing has been done about setting a date for the Cubs' arrival at Catalina Island, Cal., for their next training siege. However, the jaunt probably will be curtailed by setting March 1 as the day for the annual muscle stretching inaugural. All the major league clubs may start on this day, the idea being that when times are tough there is no sense in boarding a flock of hungry athletes any longer than necessary.

Committees for Women's Western Golf Announced

Personnel of the various committees of the Women's Western Golf association announced yesterday at a luncheon at the Lake Shore Athletic club by Mrs. Howard D. Raymond, president of the association. The business of selecting 1933 tournament dates was deferred until the December meeting.

Among the committee appointments were the following:

Tournament—Mrs. W. W. Hodgson, Oak Park, chairman; Mrs. G. M. Midgeley, Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Rudolph Wilhelm, Portland, Ore., and Mrs. Stephen Dwan, Seattle, Wash.

Publicity—Mrs. Melvin Jones, Lincolnshire, chairman; Mrs. Paul Walker, Glen View, and Mrs. W. W. Hodgson, Oak Park.

Plans for a cooperative winter pro shop to be opened on the fourth floor above Henrici's restaurant on Nov. 21 were announced yesterday. It will be completely equipped with driving nets and such, and will enlist the services of a number of the district's leading professionals for lessons.

The Chicago Hotelmen's Golf association will hold a tournament Thursday at Olympia Fields. The players will compete for the association and purveyors' cups, each of which must be won three times for permanent possession. Harry Moir has won the former twice, while both Jack Palmer and John Irwin hold two legs on the purveyors' trophy.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN CONQUEROR IN STRENGTH DIES

New York, Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Maj. Thomas F. Lynch, who in the old days conquered John L. Sullivan in feats of strength, died today in Brooklyn. He was 80 years old and when he retired at the age of 77 he was referred to as the "army's strong man." He had been 47 years in the service and was a past commander in chief of the United Spanish War Veterans.

On the Boston baseball grounds on Aug. 16, 1880, he met Sullivan and defeated him in raising two 105 dumbbells from the shoulder to a straight arm position. Sullivan could raise them only to the top of his head. Maj. Lynch did the trick nine times and the demonstration was such that he and Sullivan agreed to tour the country. He was to lift the weights, and Sullivan was to box, but Sullivan failed to emerge from one of his famous sprees in time.

Is Army Good or Opponents Just Terrible?

time does everything well and, good as the backs are at blocking, carrying and feinting, the line is just as good. Apple Mary could have walked through some of the holes in the Harvard and Yale lines, behind the interference which made matters so convenient for Pick Vidal and Jack Buckler.

Yale Deplores Pools.

And now the Yale News is objecting to the football betting racket as conducted by the sort of promoters who run the baseball pools and the daily doubles on the horse races in the summer time, but the Yale News deplores the football pools not on moral grounds but because in their zeal to inform themselves as to the probable winners of the football games the undergraduates are spending too much time and thought in study of the sport pages of the newspapers.

"This betting racket is not disreputable for any moral reasons or because it takes money away from a body of undergraduates who are already supposed to be on the verge of bankruptcy," the News says, "but for a lot of undergraduates who have theoretically come to Yale for an education to spend hours of newspaper research and waste what little mental inquisitiveness they have trying to guess whether Oshkosh will beat the Arkansas Aggies is an absurdity."

But I do not quite get the idea. The News recommends the writings of a newspaper expert who deals in politics and economics. This is dignified information, and, of course, a man who gambles his money on an election or the fluctuations of stocks is gambling on a much higher plane. But does he get any more reliable information from this reading than from his reading of the football stuff, and if the gambling itself is not objected to why shouldn't he choose his own medium?

GARVEY SCORES TWO KNOCKOUTS IN C. Y. O. BOXING

Eight Champions Crowned in West Section.

Preliminaries in the second annual Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tournament came to an end last night at the new C. Y. O. center, when west side boxers met in 16 bouts for the sectional championships.

Edward Garvey, a slight, inoffensive appearing youngster, scored two knockouts in the bantamweight division. Garvey, representing Our Lady of Sorrows, stopped Benny O'Hare, St. Mel's, in the first round and then knocked out John Serevino of St. Finbar in the second round to win the sectional title.

Phil Rogers of Our Lady of Angels, a quarter-finalist last year, was knocked out in the second round by Archie Papineau of St. Mel's. Gerald Mathews, St. Mel's flyweight, also flashed a knockout punch in two matches. He flattened Edward Hartigan of Our Lady of Angels in the first round, and was awarded a technical knockout when John Noto, Presentation, suffered a sprained thumb in the opening round of their final bout.

Results of the preliminaries:

Results of the sectional finals:

BANTAMWEIGHT—Edward Garvey, Our Lady of Sorrow, knocked out John Serevino, St. Finbar [2].

WELTERWEIGHT—William Daly, Our Lady of Angels, beat John Spinelli, St. Charles [3].

Seattle High School Star Dies After Making Tackle

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Victor Skube, 18, quarter back on the West Seattle High school second team, was fatally injured in making a tackle in a high school football game today, dying while on the way to the hospital. Dr. W. C. Kintner said his death was caused by breaking of an artery and that possibly his skull was fractured.

RALLY IN RAILS BRINGS UPTURN IN BOND MARKET

Germany's Election Helps Its Issues.

New York, Nov. 7.—Rails led bonds into a smart rally today, while Wall street evinced pleasure over the fact that the election is almost over.

The upswing in speculative rails, ranging from 1 to more than 3 points, was part of a broader upturn in other security and commodity markets.

Other divisions of the market also were influenced by politics. German bonds recovered after the reichstag election yesterday. Canadian bonds declined in sympathy with a slump in exchange, both apparently resulting from the uncertainties arising out of the current session of Canadian house of commons and senate.

Federal Issues Dull.

Lacking the attraction of speculative appreciation, United States government issues continued to be about the dullest section of the market. Trade here is virtually stagnant on account of tomorrow's election.

Bonds of the Baltimore and Ohio again showed especial vitality, the 4½s, due 1933, rallying 2 or more points during the course of trading. Other issues of the road gained sympathetically.

Other Rails Gain.

Elsewhere in the speculative carrier list gains occurred in such bonds as Chesapeake Corporation 5s, St. Paul 5s, Chicago and North Western convertible 4½s, Illinois Central Collateral 4s, issues of Missouri Pacific, New York Central, and others.

Weakness in Canadian exchange carrying the dollar to a discount of 13⅛ per cent from par was unsettling to Canadian bonds, but did not shake the conviction of close observers that the country's situation is sound and improving steadily.

Westinghouse Electric.

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, together with General Electric company, dominates the electrical equipment field. It has had rapid growth, paralleling that of the public utility industry.

In addition to the public utility field, the company is an important factor in the electric railway supply industry, is the second largest manufacturer of elevators in the United States, is a large producer of incandescent lamps, and is active in the electric refrigerator, washing machine, scientific instrument, and television industries.

In 1930 its radio division and that of General Electric were transferred to Radio Corporation of America. Westinghouse received 19½ per cent of Radio common stock. Westinghouse and General Electric now control Radio Corporation of America. This setup is being investigated by federal authorities to determine whether anti-trust laws were violated.

The paring of budgets of public utilities has adversely affected volume of business. In the first nine months of 1932 sales billed were $58,875,000 and net loss was $5,917,000. In the corresponding 1931 period sales billed were $87,854,000 and net loss was $967,000.

Sales in 1931 were $115,393,000. This was 36 per cent less than 1930 sales and 47 per cent less than record 1929 sales. Net loss in 1931 was $3,032,000, against net income of $11,882,000, or $4.46 per common share, for 1930. Net income for 1929 was $27,063,000, against $16,696,000 for the nine months to Dec. 31, 1928.

The report for the first half of 1932 stated that operating economies totaling $3,400,000 a month had been instituted.

On June 30, 1932, current assets were $94,025,000 and current liabilities were $5,781,000. Working capital was $88,244,000, against $93,154,000 on Dec. 31, 1931. At the close of 1931 cash assets were about $32,000,000.

The company has no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 79,974 shares of 7 per cent participating preferred [par $50] and 2,588,181 shares of $50 par common.

Dividends are being paid on the preferred, but not on the common.

Curtailment of available business has made the immediate outlook dependent on the management's ability to cut expenses. Long term analysis should take into consideration the company's strong position in the industry, its strong current position, and its active research department designed to develop new products which add new sources of revenues.

WHERE'S CASH? READER ASKS AS LOANS DROP

Still Over 5 Billion in Circulation.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

A. L. Kuhlman, a subscriber who lives in Auburn, Ind., writes in to ask: "Where is the money? If the American people were thoroughly convinced of the true location of the money, possibly some person or persons could figure out an intelligent and workable plan to get it back into circulation. In banks? Yes, likely. But where?"

According to the circulation statement of the treasury on Sept. 30 there was 9 billion 331 million dollars of money in the country. This was more than there was a month before or a year before.

Held by Treasury.

Of this amount 3 billion 569 million dollars was held in the treasury for various purposes. Some of the remainder was held by federal reserve banks and agents.

The rest, 5 billion 653 million dollars in all, was in circulation. Most of it was in banks. Yesterday's member bank statement, for example, showed that deposits of reporting member banks totaled nearly 18 billion dollars, more than three times the amount of money in circulation.

Some of it is in hoarding. How much it is impossible to say because there is no check on the contents of safe deposit boxes. There are definite indications, however, that hoarding has been declining for several months.

More in Circulation.

There is more money in circulation than there was in boom times. The Sept. 30, 1932, total of 5 billion 653 millions compares with 5 billion 246 millions on Sept. 30, 1931, and 4 billion 819 millions at the close of September, 1929.

This does not include money in the treasury or in the federal reserve banks. It is money actually in the hands of the people or deposited by them in banks, safe deposit boxes or mattresses. It is money that they can get hold of and spend when they so desire.

The trouble is not with the amount of money in circulation, it has to do more with the "velocity" of money—the rate of speed with which it passes from hand to hand in business transactions.

Money Is Plentiful.

It isn't the constriction of money that has brought on evil days. Money is more plentiful than ever. Credit is not—but that's another story.

What is money?

The banker says it is "something you pay debts with." Credit, he says, is simply "evidence of debt"—an I. O. U.

Credit, he will tell you, is the thing that has shrunk.

Yesterday's reserve report showed that member banks on Nov. 2 were lending only 4 billion 311 million on securities, compared with 9 billion 179 million on Oct. 30, 1929.

They reported that all other loans and discounts amounted to 6 billion 130 million, compared with 9 billion 871 million on Nov. 20, 1929.

Total Investments.

The total investments of these same banks, however, were 8 billion 585 million, compared with only 6 billion 077 million at the 1929 high.

Of these investments 5 billion 284 million represent United States government securities, an increase of 1 billion 176 million in the last year alone.

In addition there is the credit supplied to the federal government by the federal reserve banks themselves. They now hold about 1 billion 850 million dollars of "governments," compared with 152 million dollars on Sept. 25, 1929.

Lend to Government.

The banks for weeks have been complaining that there is no demand for loans from corporations with good credit standing. And so they have been lending to the government at rates varying from a fifth to a seventh of 1 per cent on an annual basis.

There's more money than ever in circulation and it's in the hands of the people. But it takes more than money to make machinery hum. It takes credit and confidence.

High taxes have made corporations and individuals hesitant about spending for future profit. In the meantime, the government is draining off the credit to finance government lending institutions like the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

U. S. Concerns Abroad Seek Tariff Relief

BY SCRUTATOR.

Should big American industrial corporations which have plants in other countries be permitted to import the products of those plants to this country under lower tariffs than foreign producers? The question is raised by a suggestion of the National Foreign Trade council that such American concerns should be given preferential treatment.

It is pointed out that Americans now have about nine billion dollars in direct productive investments outside the United States. These investments maintain more than 2,000 factories, assembly plants, mines, refineries and other producing establishments in some thirty countries. It is estimated between 10 and 15 per cent of our total imports come from sources largely controlled by Americans. These plants largely account for more than 400,000 Americans living abroad.

Pay Taxes in United States.

These companies with foreign plants, as the result of earnings derived abroad, pay a considerable sum in federal and state taxes that would not be available otherwise, it is argued. Their purchases from the United States help to swell our export trade and their products add to the tonnage carried by American shipping.

"It is a questionable national policy to treat the products of these enterprises on the same basis as foreign products," the council concludes. "Not only are they of vital and direct importance in stimulating exports from this country, but in some cases they have been wisely planned to aid in the conservation of our own natural resources by opening up a new supply through American skill and enterprise abroad."

Has Another Side.

The argument is plausible, but, like most international questions, it has another side. It does not mention that many American concerns have built foreign plants in order to escape tariff barriers imposed by other countries and to take advantage of lower material and labor costs, thus enabling them to compete with foreign producers on their own ground. But these American concerns provide employment and use materials produced in those countries, which was the purpose of their tariff makers.

The proposal to grant preferential tariffs to these American companies presents a more important question. The products that they can produce cheaply abroad would come into competition with those produced by themselves and their competitors in this country. This is evident from the list of products cited by the council, which includes copper, oil, sugar, tin, nickel, bauxite, wood pulp, nitrates, hides and meat products, hemp, sisal, chicle, bananas and other tropical fruit, as well as a "large range of lesser known basic materials."

Preferential Tariffs.

Probably there would not be much complaint if preferential tariffs were granted to American concerns covering products produced in their foreign plants which either are not produced in the United States or for which we do not produce acceptable substitutes. But American owners of oil lands and native petroleum producers would object and our copper companies would utter loud complaint.

The farmer most certainly would fight any proposal to lower the tariffs on hides and meats, while the beet sugar industry would demand protection from foreign sugar. And even the native fruit growers, particularly those in California and Florida, would be inclined to object to lower duties on tropical fruits and consequent increased competition with their produce.

New Orleans & Gt. Northern R.R. Goes Into Receivership

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The New Orleans and Great Northern Railroad company was placed in receivership here today as a result of a suit to foreclose mortgages against the road. I. G. Tigrett of Jackson, Tenn., president of the company, was named sole receiver by Federal Judge E. R. Holmes.

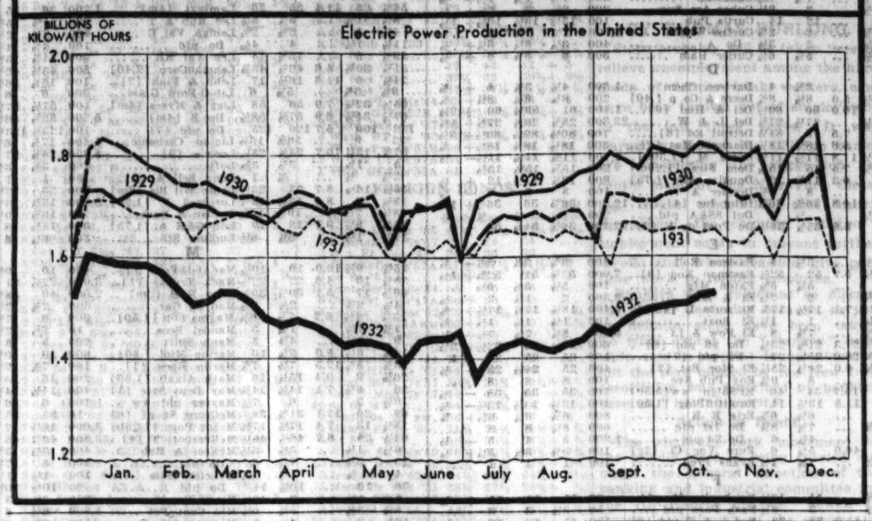
ELECTRIC POWER PRODUCTION NOW GAINING STEADILY



U. S. Foreign Trade Gains in September

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—Improvement in America's trade with five of its seven leading import and export nations was registered during September, according to a breakdown of foreign trade figures for the month, made public today by the department of commerce.

The total value of our September foreign trade, according to the figures, was 230 million dollars—nearly 30 millions higher than in August. Exports were valued at 132 millions, or 22 millions more than in August, while imports total 98 millions, to exceed the level of the previous month by more than 7 millions.

This country's favorable balance of trade in September, the figures showed, amounted to $33,578,305, as compared with a favorable balance of $18,096,646 in the previous month.

Analysis of Trade.

Today's analysis of American trade by principal geographical divisions and major trading countries disclosed marked increases during September in the value of our exports to the United Kingdom, Germany, France, Japan, and Italy, and similar gains in our imports from the United Kingdom, Japan, Germany, Philippine Islands, and Brazil.

As compared with the totals for August, exports of the United States in September to its seven leading buying nations were as follows:

Canada, $18,745,160 in September, as compared with $18,924,536 in August; United Kingdom, $25,728,103, as against $18,638,016; Germany, $15,790,884, as against $8,663,016; France, $10,251,560, as against $9,219,242; Japan, $7,803,187, as against $3,289,267; Italy, $4,773,648, as against $3,506,170, and China, $3,705,666, as against $3,933,806.

September Exports.

September shipments into this country from the seven principal import nations, as compared with August, were as follows: Canada, $12,507,799, as compared with $12,739,346; United Kingdom, $6,420,336, as compared with $5,213,051; Japan, $12,135,255, as against $10,065,323; Germany, $6,753,844, as against $5,695,740; Philippine Islands, $6,200,702, as compared with $6,098,032; Brazil, $5,531,613, as against $3,184,245, and Cuba, $5,127,822, as against $7,289,250.

The September gain in our exports to the United Kingdom, according to the figures, made that nation the leading purchaser of American goods, a position enjoyed in August and for some time previously by Canada. The dominion, however, retained the lead as the foremost exporter to this nation.

American exports to soviet Russia, the figures showed, gained by nearly a million dollars during the month, while imports from that country declined by $173,000.

Lincoln Motor Car Sales Gain Is Best Since June

Retail sales of Lincoln Motor cars in October recorded the largest monthly total since June, the Lincoln Motor company reported.

Leading commodity and security markets, including the New York and Chicago Stock exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade, will be closed tomorrow because of the national election. Banks and other financial houses will also be closed. Foreign commodity and security markets will do business as usual. As is customary, trading will not be suspended in the Chicago live stock market.

WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE PASSES ITS DIVIDEND AND DO WETS CHEER!

New York, Nov. 7.—Seldom does news of an omitted dividend arouse any enthusiasm in the financial community. Today, however, when Welch Grape Juice omitted its commondividend there was a group which regarded the action as a ray of sunlight. Coming as it did on the eve of a national election in which prohibition is one of the most vital issues, it was regarded as a significant shadow of an impending expression of revolt against the eighteenth amendment. This group believes that the depression may be finally overcome by the re-legalizing of light wines and beer and to this group, grape juice still remains the symbol of prohibition.

Short Line Seeks Permit to Make Federal Loan

St. Louis-Kansas City Short Line, a new company, has asked the interstate commerce commission authority to borrow $35,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to resume contruction of a 236 mile double track line between St. Louis, Mo., and Kansas City, Mo.

Trade in Bar Silver More Active; Small Gain Shown

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Bar silver was fairly active here today, rising to 27⅝ cents an ounce, or ⅝ cents above Saturday's quotation. Dealers reported considerable inquiry from China.

Auto Output Up for First Time in Weeks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 7.—For the first time in many weeks, automobile production for the seven days ending Saturday, revealed an increase, according to authoritative private figures.

Output was set at 10,207 units, against 9,546 in the preceding week, and 8,592 for the corresponding week last year. While there was a gain during the week and over the same week last year, production was far below the levels of 1930 and 1929. In 1930 output totaled 31,650 units, and in 1929 it was 61,824.

The increase of 761 units during the week, in a large measure, was due to higher schedules in the Nash plant, which turned out 500 cars, against 128 in the preceding seven days.

In the low priced fields, Ford increased production 300 units to 4,800; Chevrolet remained closed and Plymouth stepped up output by 50 units to 2,500.

Other production figures for the last and preceding weeks, respective, follow: Auburn, 100, closed; Cadillac, 20-50; Dodge, 120-120; Federal Truck, 35-30; Franklin, 110-100; General Motors Truck, 55-60; Graham-Paige, 180-195; Hudson-Essex, 600-675; Hupmobile, 40-18; Marmon, 12-10; Packard, 80-90; Pierce-Arrow, 25-25; Reo, 100-120; Rockne, 300-300; Studebaker, 200-400, and Willys-Overland, 400-450.

PRICES OF CORN AND WHEAT RISE FOR THIRD DAY

WHEAT PRICES IN GOLD

Prices of wheat in the leading world's markets figured on gold basis, computed from exchange rates prevailing at the time they closed, compare as follows:

	Monday.	Saturday.
Chicago, Dec.	.44⅝	.43½-43⅝
Winnipeg, Dec.	.41⅞	.40⅜
Liverpool, Dec.	.51⅛	.50½
Buenos Aires, Feb	.40½	.39⅝

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets gave an impressive demonstration of strength yesterday, with wheat and corn advancing for the third straight day, the first time this has occurred since Sept. 5.

Weakness in Canadian exchange, which had considerable effect on the Winnipeg wheat market and advanced the prices there as much as 3⅝c per bu, combined with fairly general evening up for the presidential election resulted in a bulge of around 2c in the local market. While the best figures were not maintained at the last the close was with net gains of 1¼c. December finished at 44⅝c; May, 49⅝@49¾c, and July, 51@51¼c.

Winnipeg Wheat Gains.

The black board showed a net advance of 1⅝@2⅛c in wheat prices at Winnipeg during the day, but the exchange rate dropped to around 12½ per cent discount at one time, the lowest since early in August. December there finished at 47⅛c in Canadian funds and at about 41⅞c on a gold basis, the latter being 1½c higher than on Saturday when the exchange was around 11 per cent discount.

Messages from Winnipeg indicated there was doubt in some quarters whether Canada would remain on a gold basis much longer.

One effect of the lower exchange rate was to facilitate export sales of Manitobas, with the aggregate in all positions estimated at 1,000,000 bu with intimations of a much larger business. The continent was a free buyer. Liverpool closed ¾@⅞c per bu higher, with December at 51⅝c, or 7c over Chicago at the time. Buenos Aires was also strong and advanced over 1c, with predictions of frost overnight having considerable influence. The new Argentine crop is reported as a condition where frost now might do extremely heavy damage, although harvesting in the north is expected to

Canada Dollar Breaks 2 Cents; Yen at New Low

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 7.—The Canadian dollar, which gave evidence of weakness at the close of last week, broke two cents today to a discount of 13½ cents in terms of United States money, the widest discount since July 19. The Canadian monetary unit closed on Saturday at 88½ cents. The best price quoted today was 88 cents, the poorest 86½ cents, and the closing was 87 cents.

In the absence of other apparent causes the decline was ascribed to concern over the reported intention of the Canadian government to provide for an increase in fiduciary currency as permitted under the war finance act. The purpose of the increase in currency, according to the reports, is to induce a degree of "reflection" in the hope of raising prices.

Yen Hits New Low.

The Japanese yen shared with Canadian exchange the distinction of outstanding weakness in today's foreign exchange market. The yen fell ⅝c to 20.50c, the lowest price on record. No new developments were advanced to explain the drop, but the yen is at present subject to the characteristic instability of a currency divorced from the gold standard and events in Japan lately have not increased confidence in the ability of that country to avoid inflation.

European exchanges displayed a mixed movement. Sterling was strong and gained ⅝c net on the day to close at $3.30⅜, but the gold standard exchanges were weak. Francs dropped ⅛ point to 3.92⅞c, guilders were off 3 points to 40.21c, belgas and Swiss francs each lost 1 point to 13.91c and 19.27½c respectively.

Only one gold transaction was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. This was an import of $26,800 gold from Mexico which yielded a net gain of that amount to the monetary gold stocks of the country for the day.

Inflation Move Denied.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7.—High officials of the department of finance declare there is considerable exaggeration in reports that the dominion government has embarked upon an inflationist monetary policy.

The government, however, has borrowed from the banks $35,000,000 against treasury bills bearing 4 per cent. These bills were later discounted at par under the dominion notes act. The banks have the right to discount such bills and apparently since the recent loan was made currency issued under this act has increased from $13,000,000 to $27,000,000, which represents mild inflation. Yet the gold coverage against currency is still 44⅓ per cent as compared with 42 per cent a year ago.

The sharp rise in New York exchange today against the Canadian dollar indicates that American bankers interpret the move as the beginning of a mild policy of inflation.

STOCKS STAGE BRISK RALLY ON THE EVE OF VOTE

New Buying, Short Covering Help.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 7.—Wall street on the eve of the presidential election pushed favorite shares up sharply. Further freeing itself from preelection restraint—a movement that started last week-end—the share market started the new week off auspiciously with a brisk upward movement that carried up leading issues in all sections from large fractions to more than 3 points.

Best prices were reached in the first hour, when the selling enthusiasm was at its height, but the ground gained was stanchly held to the closing gong. Although business slowed down somewhat near the end, total volume managed to swing well above a million and a half shares. Business was most brisk in midsession.

Short Covering Helps.

It was apparent that traders, after going back over the records of former election years, decided to gamble on a rise in the market after tomorrow's ballot contest, regardless of the outcome.

At the same time many of those on the short side, caught in an embarrassing position despite the market's good action in last week's closing sessions, were forced into a broad covering movement.

The result of this combination of short protection and a more confident attitude among the bulls was a strong market throughout the day. The improvement was wide in scope. The speculative favorites, including many of the specialties, registered the sharpest rises, but several of those in the lower brackets and in the inactive group edged ahead as much as a point or so.

New Buying Appears.

In the increased turnover there was apparent new buying by outside speculators who anticipate a sustained rise once the campaign is out of the way. According to some dealers, there was a fair amount of purchasing of European origin.

Making for harmony in a better general market picture was wheat's improvement and a strong, active bond market. Wheat's performance played as important a part in the share and bond advance as any other factor.

United States Steel was a bulwark of strength throughout and closed with a gain of 2 points. Another reported rise in steel industry output was a weighty factor in the advance

The Legal Opinion reproduced here covers one of the first municipal bond issues distributed by N. W. Harris & Co. which later became the Harris Trust and Savings Bank. Since the business was founded in 1882, the organization has furnished money to every state in the Union for building roads, school houses, water works, and other improvements. Municipal bonds were the first type of security handled by this organization and have always represented a large share of our annual volume. We shall be glad to submit a list of municipal bonds which we own and recommend for sound investment.

PRICES OF HOGS RISE SHARPLY; RECEIPTS LIGHT

Both Cattle and Hogs Also Advance.

Light receipts of hogs pushed prices sharply upward at the stockyards yesterday. Prices forged ahead 10@20c in one of the liveliest sessions in recent weeks. The top jumped 20c to $3.60, highest in 11 days, while the general average gained 15c, going to $3.45. It was the sharpest one day upturn since the middle of July.

While light receipts were expected, most of yesterday's decrease was attributed to the fact that farmers are taking more interest in politics this year and want to be home to vote. For this reason the trade expects the bulk of the week's receipts during the last three days. Combined arrivals of cattle, calves, hogs and sheep at Chicago at 48,000 compared with a total of 85,849 a week ago and with 107,982 a year ago. It was the smallest Monday run since July 25. Hogs at 18,000 were smallest for Monday in more than eight years.

Prices Forge Ahead.

Cattle at 13,000 were smallest for Monday since Aug. 8, while sheep at 15,000 were smallest since July 25. The decrease was greater than usual for the Monday before election. After direct hogs were out, only 10,000 head were left on the market.

Yesterday was the fourth consecutive day that prices advanced. There have been few times since early in the year when prices held so consistently on the upgrade for four days in a row, barring the sensational summer advance which lasted a month and was the longest uninterrupted rise in the memory of traders.

Reports from the wholesale trade for fresh pork were more encouraging and indicated a recovery in prices. Wires from other leading hog markets showed light receipts and a general advance. The $4.00 quotation was brought into play at two points in the east, while none of the low western markets sold top grades below $3.10. Last week the lowest of these points were selling top grades at $2.85@2.90.

Cattle Sell Higher.

Cattle also responded to the lighter receipts and sold on a strong to 25c higher price level, but did not get as much support as hogs on the upturn. The extreme top for cattle at $5.60 was exactly $5.00 above the hog top. Six weeks ago top cattle were selling $6.00 above hogs, and a year ago they were $7.00 above hogs. Prime weighty beeves are being held back in the country in hopes of a rise in the market as a prelude to the live stock show in Chicago late this month. Consequently common to medium grades of steers and butcher stock predominated in yesterday's small receipts.

No "stick out" cattle were offered. Some choice 1,515 lb steers established the $8.60 top, but the trade is carrying a nominal quotation of $9.25 for prime 1,200@1,400 lb cattle. Bulk of steers sold at $5.50@7.50, with numerous lots down to $5.00 and some thin steers sold as low as $3.00@4.00. Butcher stock ruled steady to 25c higher. All other classes of cattle held steady.

Lambs Close Higher.

A rather slow and weak opening in lambs yesterday proved misleading when a bulge of 15@25c followed in mid-session. All interests bought on the upturn and a good clearance was effected. Packers and city butchers handpicked natives up to $5.75, getting the bulk at $5.50 and below. Fed westerns were lacking in quality and got a poorer reception early, but shared in some of the later action. Matured sheep and yearlings sold steady. Feeding lambs met good demand around $4.80, or slightly above the close of last week.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was quiet today and in absence of business prices were unchanged at 3.10c for spots. Refiners were said to be interested at this price in certain nearby positions. Nothing was firmly offered below 3.15c, but it was considered probable that bids of 3.12c would have been accepted in some quarters. There was only a small trade in futures, but despite the inactivity prices were firmer with the market closing net unchanged to 2 points higher. Sales were 6,900 tons. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
Jan.	1.01	1.01	1.01	1.01	1.00
March	.95	.98	.95	.96	.95
May	1.00	1.01	1.00	1.01	.99
July	1.04	1.05	1.04	1.05	1.04
Sept.	1.09	1.09	1.09	1.09	1.08

The refined situation was unchanged, with all refiners listing at 4.25c for fine granulated and second hands available at around 4.17½c. There were moderate withdrawals against old contracts, but new business was light and supplied through resale offerings.

C. S. DEWEY SEES LITTLE CHANCE FOR WAR DEBTS

Urges Business to Make Better Trade Pacts.

Charles S. Dewey, former assistant secretary of the treasury and financial adviser to Poland, declared yesterday that it is extremely unlikely that European war debts to the United States will be paid in cash. He suggested that leaders of business cooperate with the government in seeking to obtain better trade agreements with the debtor nations, using the debts as a lever.

"I have no confidence at all that we will ever get a cent of money on these debts," Mr. Dewey said. "The debtor nations have no money. We don't want their goods. But we can use the debts as guarantees to obtain concessions from the debtor nations for the betterment of American trade.

Know What They Want.

"The government cannot determine what benefits we should obtain in such concessions, but the leaders of industry in this country know exactly what they want and need. They should pool that knowledge and present it to the government for action when the war debts question comes to a head, as it surely will soon after the election. If we obtain no cash, we may obtain, through foreign trade, quid pro quo."

Mr. Dewey said that American business leaders have been shortsighted in their foreign policies.

"We have been carried away with the idea of the vast number of people in soviet Russia," he continued. "There are some 160,000,000, but the great majority of them live near China. These people are virtually uncivilized and constitute a poor market for our goods. Only a very small proportion can use our exports. And they do not believe in the sanctity of the contract.

Overlook Central Europe.

"We have been overlooking the more than 85,000,000 inhabitants of central Europe, living in the nations bounded by the Baltic, Black, and Caspian seas. They believe in the sanctity of the contract, are civilized and form a potential market for our goods. It is true that goods may have to be sold to them on credit, but their paying record is good. I believe a study of those markets would be advantageous to American trade. We are on the best of terms with those peoples, because we have not participated in their misery, but in their reconstruction."

The membership of the society voted in a poll conducted at the meeting: 50 votes for Hoover, 7 for Roosevelt, and 1 for Norman Thomas.

MEN—RESPONSIBLE.

We will immediately employ several more responsible, alert, active men who have good references. We will back these men financially, teach them successful methods of managing it, supply equipment with no investment, no deposit required, no rent to pay, no stock-keeping troubles. Continuous and unique expansion program, based on increasing business this year, makes this opportunity available to a few more men. Our method of merchandising pays similarly qualified men here more than they ever made before.

Successful men help those selected to learn how to increase initial earnings of $125.00 to $200.00 per month. If you are of good reputation, willing to learn and to work hard even harder to make a genuine success in return for the privilege of a genuine opportunity in a permanent position, experienced managers will deeply interest themselves in helping you to get started and to get along. Make your application Tuesday morning, 9 to 12, at Suite 430, 1525 E. 53d-st.

THE STRANGE DEATH OF MRS. PARSONS.

Because the gun was found on Mrs. Parsons' DRESSER. Had she committed suicide and died instantly, the gun could not have been there. In a large, luxuriously furnished room a dresser is never so close to the bed as to make this possible.
